Vandenberg, Taft Ideas Predominate In Platform

Final Approval Up To Full Committee And Convention Later in Week

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, June 20.—A 2400-word GOP platform, reflecting the bipartisan foreign policies of Arthur H. Vandenberg, and some of the domestic ideas of Robert A. Taft, today was completed by a seven-man Republican drafting committee.

Two more steps lay ahead of final approval—a full resolutions committee show-down Monday and convention acceptance later this week.

There were rumblings of a clash on some of the more hotly contested foreign and domestic planks, but Resolutions Chairman Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., said he looked for no serious differences.

Compromise in All Platforms

"There are things in here that I don't agree with," said Lodge. "But after all, every platform has to be a compromise."

The threat of a controversy arose from arrival today of some members of the Resolutions Committee tied up by the weekend's congressional dead-heat. They will get their first look at the still-secret preliminary platform Monday.

Some of the late arrivals are not strictly in accord with the international views of Senator Vandenberg, who is reported to have had an advance squint at the foreign policy plank.

Others do not go along all the way with Senator Taft on housing, Federal aid to education and other unenacted domestic legislation. Taft, on arrival, said he had not seen the platform but will confer with Chairman Lodge.

Housing Plank Modified

The platform, it was learned, has a housing plank that is silent on public housing features of the Taft-Wagner-Ellender bill. If ratified in that form it will meet Taft only part way.

A subcommittee recommended Federal aid to education, pushed through the Senate by Taft, but Lodge declined to say whether it is still in the preliminary draft.

The platform's labor plank, one informant said, is a statement of general principles rather than party commitments. But it doesn't back away from the Taft-Hartley Act the Ohioan had a major say in drafting.

Unless it is changed in the full committee Monday, the foreign affairs plank squares completely with Vandenberg's views on assistance, within prudent limits, to other peace-loving nations and a policy of friendly firmness, without appeasement, to the un-named Soviet.

Among the late-arriving platform draftsmen who don't go along

U. S. May Lose Headquarters of U. N., Bloom Says

By The Associated Press

Representative Sol Bloom (D., N. Y.) said yesterday America is in danger of losing headquarters for the United Nations because the House failed to approve a 65-million-dollar loan authorization for needed buildings.

Bloom predicted a move will be made at the U. N. General Assembly in Paris in September to switch the U. N. capital to Europe "and it might be done."

The Congressman is the ranking Democrat on the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Bloom blamed the loan's failure to "stupid handling" in the committee by attaching it to a bill dealing with other U. N. subjects of controversial nature. Chairman Eaton (R., N. J.), who pushed the loan request, was not available for comment.

Dewey, Taft Arrive at GOP Convention

Each Is Confident He'll Be Nominated On an Early Ballot

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, June 20.—The stars of the Republican National Convention arrived in this noisy, jam-packed City of Brotherly Love here today, ready for the opening gavel tomorrow.

United States Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, generally regarded as the No. 2 man in the battle for the GOP presidential nomination, told reporters:

"The race is largely between myself and Mr. Dewey, and I think I have the better chance."

Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York, rated as No. 1 at this stage, saw it differently.

Expects Early Nomination

"Do you expect to be nominated?" he was asked.

"Yes," he replied.

"What ballot?"

"Don't know. An early one, I should think."

Gov. Earl Warren of California, another arrival, would not claim the great prize. However, he was not without hope.

"I think the race is wide open," he said. "Anyone has a chance."

Asked about the vice presidential nomination, Warren said:

"I have never had any interest in the Vice Presidency, and I have none now."

House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., was asked if he would accept the GOP presidential nomination if it were "thrust" on him.

"No Republican could refuse it," he said.

"On Ninth Ballot"—Stassen

Harold E. Stassen, prophesying today that he'll win on about the ninth ballot, called for a liberal Republican program in foreign and domestic affairs. Stassen told his supporters here that former Gov. Walter E. Edge of New Jersey "has come out in our support."

Stassen made the rounds, accepting invitations to parties where, among others, he met Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright. General Wainwright, who speaks for Gen. Douglas MacArthur, reaffirmed the belief that MacArthur would ac-

Today Longest, Summer Starts

Today will be the longest day of the year—exactly 14 hours and 55 minutes.

At exactly 8:11 a. m., summer will begin officially.

The District Weather Bureau announced that the sun, reaching its northernmost point, will rise at 5:42 a. m. and set at 8:37 p. m., DST.

148 Planes Damaged by Hail, Wind

125 Aircraft Hit At Bolling Field; Tobacco Is Hurt

The severe hail and wind storm which lashed Greater Washington Saturday and early yesterday damaged 148 airplanes and crops in nearby Maryland and Virginia.

Plane damage was estimated at thousands of dollars at military and private flying fields. The Southern Maryland tobacco crop was reported hard hit.

Plane Fabric Punctured

The planes, which included transports, trainers and medium bombers, suffered aileron damage when the fabric was punctured by the stones, an announcement by Brig. Gen. B. M. Hovey, commandant, said.

Five planes were damaged to the extent of $6000 at Congressional Airfield when they were buffeted by high winds and hail.

National Airport reported 12 small private planes and two airliners slightly damaged.

The Military Air Transport Service at Gravelly Point reported two transports slightly damaged. Andrews Field escaped the hail deluge, and parked craft were unharmed.

Two planes suffered slight damage out of about 60 parked at the Hybla Valley airfield, officials reported.

Wet at Peace Cross

Elsewhere signs of the storm's fury were still apparent.

Flood waters at Bladensburg Peace Cross area were receding. Early morning traffic had to be detoured off Bladensburg road in the vicinity, through Rhode Island ave.

Reds Call Truman Remarks on Soviet Poorly Founded

London, June 20 (U.P.).—President Truman's remarks on the Soviet Union during his cross-country tour were "as unworthy as they are unfounded," a Moscow radio broadcast said today.

The broadcast was of an article, in Pravda, written by Jacob Viktorov, the Communist paper's foreign affairs expert.

". . . Mr. Truman put forward the unexpected thesis that there are allegedly no differences between the United States and the Soviet Union, but differences between the Soviet Union and the rest of the world," Viktorov said.

70,000 Troops in Assault

Greeks Launch Biggest Drive Against Rebels' Mountain Lair

Athens, June 20 (A.P.).—The Greek army threw six divisions, supported by artillery and air power, into the northern Pindus Mountains tonight in an effort to break the back of the Communist revolution. It was estimated more than 70,000 troops launched the greatest offensive of the civil war.

The troops are striking into the heart of the rebels' Grammos Mountain stronghold on the Albanian border. It is reported 7000 guerillas are in a 1000-mile square area. The headquarters of guerilla leader Markos Vafiades and main rebel supply bases are reported in this pocket.

[The United Press said government troops tonight seized a key position, 4000-foot Alevista Ridge, little more than a mile from the Albanian border. Greek troops suffered heavy, undetailed casualties from defending fire, a communique said.]

Greek soldiers sought to close in from three sides—on a line roughly from Albania's border to Ioannina, from Ioannina east to Grevena, and from Grevena north to Nestorion, also on the Albanian border.

The Albanian border forms the top of the big rebel "pocket."

Two of the Greek air force's three squadrons are supporting the offensive over the roughest mountain terrain in Greece. A hundred pieces of artillery, largely American-made pack howitzers, are reported in action.

Three of the six divisions are assault forces pressing into Grammos Mountain points, while the other three were ordered to hold the flanks.

Reds Forbid New Money In Berlin

U. S. Halts Rail Freight to City Rather Than Submit To Soviet Inspection

(From Press Dispatches)

Berlin, June 21 (Monday).—The Russian commander in Germany has warned the western powers not to introduce their new money into Berlin, it was revealed early today.

"Only one currency can circulate in Berlin, which is situated in the Soviet zone," Marshal Vassily Sokolovsky, the Russian commander, said in a letter to Gen. Lucius D. Clay, United States military governor for Germany.

Sokolovsky's letter was made public as Germans in the western zones lined up to exchange their Reichsmarks for the new Deutsche marks.

U. S. Halts Rail Shipments

The new Soviet challenge to the three western powers' control of their Berlin zones came as the United States Army stopped sending supplies by rail from the United States zone to Berlin rather than submit cargoes to Russian inspection. The Russians insisted on inspecting cargo aboard the trains purportedly to keep the new marks out of the Soviet zone, which surrounds Berlin.

The United States action ended rail freight traffic with Berlin. The 10,000 United States personnel in the city will have to be supplied by air if possible. Soviet curbs earlier had cut off virtually all auto and train passenger traffic into Berlin from the western zones.

Sokolovsky's letter denounced the western currency reform as illegal.

It was somewhat confusing, in that while it warned against introduction of the new currency into Berlin, it also declared:

"At the same time, I learn with satisfaction of your statement that the separate currency reform announced for the western zones will not be carried out in the American sector of Berlin. I take it for granted that only one currency will circulate in Berlin."

"It is self-evident the introduction of two currencies would undermine the economy and money circulation not only of the area of Greater Berlin, which is situated in the Soviet zone and is economically part of it, but also the economy of the Soviet zone, which Soviet occupation authorities cannot admit in view of their obligations resulting from international treaties."

Sokolovsky's letter was in reply to Clay's message informing the Russians of the western action. Similar replies from the Russian were sent to the British and French commanders.

The Russian commander said the western Allied action "places Soviet authorities in a difficult position and compels urgent measures to safeguard the economy of the Soviet zone."

(The United Press said U. S. transport planes flew two tons of new money into Berlin in defiance of Soviet orders barring it from all sectors of Berlin as well as the surrounding Russian zone. It was not known whether this money was the new Deutsche mark or yet a third currency printed especially for Berlin.

(Russian troops guarded the plant which prints the Soviet army newspaper Taegliche Rundschau and Germans who had been in the building reported the Russians were hurriedly printing new currency in preparation for money reforms of their own.)

Sokolovsky accused the United

Much Depends on Volunteers

Army May Induct 200,000 In First 12 Months of Draft

By The Associated Press

The Army probably will call between 200,000 and 225,000 inductees during the first 12 months of the new draft program, an official said yesterday.

This will approximate roughly the estimated net loss to expiration of enlistments during that time. Should volunteer enlistments and reenlistments keep up at somewhat near the present rate in the following 12 months, beginning about July 1, 1949, none or a comparatively few draftees might be required.

But in the year starting about July 1, 1950, new calls might have to be issued because the terms of the first draftees would begin to expire.

However, Army officials cautioned that much of the draft induction rate depends upon the volunteer enlistment situation.

The number of volunteers over and above the draft inductions apparently is depended upon to bring about the net increases for the armed forces to raise them to the newly planned strength.

The draft bill passed by Congress late Saturday night fixes the total strength for the military establishment at 2,005,882. The Army would be expanded to 837,000 from its present 548,000 strength; the Navy and Marines to 666,882 from 469,000 (of which the Navy part is 389,000); the Air Force to 502,000 from 382,000 (to operate 70 groups of planes).

Gen. Omar Bradley, Army Chief of Staff, said he believed the bill as passed was adequate. It provides for drafting of men 19 through 25 for 21 months' service. No one could be drafted until 90 days after the bill becomes effec-

20 District Men Enlist in Guard

Some 20 District men yesterday took advantage of recruiting facilities of the D. C. National Guard—which normally are not open on Sunday—to sign up for hitches in ground units of the Guard and thus escape the draft.

The recruits enlisted at the armory and at three sound trucks which roamed the city. Guard officers reported many other youths had indicated they would enroll today. A recruiting station for air units of the D. C. Guard will open today at 1406 G st. nw.

Farm, Housing Compromises End Session at 7:14 A. M.; $330 Pay Rise Sent Truman

Bill Includes $450 Postal Hike; 180,000 Affected In District Area

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

The President has before him for signature the bill to raise the salaries of most Federal workers—850,000 classified—by a flat $330 each and $450 to each of the 480,000 postal employes. About 180,000 employes here and nearby will benefit by it.

It's widely predicted that the President will sign the piece-meal and discriminatory measure into law with some reluctance and the more than 1,300,000 Government people covered by it will get higher salaries starting with the first pay period in July.

Touch-and-Go Until Then

Congress took final action on the measure and sent it to the White House at 3:15 yesterday morning. Up until that time it was touch-and-go whether the Congress would be able to agree on any pay legislation.

The bill leaves much to be desired. It is inadequate, unfair and a hodge-podge. To put it bluntly, it's a lousy bill. The best thing that can be said for it is that it's better than nothing. Only postal employes are mildly happy with it. They were treated much better than other classes of Federal workers. The $450 each they will receive will offset, with previous increases, the 70 per cent increase in the cost of living since 1940 for most of them.

The flat $330 for classified, legislative and judicial employes will fail by about a 10 per cent average to offset soaring living costs of the last three years. This is rank discrimination.

The ceiling on classified salaries is raised from $10,000 to $10,330. This means that scores of top Federal officials will be paid less than many of their subordinates—an indefensible condition.

Higher Brackets Omitted

Stricken from the bill were higher salaries for cabinet members and other Federal officials, the proposed revision of the Classification Act, and many other valuable features in the original Senate bill.

However, the conferees promised that a revision of the salary-fixing act would be considered by the Congress early in January. The 8000 District government workers who are covered by that act will not get the $330 raise. They were exempted under an amendment sponsored by Senator Cain (R., Wash.) unless revenues are available to meet the extra cost.

The $450 postal and $330 classified raises were made permanent. If the Classification Act is overhauled, as promised, the employes covered by it will get another small raise early next year.

This is a roll call of members of Congress who must be given credit for literally snatching the pay bill from the jaws of defeat and pushing it through Congress in its dying hours:

Senator Taft of Ohio, the Senate GOP leader: The bill couldn't have possibly been enacted without his powerful and effective support. Late Saturday, after the Senate had enacted a more liberal and better pay bill, Taft personally went to the House to urge its lead-

D. C. Workers Hot Over Lack Of Pay Raise

Congress in Disfavor Because of Increase Given U. S. Aides

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Members of the Eightieth Congress were very unfavorite people yesterday with Washingtonians who work for the District government.

For District workers, both in classified and unclassified jobs, failed to get a $330 a year pay raise which was granted to Federal workers.

This came about because Congress had made a pay raise for District teachers, policemen and firemen contingent upon passage of the sales tax. And when the sales tax bill didn't pass, the teachers, policemen and firemen didn't get a raise.

Then, in a joint committee conference just before adjournment, Senate conferees insisted that the District pay levels should be kept equal and a raise for classified

8-Hour Blaze Destroys Castries, Island Capital

Castries, St. Lucia, Windward Islands, June 20 (A.P.).—A fire which raged for eight hours last night and early today virtually destroyed this city.

Castries, which has a population of 24,000, is the capital of this Caribbean island, a British possession.

Damage was estimated at several million dollars. Thousands of persons are homeless and there is an acute shortage of food. Power, electric light and telephone services are not functioning.

There were no casualties reported.

Legislators Quit Capitol In Big Hurry

Array of Trash Left After Long Session Before Adjournment

By Adrienne Tassler
Post Reporter

Like a mansion after a three-day binge—that was the Capitol yesterday.

Bleary-eyed legislators, tearing out of the historic building within minutes after the 7:14 a. m. adjournment of the Eightieth Congress, left in their wake an array of trash and left-overs piled in a heap. They literally dropped everything.

Empty beer cans, discarded whisky bottles, cigarette butts, old newspapers and overflowing spittoons were the "hangover" of the last hectic hours.

The famous marble corridors, usually polished to a gleam, wore a coating of tattle-tale gray. Dust lay heavy. Papers were strewn helter-skelter.

Attaches said the cleanup job—and it will evidently be one of their biggest—won't begin until this morning. Janitors, they explained, are off on Sunday.

Capitol guards, normally the building's biggest boosters, let their hair down long enough to admit to visitors—in the words of Pvt. Ronald LaBossiere of 112 3d st. ne.:

Pvt. Joseph Hansarick of 323 10th st. ne., another guard, took a

20 Killed, 41 Hurt as Blasts Rock Jewish Section in Cairo

Cairo, June 20 (A.P.).—Twenty persons were killed and 41 others wounded today by two heavy explosions in the Jewish quarter of Cairo's picturesque bazaar district.

Police found the bodies of 18 persons and two persons died later.

The explosions occurred about 150 yards apart and within 3 minutes of each other. They destroyed five houses and damaged about 20 others.

Saleh Murtaga Bey, subchief of public security, said tonight investigations thus far indicated the blasts were accidental and were caused by faulty storage of materials used by Jews in the manufacture of fireworks.

Earlier the Egyptian government explored the possibility the explosions were planned. Three hundred policemen surrounded the quarter. An Interior Ministry official said police arrested seven Jewish boys with a pushcart bearing an unattached time fuse and gelignite, an explosive.

Murtaga Bey said guards reported no one entered the district during the night, indicating explosives were not brought in from outside.

He said police were seeking five Moslems who lived in a Jewish-owned house where the first blast centered. Their bodies were not found among the ruins.

Premier Mahmoud Fahmy Nokrashy Pasha told newsmen:

"It has been proved that the explosions in the Jewish quarter came from inside the houses and not from the outside. That is why only a few houses were destroyed.

Five or six hours after the blast a crowd stopped an automobile on a street leading to the suburb of Abbassia. Shouting, "A Jew, a Jew," the crowd pulled the driver out, beat him and set fire to his car only to discover later that he was an Egyptian Moslem.

GOP Leaders Hold Bedraggled Legislators Until Measures Pass

By John Ball
Post Reporter

Republican leaders, spurred by urgent calls from their party's platform builders at Philadelphia, held Congress in session until 7:14 a. m. Sunday until a farm bill and housing measure could be passed. The House quit at 6:55 a. m.

The Senate session was the second longest in history, lasting 44 hours and 14 minutes. The longest was a Senate meeting of 54 hours, 10 minutes, in 1915 to pass a ship purchase bill.

A bedraggled group of lawmakers welcomed adjournment. Many hadn't had their clothes off since early Friday. Others hadn't had a wink of sleep.

Some Slept in Chairs

Some dropped off to sleep in their chairs. Others retired to darkened cloakrooms between votes and quorum calls for catnaps on cots. As time dragged on, tempers frayed, and spirited and angry exchanges took place sometimes between close friends.

As bleary-eyed senators struggled on with their work, crowds of visitors kept the galleries filled until after 4 o'clock. They were half-filled with onlookers until the gavel sounded.

The longest tussle was on a farm bill. Four times the conference committee met. Three times it broke up, announcing neither house would yield.

Finally, shortly after 6 o'clock a compromise was reached. The "compromise" was adoption of both measures. The House bill, providing for present support for farm prices at 90 per cent of parity, will be in effect until January 1, 1950. Then the Senate bill of lower, permanent price supports will go into effect.

Housing Bill Passes

A limited housing bill by Chairman Jesse Wolcott (R., Mich.) of the House Banking Committee, passed shortly before 6 a. m. It authorizes the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to establish a secondary market for GI home loan mortgages. Banks and other lending institutions can sell up to 25 per cent of their GI mortgages to an RFC subsidiary. It will allow RFC to buy 840 million dollars worth of such mortgages; it formerly was authorized to buy only 250 million.

The last act was Senate confirmation of Frieda B. Mennock, New York lawyer, to the Federal Communications Commission. She will be the first woman on that board. The confirmation was made over angry protests of Senator Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.).

Pleurisy Hits Navy Pilot of Plane With 15 Aboard

A District Navy pilot last night was stricken with pleurisy when his PBY transport plane with 15 persons aboard was about 150 miles from the Atlantic coast on a navigational flight from Bermuda to Washington.

Lieut. (j. g.) Minter Y. Aldridge, USNR, 25, of 1337 21st st. nw., became ill before the plane was due to land at Patuxent (Md.) Naval Air Base at 6:26 p. m., for customs inspection. Lieut. (j. g.) P. A. Hogue, USNR, 27, of Charlottesville, Va., copilot, took the controls and landed at Anacostia Naval Air Base after by-passing the landing at Patuxent.

Aldridge, who was graduated from Georgetown University Foreign Service School on June 7, was taken to the Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md., where his illness was diagnosed. Emergency treatment was given the pilot aboard the plane by Capt. Henry A. Monat, USNR, a private physician who lives at 2440 16th st. nw.

Strike Looms, Too

Rift Ends Vote Count In Ecuador

Quito, Ecuador, June 20 (U.P.).—Ecuadorean political leaders today faced a double crisis—a breakdown in the country's electoral machinery and the threat of an oilfield strike.

The supreme electoral tribunal, now recounting the votes cast in the June 6 presidential election, was disbanded temporarily when three of its seven members resigned, making it impossible to gather a quorum.

Simultaneously, employes of the Anglo-Ecuadorian Oil Co. voted to strike after company representatives rejected their demand for a daily wage increase amounting to about $1.

President Carlos J. Arosemena summoned a meeting of the nation's political leaders when the tribunal president and two other members resigned in protest against alleged partiality in the tribunal's decisions.

The resignations capped two stormy weeks in Ecuadorian political life, inspired mainly by disagreement as to whether former Ambassador to the United States Gala Plaza is Ecuador's President-elect.

Plaza already has been proclaimed victor but bickering in the tribunal over the validity of votes has at times reduced his lead over Conservative Candidate Manuel Elicio Flor to as little as 362 votes. At latest report Friday, Plaza was ahead by 7797 votes, with 68,151 to Flor's 60,354.

San Jose, Costa Rica, June 20 A.—A 10 per cent tax on private capital to raise reconstruction funds was announced last night by President Jose Figueres. Credit and banking are to be nationalized.

Figueres led the successful April revolt which overthrew the government of President Teodoro Picado.

Figueres maintained that banking should be controlled by the government as a public utility. He said private bankers helped foster "a very productive whisky importation."

He indicated a need for controlling the price of staples.

Figueres said a new revolution, supposed to start June 28, had been nipped by the arrest of its leaders.

Colombians Arming In Fear of Civil War

Quito, Ecuador, June 20 (U.P.).—The Colombian Conservative Party is arming in anticipation of a civil war, police said today.

Four Colombian officials, arrested Friday with a truckload of rifles and machineguns purchased here, told police they had been sent to Ecudor by the Conservatives to buy arms "for the civil war that is coming."

(Richard Greenough, correspondent for the London Daily Mail, reported Colombian Communists have scheduled an uprising for July 20. Colombian authorities rejected the report as "fantastic.")

Chile Acts to End Communist Agitation

Santiago, Chile, June 20 (U.P.).—The Chilean government acted today to suppress alleged country-wide agitation by the Communist Party.

The Prefect of Santiago reported that an unspecified number of Communist suspects had been arrested.

President Gabriel Gonzalez Videla announced Communists and "other political sectors" had prepared an "openly subversive" campaign in Chile.

Venezuela Alarmed By Disorder Threats

Caracas, Venezuela, June 20 (U.P.).—The cabinet, alarmed by threats of "public disorder," has voted emergency powers for President Romulo Gallegos, it was announced today.

The President was authorized to make arbitrary arrests when public order is threatened.

The threat to public order presumably was a development in the continuing dispute among several countries, each charging the others are plotting invasion.

Air Force Plans Combat Squadron Of Fastest Jets

By the United Press

The Air Force late next month will begin forming its first combat squadron of F-86A fighters, the fastest turbo-jet combat plane in the world.

Officials said the first two produced by the North American Aviation Corp., Inglewood, Calif., have been delivered, and are undergoing performance and gunnery tests.

The fighter, with swept-back wings and the most powerful jet engine built in this country, is designed for speeds of better than 650 miles an hour. The official world speed record, by the Navy's jet Skystreak, is 650.796 miles.

The fastest plane now used by the Air Force is the F-80 Lockheed Shooting Star. By use of a new type jet engine, its speed has been pushed from 550 to 600 miles an hour.

Jap Arrested Aiding Guerillas in Malaya

Kwala Lumpur, Malaya, June 20 (U.P.).—A former Japanese army officer was arrested today on charges of serving as a medical officer for Communist guerillas in the Federated Malay States.

The arrest was made under new emergency powers given police last week after alleged Communist gangsters murdered three British rubber planters and a Chinese contractor.

A large quantity of Japanese medical supplies and drugs were seized when the doctor was captured.

2 Ex-Officials Of Mussolini Set at Liberty

Rome, Italy, June 20 (U.P.).—Two former officials of Benito Mussolini's Fascist government have been granted amnesty from life prison sentences and are at liberty in Rome, it became known today.

Luigi Federzoni, once president of the Fascist Senate, and Edmondo Rossini, former Fascist trade union chief and minister of corporations, have been released.

Giuseppe Bottai, who originated some of the social and economic ideas embodied in the former Fascist state, also was reported to be on his way to Rome under amnesty. The return of the former Fascist leaders raises the legal point of whether they can reclaim their vast property holdings which were confiscated by the state.

Communist Boss Palmiro Togliatti lives in Federzoni's luxurious apartment in the Via Ferdinando.

Pietro Nenni, the pro-Communist Socialist leader, formerly occupied the palatial home of Giovanni Giurati, another former president of the Fascist Senate, but he moved out without a fight when Giurati returned and claimed the property.

Flood Waters Sweeping Over Eastern Tokyo

Tokyo, Japan, June 20 (U.P.).—Flood waters swept over eastern Tokyo today and officials said an estimated 1000 houses were inundated.

The flood resulted from heavy rains which are expected to continue for three or four more days.

Police said the worst damage is expected to occur in sections near the Sumida River, an estuary which intersects Tokyo from northwest to southeast. There was said to be no immediate danger to the city's water supply.

2 New Bishops Consecrated By Methodists

Albany, N. Y., June 20 (U.P.).—Two new bishops of the Methodist church were consecrated in solemn, traditional ceremonies at Trinity Methodist Church here today.

Eight other active and retired bishops took part in the colorful rites, ending the church's northeastern jurisdictional conference.

More than 1200 watched as the Rev. Dr. Lloyd C. Wicke, new Bishop of Pittsburgh, and Bishop John Wesley Lord, Westfield, N. J., who has been assigned to the Boston area, were consecrated.

U.S. Modifying ERP Currency Control Plans

By The Associated Press

Assistant Secretary of State Willard Thorp indicated yesterday in a cautiously worded statement that the United States has sharply modified its original proposals for controlling currency values among the Marshall Plan countries of western Europe.

The issue is understood to have been a difficult one in the negotiations now under way between the United States and the 16 Marshall Plan countries for master agreements covering the extension of American aid under the European recovery program.

About six weeks ago the United States distributed among the other countries tentative agreements to serve as a basis for negotiations. Almost immediately the British, Danish and other governments became concerned that the United States was asking the 16 countries to make commitments which were unacceptable, especially on currency controls and on tariffs.

British Alarmed

The British, particularly, were alarmed lest the United States demand some rights over the value of the pound sterling which might later give the European Recovery Administration in this country a legal basis for demanding that the value of the pound be slashed from its present government-set $4 level.

Thorp said, "At this point of the negotiations it can be said that in their present form the proposed agreements contain no provision with respect to exchange rates to which objection has been raised by any European government."

Since the earlier drafts of the agreements had raised objections, officials said that it was clear that the key words in Thorp's statement were the words "present form."

Thorp is the principal negotiator for the United States in the talks which have been going on behind closed doors here at the State Department for about two weeks.

Thorp's statement, which the State Department said was issued "in response to inquiries," follows:

"Tentative drafts of bilateral agreements under the Economic Cooperation Act were distributed over a month ago to the various European governments which are members of the organization for European economic cooperation. The purpose of these drafts was to provide a basis for discussion with the several governments. The discussions have been going forward actively but the negotiations have not been completed.

"Various analyses have appeared in the press based upon these early tentative drafts, noting particularly provisions relating to exchange rates. At this point of the negotiations it can be said that in their present form the proposed agreements contain no provision with respect to exchange rates to which objection has been raised by any European government."

Heretofore, no statements have been issued, and it appeared that the purpose of yesterday's release was to reassure European peoples that the United States was in fact working out cooperative and reasonable agreements with their representatives.

The agreements must be completed and signed by July 3. Otherwise the law requires that aid shipments be stopped to any country lacking an agreement.

Israel in Policy Shift Closes Borders to Arab Refugees

Tel Aviv, Israel, June 20 (NYHT).—The government of Israel, in an important shift of policy, has closed its borders to 300,000 Palestinian Arab refugees and will permit their return after a peace settlement only if they acknowledge the authority and sovereignty of the Jewish state, it was learned today.

Jewish leaders earlier made repeated appeals to their Arab neighbors to return to Israel and reclaim their property. Then, after five Arab armies had invaded Palestine, the Jews evolved a new plan.

The Israeli government decided no Arabs would be permitted to reenter Jewish territory until permanent peace treaties were signed. This was prompted by fear the Arabs might become a fifth column.

Arab property was no longer considered inviolate. In vacated Arab villages and in towns such as Haifa, Jaffa and Safad, official requisitioned of abandoned Arab holdings has begun on a considerable scale.

There will be careful screening in the postwar era of returning Arabs. Those considered potential troublemakers will be excluded, those accepted must agree to abide by Israel's laws and to acknowledge its authority.

Arabs remaining in the Jewish state—from 40,000 to 60,000—will be allowed to leave during the war if they wish under Red Cross supervision.

Elias Sasson, of the Israel foreign ministry, said the Arabs fled as part of a plan to create world sympathy and provide an excuse for an invasion of Palestine. Now they have become a heavy burden so the Arab states are telling them to return to get rid of them.

Dewey and Taft Give Their Views On Palestine

New York, June 20 (U.P.).—Two candidates for the Republican presidential nomination, Senator Robert Taft (R., Ohio), and Gov. Thomas Dewey of the York, today expressed their views on the Palestine situation.

In a message to the twenty-eighth annual national convention of the Mizrachi organization of America, Taft said the Administration's "unfortunate course" in a Palestine policy "has created a most dangerous situation" and that he believed "it may result in great tragedy to the Jews in Palestine."

Dewey said "the birth of Israel is a tribute to the perseverance of the Jewish people and to the sense of justice and fairness of the free nations of the world."

Group to Snub Health Service

Birmingham, England, June 20 (AP).—The British Dental Association's directors advised its members tonight to snub the Labor Government's national health service plan, scheduled to start July 5.

Members canvassed decided "by an overwhelming majority" not to participate. Two thirds of Britain's 12,000 dentists are members.

The association said members complained the plan offered no feasible provision for paying dentists.

The medical profession recently agreed to participate.

The plan provides cradle-to-grave health service free to every Briton. Doctors and dentists are to be paid by the state but will be free to carry on some private practice.

British Order Refugee Ships To Stay in Port

Haifa, Palestine, June 20 (AP).—The senior British naval officer here today ordered two Jewish refugee ships, the Pan York and Pan Crescent, not to leave this port.

The two vessels, flying Israeli flags, arrived yesterday without passengers from Cyprus to refit and refuel. Previously they had been intercepted at sea by the British navy for transporting uncertified refugees to Palestine and were taken to Cyprus. The Cyprus government later released them to Jewish authorities.

Gad Hilb of Haifa, 24, captain of the Pan York, who was arrested yesterday at gunpoint by the British on his arrival, will be tried tomorrow before a British military court here. He is charged with disobeying British navy orders and being unwilling to supply information to the captain of a British Commando party which boarded the ship to search it.

Kaifeng Loss Held Blow to Chinese Hopes

Nanking, June 20 (AP).—Communist capture of Kaifeng, capital of the central China Province of Honan, was admitted today by pro-government sources.

Official dispatches said 6000 Communists had stormed into the city this morning but contended the garrison was still resisting in three sections.

Loss of Kaifeng is a severe blow. A strong point on the east-west Lunghai railway, it had an arsenal that produced quantities of small arms.

Politically it has been known for centuries as "the capital of central China."

In North China, an official report said, Communists had started a siege of Chefoo, only North Shantung province port still in government hands.

Change of Duty Is Ordered for 3 Flag Officers

By The Associated Press

The Navy yesterday announced change of duty for three flag officers—Rear Admirals Allan R. McCann, Francis C. Denebrink and Roger W. Paine.

Admiral McCann, commander of the submarine force with the Pacific Fleet, will go on duty as a member of the general board of the Navy. His submarine command will be taken over by Rear Admiral Oswald S. Colclough, outgoing Judge Advocate General, as previously announced.

Admiral Denebrink will be detached in July as general inspector, to Pacific Fleet, for duty with the executive committee of the Munitions Board as the Navy member.

He will relieve Admiral Paine who will report to the commander of the western sea frontier as deputy general inspector for the chief of the Bureau of Ships. Last April it was announced that the present deputy general inspector, Rear Admiral Sherman S. Kennedy, is retiring.

De Gasperi Warns Red Groups To Disarm Quickly—or Else

Rome, June 20 (AP).—Premier Alcide De Gasperi warned Italy's leftist underground tonight to disarm quickly or face the consequences.

In a speech at Arezzo, the Italian leader disclosed that the government will submit a bill to parliament "under which those who give up their arms in two weeks will face no consequences."

"After that," De Gasperi added, "there will be serious penalties."

De Gasperi accused the Communists and their socialist allies of "seeking to substitute or set up by the side of parliament, other organs—namely so-called 'action committees'."

"Remembering the 'action committees' of Czechoslovakia," he warned, "we should take care they do not come here."

9 New Jap Holidays

Tokyo, June 20 (U.P.).—A Diet committee today approved a final plan for revising the Japanese calendar and stipulating nine new national holidays, including Constitution Day, May 3, and the Emperor's birthday, April 29. The date the Japanese peace treaty was signed will also be a new holiday.

Arrests by Soviet Inflame Austrians

Vienna, June 20 (NYHT).—Tension increased today in Austria as Socialist and Peoples Party leaders asked Chancellor Leopold Figl for permission to organize street demonstrations to protest the kidnapings and arrests of Austrian officials and private citizens by Soviet authorities.

The outburst against the Soviet Union was touched off yesterday when the Soviet high command admitted it had arrested Anton Marek, 60, a high-ranking Austrian police official, on charges of espionage against the Soviet Union, and charged that other Austrian officials were guilty of the same acts.

Allies Are Concerned

Western Allied officials watched the developments with concern, and wondered whether the Russians intend to continue arresting government officials. In a possible answer, the Red army newspaper, Oesterreichische Zeitung, today said, "The Soviet Union cannot tolerate any espionage . . . and will severely punish any and all culprits."

Papers on both sides hurled invective at each other today, and western observers believed the situation was rapidly reaching the point where the Russians either will have to make good on their threats of more arrests or back down completely with an accompanying loss of face.

Minister of the Interior Oskar Helmer, a Socialist, engaged tonight in a special act of defiance by going into the Soviet occupation zone to make a speech in which he charged that the Soviet action is "intolerable, and constitutes a flagrant blow in the face of even the most primtive Eastern illusions about legality."

Addressing a Socialist rally, Helmer said:

"If certain quarters believe, however, that they can change the course of the Austrian Ministry of the Interior's policy by wholesale charges of espionage, then I must tell them we will protect all concerned officials."

Catholics Bitter

Hungarian Primate Hits School Act

Budapest, Hungary, June 20 (U.P.).—Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty, outspoken Catholic primate of Hungary, today renewed his open defiance of government seizure of 4313 church schools. He declared the church never will relax its efforts to reclaim control of its educational system.

Most of the schools nationalized last Wednesday are Catholic. The others have been operated by Protestant churches. Sixty-eight per cent of all Hungarians are Catholic. Zoltan Tildy, Hungary's President, is a former Protestant minister.

A pastoral letter signed by Mindszenty and 15 bishops was read in all Catholic churches throughout Communist-dominated Hungary.

"We solemnly protest against this action in the name of the human rights of parents, in the name of the churches' right for education and in the name of the right and freedom of education," the letter said.

"We can never give up our right and we shall never cease to claim it back through legal means."

Priests read the letter to their congregations. They prefaced the text with a request that church members "express no opinion or feeling" after hearing the message.

The letter said the government promised to settle all questions between the church and the state after bilateral negotiations, but that the government had solved the nationalization issue according to its own will.

Sirens Drown Verdun Talk By De Gaulle

Paris, June 20 (NYHT).—Gen. Charles de Gaulle, speaking at Verdun, was drowned out today by all the city's air raid and fire sirens going off at once. Political rowdyism was blamed for interrupting the general's remarks commemorating the World War battle there 32 years ago.

Heretofore, De Gaulle's public appearances have been received respectfully by all Frenchmen.

The sirens started about five minutes after the general began, and continued for another 10. In riposte, De Gaulle declared at the end of his speech: "And now we are going to make our siren heard, the 'Marseillaise.'"

About 8000 heard the general reiterate many of his views. He declared again that the national assembly should dissolve itself and prepare the nation for a stronger executive. De Gaulle again said the six-power London accord would partition Germany. With the Soviet Union controlling two thirds of Europe, there was now a greater danger of Germany joining the Communist sphere, the general warned.

Thorez Renews Attack Against Marshall Plan

Paris, June 20 (U.P.).—Maurice Thorez, secretary general of the French Communist Party, today branded the London agreement on Germany "a new Munich," meaning sacrifice of security and reparations for France.

Renewing Communist attacks against the Marshall Plan, Thorez said, "We are right in protesting not against American aid, but against its conditions and in showing the Marshall Plan carries a threat to our economic and political independence and will liquidate reparations and pull France into the imperialistic camp of war against Russia and the new democracies."

Drive Started To End Europe Labor Unrest

Paris, June 20 (U.P.).—French and Belgian officials attempted today to end the labor unrest which kept several million workers idle yesterday, but no solution had been found for the crippling London dock strike.

Premier Robert Schuman's government prepared to launch a strong drive to cut living costs in France as an answer to labor's demands for a general 20 per cent wage increase, scheduled to be presented this week.

Belgian labor tension eased. Government officials said they hoped the nation's 250,000 workers would be ordered back to work in plants, factories, shipyards, arsenals and workshops tomorrow. The strikers are demanding a 5 per cent wage boost.

The British Labor Ministry said no end is in sight for the unofficial strike which has paralyzed the port of London. The dock workers walked out to protest disciplinary measures against 11 union members. Observers said the Schuman cabinet was bolstered by failure of all of France's five million Communist-led workers to heed an order for a one-hour strike yesterday.

U. N. Children's Fund Plagued By Milk Cost

Lake Success, June 20 (NYHT).—The United Nations is having trouble with the price of milk, it developed today.

The International Children's Emergency Fund, feeding nearly 5,000,000 youngsters abroad, told its executive board that inflation has slashed the effective purchasing power of the American dollar by more than 25 per cent in procuring the fund's most needed basic commodity.

"Roller-processed skim milk was procured last year for the fund by the U. S. Department of Agriculture at a support price of slightly less than 10 cents per pound," it was stated, "whereas none of this milk was offered to the Department of Agriculture this year at less than 13½ cents per pound, with little likelihood of a decrease in that price."

Await Opening of Border Closed by Russia

Russians Warn U. S. to Keep New Money Out of Berlin

Violations Charged

He said he would "not accept your reference that bad conditions of German economy in the western zones is an excuse for your separate action in destroying the unity of Germany."

He charged that the currency reform was a violation of four-power agreements on Germany.

A Berlin-bound military freight train was pulled back from the Soviet zone control point at Marienborn rather than permit the Russians to open its cars and inspect the cargo, American officals said.

If the rail freight stoppage continues, it will mean that 10,000 U. S. personnel in Berlin will have to be supplied by air.

A similar Russian demand for inspection stopped Allied passenger train service in April.

These Soviet restrictions have stopped Allied and German passenger travel from western Germany into the Soviet zone and have imposed rigid inspection on all land and freight traffic.

The U. S. military freight train which crossed the Soviet zone border tonight and then turned back was the first since the Russians imposed their new erstrictions Friday midnight.

"The Russians wanted to open the cars and inspect the cargo, whereas previously the presentation of cargo lists were sufficient," an American transport official said.

"We said, 'No.' We did not want the Russians to go that far. We thought they would be satisfied with inspecting train personnel in their search for currency. This issue has been reported to the highest levels for a decision."

The exchange of currency in the western zone today had the initial effect of disrupting black market trading—one of its major objectives.

Berlin, occupied by all four powers, remained under a Russian-imposed quarantine.

German police of the American zone arrested 80 persons trying to smuggle the old reichsmarks into the Russian zone. Some had as many as 80,000 marks. British officers filled a suitcase with about a half million confiscated old marks at Helmstedt, British outpost on the Soviet zonal borders. Some of the Germans gave up their marks to the British and then were unable to get Russian permission to enter the Soviet zone. The British refused to give them their money back.

Black market prices in western Germany usually were asking prices. Holders of the new money were hesitant to part with it.

The black market, in turn,, was trying to find out how much the new money is worth. Cigarettes still were the accepted gauge. Black marketeers asked from 5 to 8 new marks for a pack of American cigarettes, with few takers. One pack used to cost 100 old marks.

The money changing will continue tomorrow. In the exchange each German turned in 60 reichsmarks for 40 new Deutsche marks. A month from now he will receive 20 more.

What will happen to the rest of each German's old marks has not been announced. The only official indication came in announcements by the British and United States armies that their personnel in Germany must pay 30 cents in American money for each mark or give one pound sterling for 13 1-3 marks. The announcements did not specify the international exchange rate of the new mark or its commercial value.

Germans residing in the Soviet zone were the only travelers allowed by the Russians to enter their zone from British or American areas. The autobahn to Berlin remained closed to everybody else for the second straight day.

German newspapers in Berlin reported a distinguishing stamp was being placed on the old money which circulates legally in the east.

Child Whippings Blamed for Some Marital Troubles

London, June 20 (U.P.).—Psychiatrist Isaac Frost attributes marital frigidity, in some instances, to whippings received by the wife during her childhood.

Frost yesterday told a meeting of the Committee of Abolition of Corporal Punishment in Schools, that childhood whippings had a more lasting effect on girls and could bring about lifelong hatred of men.

Girls, he said, are more likely to feel insulted psychologically by a whipping, despite the fact that they are able to stand pain better than boys.

Abdullah Will Visit Egypt's King Farouk

Cairo, Egypt, June 20 (U.P.).—King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan will arrive here within two days for an official visit to Egypt's King Farouk, it was announced today.

Abdullah will stay for two days at the government's Zaafaran Palace. The purpose of the visit was not explained.

Turkey 'Livid With Emotion' At Bulgarian Frontier Raid

Istanbul, Turkey, June 20 (AP).—Resentment mounted today over a mysterious night raid by heavily armed Bulgarians on a Turkish frontier village.

The Foreign Office said only that the incident was unfortunate. Turkish newspapers described the nation as "livid with emotion." Relations between Turkey and Bulgaria have been tense.

Between 50 and 60 men descended on Kalkansogu, north of the Thracian Capital of Edirne early Friday. They carried modern automatic weapons and retreated only after a brief, but violent, engagement with Turkish troops. One Turk was killed. The Bulgarians left behind a wounded man who died.

Turkish Battery Fires On Official U. S. Plane

Ankara, Turkey, June 20 (U.P.)—A Turkish antiaircraft battery fired on an American Dakota transport over the Dardanelles last Thursday, the Turkish army announced today. The plane landed safely and no one was injured.

The Army said soldiers responsible for the incident will be court-martialed.

Turkish batteries opened fire on the plane while it was making an inspection tour of Turkish training centers. The aircraft was hit by one dud shell, which slightly damaged a wing.

The plane was piloted by Col. James Fergusson, chief of the Air Force training program and official of the American Aid Mission to Turkey.

Ex-D. C. Cop Assured of Oregon Post

Lindas

Lindas resigned January 1, 1945, as a sergeant on the force here to become editor and publisher of the Carlton News, a weekly paper in Carlton, Oreg., and to practice law. He later joined the Oregon State police force and in May, 1945, was named deputy district attorney in Clackamas.

Recently he became president of the county Republican club and took charge of arrangements for a visit by presidential candidate Thomas E. Dewey in Oregon City on May 4.

Lindas wrote to his sister, Mrs. Robert H. Howard, jr., of 66 V st. nw., about the visit, saying that his face "was red as an Oregon apple" when he introduced Dewey as "the Governor of Oregon." The New York Governor turned the error to advantage, though, by commenting that this was "the best compliment I've been paid out here."

At present, Lindas is unopposed for election as district attorney, having won the Republican primary. He received several Democratic write-in votes. No Democratic candidate was named, he wrote his sister.

Graduated from the Northwestern College of Law in Portland, he passed the bar in Oregon in 1927. He served on the District police force 12 years, 6 of them in the hack inspector's office. He is married and has two children.

Childless Are Barred By Father-Landlord

Pittsburgh, June 20 (AP).—William G. Tyus finally retaliated for the seven months his family lived in a hotel because landlords didn't like to rent to persons having children.

Tyus, a newspaper copyreader, with three young sons, got a house the only way he could. He bought one.

That was in 1945. Recently he accepted a new job in Detroit. He decided to rent his house—but with a difference.

GOP Chilly About Recall Of Congress

Philadelphia, June 20.—If the Eightieth Congress is called back into session to consider housing legislation or anything else, it will have to be President Truman who calls it.

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), sleepy-eyed from the Senate's 44-hour footrace to adjournment, practically said as much on arrival here today.

"I see no reason for Congress to be called back," he told reporters.

Only in "Emergency"

Congress adjourned Sunday morning subject to recall at any time by Republican leaders. The President, of course, has the constitutional right to call Congress back whenever he sees fit.

Taft, interviewed by the press under lights after a round with news photographers and a trunk-shaking bout with a live elephant, made it plain Republican leaders will take up their own option only in an "emergency."

He said he saw no particular point in returning to consider the Taft-Wagner-Ellender long-range housing measure "because the House has rejected the bill." Taft added he regarded that as an "unfortunate mistake" but a special session wouldn't necessarily remedy it.

A reporter asked the No. 2 GOP presidential contender what he would do about the civil rights program if he were elected.

"Will you have any more luck with it than you did as Senate leader?" was the query.

Taft replied that the civil rights program failed this session because filibuster threats posed the practical problem of "taking out a month of the Senate's time" to pass the bills.

"We weren't able to sacrifice that much time," he said. "The best time to develop a civil rights program is at the beginning of a session."

Ohio's favorite son at this convention said he hadn't yet had a glimpse of the preliminary draft of the Republican platform, but added:

"I think it will uphold the record of the Republican Congress. It may add other points we haven't dealt with."

A reporter asked if he favored a platform commitment for "further aid to Europe."

Taft said he'd rather not comment on that offhand.

Policeman Slayer Given Life Term In Philadelphia

Philadelphia, June 20 (AP).—A jury which had debated nearly 48 hours today convicted James F. Smith of first degree murder and fixed the penalty at life imprisonment.

Smith was charged in the slaying of Policeman Cecil Ingling in a supermarket holdup January 30, 1947. David Almeida and Edward Hough, named by the State as Smith's companions in the holdup, previously were convicted of first degree murder and sentenced to death in the electric chair.

The slain policeman's widow, Mrs. Helen Ingling, testified that Smith fired the fatal shot. Today she said:

"To think the actual killer got life and the other got the chair! It's not fair. They should both be given new trials."

Name 'Adolf' Unpopular

London, June 20 (U.P.).—The Sunday newspaper Reynolds News reported today that not a single boy born in Stuttgart, Germany, last year was named Adolf or Hermann. It said the most popular boy's name in Stuttgart now is Peter.

148 Planes Damaged by Hail; Tobacco Crop Reported Hurt

Georges and Anne Arundel Counties in the Mitchellville and Davidsonville areas reported severe damage to crops pelted by hailstones an inch and a half in diameter.

Police reported that many houses in Mitchellville had one or more windows broken.

The roof was reported blown off one Mitchellville home and show windows shattered at a nearby auto agency.

Side roads in Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties were reported washed out. In Fairfax County, Va., Telegraph rd., near Alexandria, was blocked from about 2 a. m. until after 10 a. m. when the railroad underpass became flooded and had to be pumped out. Wires and trees were whipped to the ground in many sections.

The Rockville weather station at the Courthouse reported 2.12 inches of rain from 4:30 p. m. Saturday until 8 a. m. yesterday.

Hugh Walker, an assistant jailer at the Montgomery County jail in Rockville reported the fabric top of his car sieved by hail.

Nearby beaches experienced heavy rains but little hail, and escaped damage.

At Galesville, Md., on the West River, heavy winds felled trees and wires but damage was slight.

The Weather Bureau predicted fair weather for today "becoming cloudy" at night. From Saturday midnight until 1:10 a. m. yesterday, .55 inches of rain had fallen in the District, it was reported.

Coal Board Calls Parley On Deadlock

By the United Press

President Truman's coal fact-finding board will summon John L. Lewis and the soft coal operators today to explain their deadlock threatening a Nation-wide strike next month.

Bakke

The three-member board met yesterday in the offices of Federal Mediation Director Cyrus S. Ching. It was announced afterward that hearings with the parties will begin at 2 p. m. today.

The board will decide whether the hearings should be public after discussing the question with both parties. The board is scheduled to report to Mr. Truman on Wednesday.

Informed sources said Ching is preparing a summary of his efforts to get the operators and Lewis to budge from their fixed positions which have deadlocked contract talks for two weeks. Ching abandoned mediation efforts last Friday and advised Mr. Truman a work stoppage is probable on June 30 after the present contract expires.

Lewis has refused to discuss a new 1948 contract until operators agree to okay immediate payments for distress benefits and pensions from the United Mine Workers' 1947 welfare and retirement fund. The fund, raised by 10 cents a ton levy on all coal mined, amounts to more than 40 million dollars.

The union president offered to extend the current contract provided operators agree to the welfare fund payments and to make any new contract raise retroactive to July 1, 1948.

Operators turned him down on all counts. They refused to okay payments from the welfare fund until the Federal courts decide who is eligible to receive them.

Pittsburgh, June 20 (AP).—A new wage agreement was reached tonight between the CIO United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union and the Westinghouse Electric Corp. It provides an 8 per cent wage increase for 70,000 production and salaried employes.

A joint statement by W. O. Lippman, Westinghouse vice president, and James J. Matles, U. E. representative, said the agreement is subject to approval of the U. E.-Westinghouse conference board and ratification by U. E. locals by July 1.

The agreement provides hourly employes with increases ranging from 9 to 16 cents per hour, plus an additional paid holiday—Washington's birthday—making a total o' seven paid holidays.

Salaried workers earning up to $625 a month also will receive the 8 per cent wage increase, plus ½ cent per hour to compensate them for the additional paid holiday granted hourly paid employes.

Lewis Paper Hits At Tobin, Teamsters

By The Associated Press

A John L. Lewis union newspaper hurled sharp criticism yesterday at Dan Tobin and his AFL Teamsters Union, to sharpen political differences between two of the Nation's biggest labor groups.

A miners union publication, the News, said the teamsters' boss was trying to blame Lewis for the Taft-Hartley Act to help elect President Truman.

"It certainly would appear," said the News, "that the 'nonpolitical' presidential trip to the West, and Mr. Tobin's efforts to hang the blame for the Taft-Hartley Act on the United Mine Workers of America, have a common purpose—the election of Harry Truman."

In Indianapolis, Lester Hunt, editor of the International Teamster and spokesman for Tobin, denied flatly that the teamster chieftain was supporting President Truman for reelection.

Printers Call Strike On Rochester Papers

Rochester, N. Y., June 20 (AP).—A strike against the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle and the Rochester Times-Union was authorized today by members of Local 15, International Typographical Union.

The newspapers are members of the Frank Gannett group.

Bert W. Kelley, local president, said the vote was 168 to 17. No date was set for a walkout.

The action brings to 14 the number of newspapers against which strikes have been authorized in eight cities in Upstate New York and New Jersey. Eleven are Gannett papers.

The clergyman will speak on "Psychological Crosscurrents in Europe Today." The meeting will be held in Friends Meeting House, 2111 Florida ave. nw.

Court to Rule On Union Fund Issue Today

By The Associated Press

The Supreme Court is expected to decide today whether labor unions may spend their money for political purposes in national elections.

The decision will have an important bearing on ambitious plans of unions for taking part in this year's Presidential campaign.

The law question to be decided is the constitutionality of the section of the Taft-Hartley Act which bars labor organizations from contributing or spending union funds for or against a candidate in a Federal election.

It was the first test case on any phase of the act to be argued before the justices. The case went before them on a Government appeal from a District of Columbia Federal Court ruling that the ban is unconstitutional. The District Court said the band abridges free speech, press and assembly.

The test was deliberately sought by the CIO and its president, Philip Murray. They ordered the distribution of CIO publications in a political race and the proceedings followed.

The Supreme Court also is expected to announce today whether it will rule later on validity of another section of the Taft-Hartley Act—the section requiring union officials to make affidavits that they are not Communists.

A special three-judge Federal Court here decided the section is valid. The CIO National Martime Union then asked the Supreme Court to review the special court's decision and rule that the requirement is unconstitutional.

If the high court grants the union's request, argument will be heard in the tribunal's new term beginning next October. The court is expected to adjourn late this afternoon to begin its summer vacation.

Rodney Nash Is General Counsel For Oil Company

Appointment of Rodney M. Nash as general counsel of Pan American Petroleum & Transport Co. of New York has been announced by D. J. Smith, president of the company.

Nash

Nash succeeds Thomas E. Sunderland, who was recently named general counsel of Standard Oil Co. (Ind). Nash was principal attorney for the United States Department of Labor from 1941 until 1942.

Before joining Pan American in October, 1945, Nash was with the law firm of Cravath, Swaine & Moore of New York City. He is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University, University of Cincinnati Law School and the University of Michigan.

D. C. Workers Hit Congress

District workers was cut out of District funds.

So nobody who works for the District gets a raise. This means about 18,000 persons who work for the District one way or another.

William G. Wilding, deputy budget officer, breaks them down into 7500 classified employes, 3000 police and firemen, 3500 school teachers, 3000 per diem laborers. The remainder, statutory employes, have their salaries fixed by law.

Those affected by the Congressional action yesterday had at least two causes to be hot under the collar. They didn't get a raise in the face of high living costs. And what's more, Federal workers—in many cases next door neighbors—did get a raise.

Spokesmen for affected groups had quite a bit to say about this state of affairs:

Mrs. Beatrice M. Reed, international representative for the United Public Workers (CIO) declared, "This is really a dirty trick on the part of Congress. It's just another reason why we need self-government.

"District employes have to meet the cost of living, which is higher here than in most States." Speaking specifically of the teachers' pay, Mrs. Reed declared the failure of Congress to act "isn't the end of our fight for teacher pay raises. I intend to fire the opening gun in a new fight this Thursday morning at 9:45 when I speak over WQQW."

Mrs. Catherine G. Hurley, president of the Teachers Union (CIO), said the action will "make for a mighty low standard of morale for teachers who must work next year under such inequitable economic conditions."

Robert Botkin, chairman of the Joint Legislative Council of D. C. Educational Organizations, declared the failure "was wholly the result of the sales tax, which Congress denied."

He pointed out that a special pay bill had been needed for the police and firemen and school teachers because custodial and clerical help in schools come under classified employes. If classified workers get a raise, and teachers don't, they might have a pay higher than that for the starting teacher, he explained.

"It is my personal reaction that Congress must take some action because of the hardship imposed on teachers at a time when the cost of living is still on the increase."

Corp. Ras Neilson, chairman of the legislative committee of the Policeman's Association, said he considered congressional action yesterday "one of the most unfortunate things the Congress has done." He pointed out that by granting raises to Federal workers, Congress had in effect passed legislation which would operate against District workers on cost of living items.

Another police officer, who declined to be quoted, pointed out that similar efforts for pay raises also had failed, and that he was sure the "policemen don't like it." He predicted that Congress would move early to correct the damage it has done, however, and that when it does approve a raise, its conditions will be made retroactive.

Officers and men at headquarters made their grumbles heard quite plainly. More reconciled, apparently, were members of the Park Police force, who suffered the same fate. Their pay scales are based on those in force for members of the Metropolitan Police Force.

Capt. Lester F. Price, president of Local 36, International Association of Firefighters, said he knew his men "feel bad" about the situation. He said he plans to start studying immediately what can be done to remedy the inequity.

One of the things Captain Price said he wants to find out is whether Congress will stay in adjournment or return soon after the political conventions have ended. If there is any chance for passage of the pay hike in a supplemental Congressional session, Price says he wants to take it.

James G. Yaden, international vice president of the American Federation of Government Employes, said his group "regretted" congressional action in cutting off the District people.

"We are pleased that on a national scale they gave us $330," he said, "but we don't think that is enough. And if living costs continue to rise, we'll be back thundering at their doorsteps again next year.

So far as District workers are concerned, said Yaden, "It wasn't their fault the sales tax didn't pass, and they shouldn't be punished because of its failure."

District government workers themselves were deeply concerned.

Said J. C. M. Abell, 101 4th st. ne., who handles mail in the collector of taxes office, "It's about the rawest deal I've seen in Washington in the last 50 years. I feel pretty strongly about it even though I'm retiring August 31. I would like to see the other people get it."

A. W. Baumbach, chief clerk of the Southeast shops, Division of Sanitation, who lives at 2114 N. Oakland st., Arlington, said, "I feel like the rest of the 18,000. I feel it's a shame. I'm sorry Congress didn't pass the sales tax so we could get the pay raise."

James M. Carden, safety inspector for the Minimum Wage Board, 2419 3d st. ne., said, "I don't think it's fair. We have to buy things, too. High prices certainly hit us as well as the Federal workers. It looks like they made sheep out of some and goats out of us."

Farm and Housing Measures Inched Through by Congress

teased Republicans about their desperate efforts to pass key bills. Just after 3 Senator Alben W. Barkley, Democratic leader, slowly arose to answer a plea by Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) to stay in session in the hope of getting a housing and a farm bill.

"In all my years in the Senate I have never seen such utter chaos and confusion in the closing hours of any Congress," he said.

"We've been here for 40 hours with constant promises of conferences always on the verge of doing something. In one room conferences are talking about a long-range farm bill. They might give birth at any moment. In another obstetrical ward they are talking about giving birth to a housing bill.

"Republican moguls in Philadelphia have just sent word that we must give them some kind of a housing bill. Anything with the word house in it.

"A long time ago there was a king who shouted 'a horse, a horse, my kingdom for a horse.' Now the cry from Philadelphia is 'a house, a house, anything for a house.'

"It's ridiculous. Every time a committee meets you go around waking people up."

It reminded him, he said, of another quotation, "from a great Latin scholar," he thought. He quoted:

"O tempora, O mores.' Oh, hell."

Although his sallies were greeted with laughter, it was quickly demonstrated they cut home. Acting Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.) snapped angrily at every later suggestion from Barkley. Ball arose to complain that he was "getting tired of criticism of Congress." It was such criticism, he averred, that made people think our system of Government is inefficient. That criticism leads to dictatorship and slavery, he said.

In passing the GI home loan bill, which Republicans insisted on calling a housing bill, the Senate yielded to Wolcott. The long-range Taft-Ellender-Wagner Act, which the Senate had passed earlier in the session, and which had the support of President Truman, was ditched by Wolcott. A substitute by Wolcott leaving out all public housing, was defeated when Senator Allen J. Ellender (D., La.) refused unanimous consent necessary for its consideration in the upper chamber. In objecting to the Wolcott measure, Ellender called the House Banking chairman a "little Ceasar" who had refused to permit the House to vote on the TEW bill.

The Senate in its final hours slapped down a bill to authorize a four-year program of incentive payments to mining companies at an annual cost of 80 million dollars. It was authored by Senator George W. Malone (R., Nev.) and supported by Senator Eugene D. Millikin (R., Colo.) and other Western Senators. This bill took up more Senate time than any other measure.

Supporters urged that the bill was necessary to defense stockpiling of critical metals. But a prolonged attack on it by Senator James P. Kem (R., Mo.) and Ball finally delayed action until too late to relay it to the House. Malone then withdrew it. Debate was marked by extreme bitterness between Millikin and Kem.

Other measures passed during the gruelling all-night session included:

1. A peacetime draft bill providing for inducting men between 19 and 25 for 21 months service, to begin in 90 days if President Truman proclaims voluntary recruiting has failed.

2. A $6,030,710,228 foreign aid spending bill, which represented a victory for Senate President Arthur H. Vandenberg and Senate Appropriations Chairman Styles Bridges over economy-minded Chairman John Taber (R., N. Y.) of the House Appropriations Committee. Senators of both parties praised the two. All but about 500 million dollars of the 2160 million Taber slashed from the bill was restored.

3. Appropriations totaling about 14 billion dollars for Government agencies.

4. A bill to admit 205,000 European displaced persons. Senate restrictions, charged by critics as discriminating against Jews and Catholics, were left in the bill.

5. Extending the terms of the five-man Atomic Energy Commission for two years in place of staggered terms of from one to five years.

6. A 450 million-dollar two-year Federal aid to States for highway building.

7. A bill giving permanent status to the Commodity Credit Corporation, with five directors, two from outside the Agriculture Department.

8. An appropriation of six million dollars for school districts struggling with swollen populations due to Government defense plants. This was passed over a spirited attack by Taft and Ball.

The Congress threw overboard such measures as a broad housing measure; the Mundt-Nixon Anti-Communist bill, and repeal of oleomargarine taxes.

The joint resolution to adjourn left recall of Congress up to four Republican leaders besides the constitutional power of President Truman to call a special session. The four are Senators Vandenberg and Wherry and Speaker Martin and House Leader Halleck.

The resolution calls for Congress to meet December 31. This brought Democratic Senate Leader Barkley to question why that date was chosen in view of the fact that the new Congress will convene January 3. Wherry explained that a Sunday and a holiday (New Year's) will intervene, so that January 3 probably will be actual meeting day.

Senate Policy Chief Taft predicted "more likehood" of Congress being called back before that date.

The candidate to be named at Philadelphia may have a lot to say about recall of Congress by the Republican leadership.

ers to accept the Senate bill without amendment. He failed but he tried hard.

Chairman Ed Rees of the House Civil Service Committee. This sincere and hard-working Congressman was in the middle of a torrid cross-fire. On one side was GOP House leaders who were fighting pay raises for classified employes, and opposite him was Rees' own conscience telling him that it would be an outrage to give raises to only one bloc of employes. Rees made the best out of a most uncomfortable situation.

Senator Herbert O'Conor (D., Md.) who is given credit for making persuasive last-minute appeal in the two-hour Senate-House conference that resulted in salaries for classified employes being raised from $300 to $330.

Senator Flanders (R., Vt.), who teamed up with Taft to defend and debate the pay bill on the Senate floor. He held out until the bitter end and won a moral victory to 'bend" the $10,000 ceiling up to $10,330. Also, he obtained the solemn promise of Civil Service leaders in both the House and the Senate to consider the much-needed Classificaton Act revision and other Federal pay reforms early next year. And he was successful in making the pay boost permanent for classified employes.

Senator Byrd (D., Va.) and House Majority Leader Charles Halleck were the big blocks that prevented Congress from enacting a better and more equitable pay bill.

Senator Byrd because he led the fight and offered the amendment that knocked out pay raises for Federal officials—a move that weakened the hand of the Senate conferees in dealing with the House.

And Halleck because he worked until the last to kill pay raises for classified, legislative and judicial employes. He even went to the Senate floor while the bill was being debated there to do what he could to further gut the bill.

The provision to raise salaries of Federal officials an average of $5000 a year would have cost only one million dollars in a bill that will cost about 500 million.

Salaries of most Federal officials were fixed from 10 to 25 years ago. This is perhaps the only group of people in or out of Government whose salaries haven't been changed in years. Scores of able and top-ranking people have left Government because they were unable to live on their salaries.

The Byrd maneuver was a double kick in the teeth to Federal officials: (1) it killed pay raises for them, and (2) it results in many of their subordinates being paid higher salaries than they receive.

Mr. Byrd has a reputation of being a staunch defender of economy in Government. It's freely predicted that his unhappy amendment will prove most costly and grossly extravagant by driving out of Government able people who could save millions by their know-how and experience.

Halleck, with the backing of many House GOP leaders, refused to allow the classified pay bill to come up for a vote in the House. The Senate then put in an average increase of $360 for this group. Halleck then insisted that the bill be sent to conference instead of accepting the Senate version as proposed by Taft and many House members.

Halleck gave flat orders to the GOP conferees on what they could accept—and his original instructions did not include pay raises for classified people. He preferred pay raises for postal employes and the postal rate increase which will raise about $125,000,000 a year beginning on January 1.

As the conference wore on and the conferees were threatening to break up in disagreement—which could easily have meant no pay bill—the House conferees were allowed to accept a $300 each pay boost for classified people. O'Conor swung into action and got the figure raised to $330. The conferees were given a 1 a. m. deadline to reach an agreement. They beat it by only 10 minutes—that's how close the pay came to being killed.

To repeat, the pay bill is better than nothing. But next year the Congress will have its hands full trying to work out fair salaries for the two million Government workers.

RETIREMENT: The Congress also sent to the White House the bill to permit Federal employes who investigate, apprehend and guard criminals to retire at 50 after 20 years of service.

Congress Acts Form New Foreign Policy

By John M. Hightower
Associated Press Staff Writer

With approval of European aid funds and a peacetime draft, Congress virtually completed a dramatic revision of American foreign policy to meet the world challenge of Soviet Russia.

The leaders of bipartisan foreign policy, Secretary of State Marshall and Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) were obviously highly pleased. Congress was working in its final hours when it voted to provide substantially all the funds that it had originally authorized for the foreign aid program.

Marshall and Vandenberg had been worried lest a failure of the United States to make good on what Europe regarded as a clear-cut promise should knock the props from under the whole foreign policy they have been building for the past 18 months.

Vigorous Action Seen

State Department officials predicted that the American Government now would be able to press forward even more vigorously with its plans for the cooperative reconstruction of Europe, politically, economically and militarily.

Senate and House finished work on the $6,030,710,228 aid appropriation early Sunday. The funds, if necessary, can all be spent within a 12-month period rather than the 13 months previously required by the House bill. The House vote was 319 to 62; Senate approval was by a voice vote.

Vandenberg called the final action on the appropriation "a splendid piece of constructive work." He said it is "fundamentally related to the peace of the earth and of the destiny of America in a free world of free men."

Marshall said he could not comment in detail until he had studied that legislation, but "the important point it seems to me is the fact that the funds can, if necessary, be expended in the 12 months period as originally contemplated."

Associates reported that Marshall was at least equally pleased that Congress had approved some kind of draft measure. This is so, they said, even though it was by no means what he has been advocating since his retirement as Chief of Staff of the wartime Army. He is the Nation's leading advocate of universal military training.

Both he and Undersecretary of State Lovett, as the chief operators of United States foreign policy, have been extremely anxious to obtain at this session legislation for building up this Nation's military might to equal somewhat its increased responsibilities as the world's greatest power. Thus both the draft, which Congress finally approved Saturday night, and the earlier 10 billion dollars appropriations for the expansion of the Army, Navy and Air Forces have been regarded at the State Department as essentially foreign policy legislation. A cardinal point of department policy is that the Russians will understand and the Western Europeans be reassured by the re-arming of America.

Every important issue which Marshall, in frequent conference with Vandenberg, proposed for Congress or which was requested by President Truman for carrying out foreign policy received favorable action from Congress. Congress did not always, however, give the foreign policy leaders all they wanted.

Issues Discussed

The issues were:

1. The European Recovery Program. Congress first authorized the four-year undertaking with authority for a 5300-million-dollar expenditure the first year. Finally, after a bitter fight led by Chairman Taber (R., N. Y.) of the House Appropriations Committee to cut the funds, Congress supplied substantially the money asked.

2. The Vandenberg resolution favoring formation of regional defense alliances. This was carried overwhelmingly in the Senate. It recorded that body as favoring American promotion of mutual defense assistance. This opens the way for American military support to Western Europe.

3. The Reciprocal Trade program extension. Authority for the President to negotiate further tariff reductions with other countries was continued for one year with restrictions of which the State Department disapproved. But officials now say, despite earlier bitter criticism of these restrictions, that at least the trade program will be kept alive as the keystone of the long-range American drive for freer trade.

4. Approval of United States membership in the World Health Organization. This is part of the policy of cooperation with other countries through the United Nations and its agencies.

The biggest issue on which the State Department failed to get action was a proposal for standardizing arms among all the American nations. This doubtless will be brought up again next session.

80th Congress Set Record For Work in Second Session

When the Eightieth Congress adjourned its second regular session yesterday, after one of the most hectic legislative logjams in history, it left behind a record of hard work.

A year ago, after ending its first regular session, its members smarted under criticism as a "do-nothing" Congress. But during the next two sessions, the brief special session last fall and the one ended yesterday, it rolled up a long list of measures. To date its over-all records includes:

Among domestic bills passed:

1. The Taft-Hartley Labor-Management Act.
2. An income tax reduction bill.
3. The portal-to-portal pay bill, cutting down claims for pay by employes from the time they reached their place of work until they left it.
4. A presidential succession bill, recommended by President Truman. This names the Speaker of the House next in line for the Presidency after the President and Vice President.
5. A rent control bill, permitting rent boosts in some cases and removing controls in others.
6. A bill freezing social security payroll taxes at 1 per cent.
7. A bill to permit war veterans to cash their terminal leave bonds.
8. A bill setting up a special commission to study the executive branch of the Government. This commission is directed to recommend consolidation and elimination of overlapping bureaus to provide more efficient and economical administration.

Measures Not Passed

It has failed to pass this domestic legislation:

1. Repeal of taxes on oleomargarine.
2. The Mundt-Nixon bill to curb the Communist Party.
3. A bill to increase the minimum wage.
4. Civil rights measures, such as outlawing the poll tax, an anti-lynching bill and prevention of racial discrimination.
5. Government health insurance.
6. A comprehensive housing bill.
7. Extension of social security to millions of workers not now covered, such as farm workers, commission salesmen, small businessmen such as barbers, plumbers, etc.
8. Federal aid to education.
9. The highly controversial bill to give States rights to oil and minerals in their coastal waters.
10. The St. Lawrence Seaway bill.

International Record

Its record on international questions included passage of such important measures as:

1. The Economic Cooperation Administration (Marshall Plan) to aid European and Asiatic economic, industrial and agricultural recovery.
2. An appropriation bill providing more than six billion dollars for the above.
3. A bill for military aid to Greece and Turkey.
4. American participation in the International Refugee Organization.
5. Extension of Reciprocal Trade Agreements for one year, with some changes.
6. A bill giving legal status to the "Voice of America" program to acquaint foreign peoples with the United States.
7. The Senate ratified peace treaties with Italy, Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania.
8. The Senate passed a resolution advising the President to work out agreements with other nations for this country's safety, providing they meet Senate approval.

Defense Measures Voted

It also passed military defense measures of the first magnitude. These included:

1. The Armed Services Unification Act.
2. A Selective Service bill.

It refused to pass Universal Military Training.

It sets a near record for overriding Presidential vetoes. These included:

1. Tax reduction.
2. The Taft-Hartley Act.
3. Social Security benefits bill.
4. A railroad rate agreement (Bulwinkle) bill.
5. A bill transferring the United States Employment Service from the Labor Department to the Federal Security Agency.
6. A bill exempting news vendors from social security taxes.

It also submitted a constitutional amendment to the States to limit the President to two full terms.

quick look into the House chamber and quipped:

"It smells like an old barroom."

But some people were too busy to notice—or, perhaps, too weary. Minority Leader Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.), obviously rushed from the marathon talk-fest, tidied his desk in preparation for the long-waited trip back home.

"Damn Republicans keeping me here all night," he muttered, as a reporter and photographer swept into his private office. "I've got to get out of this place."

Asked whether he had remained for the full postmidnight sessions, he growled:

"You don't think I'd go out and leave a gang of cutthroats like that."

"Nick," Rayburn's chauffeur, who looked somewhat droopy himself, revealed later that he'd taken the tired legislator home at 7 a. m., only to return him to the Hill at 11 o'clock.

Not many Congressmen were about. Most offices were shut up tight. In the Senate Appropriations Committee rooms, apparently open for a brief span, the phones buzzed. But the normal complement of secretaries and clerks were nowhere to be seen.

Andrew Harrison, a congressional messenger of 5318 East Capitol st., delivering his last batch of congressional records, paused long enough to remark:

"Oh, my soul, this place ain't never been this dirty!"

Gerald Patterson of 1211 Simms pl. ne., a George Washington University student, who doubles as a Capitol elevator operator, said:

"It sure has lost something—namely, a lot of people."

He admitted it was a "big relief" to have them gone.

GOP Platform May Leave Out Old Standby Planks on Women

By Christine Sadler Coe

Philadelphia, June 20.—One way the Republicans may try to meet their goal of a short, 1500-word platform for 1948, is by skipping the old standby planks which mention women as specific problems.

Some women delegates to the GOP convention would prefer this in any event and chances for it are enhanced by the fact that if women are included by sex at all it will take two planks to make them happy; one indorsing the equal rights amendment and the other the principle of equal pay for equal work.

Mary Donlon, chairman of the Workmen's Compensation Board in New York State, and of the GOP's subcommittee on labor and welfare, believes it is time to drop the woman's angle entirely.

"It's a sign of political maturity, I think, that women coming before resolutions groups at this convention are speaking more as citizens and less as women. No one appearing before our committee—which heard witnesses interested in labor, social security, health and housing—spoke just for women alone. Certainly these are problems which should interest men and women equally."

Calls It Time Wasted

Dr. Louise A. Young, who represented the National Committee on the Status of Women before the subcommittee on general governmental affairs, declared she had rather have women omitted from the platform than have the equal rights amendment mentioned again. She said thousands of valuable work hours have been wasted on this subject by Congress, political conventions and women themselves.

"Women are interested in other things these days and my group had rather have time spent on more important subjects such as the state of the world," she assured Deane C. Davis, Vermont delegate who heads this subcommittee.

Not all the women who appeared before the Davis group felt as Dr. Young did, however. Representatives of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs and the Woman's Party urged that the amendment be indorsed in the platform and the American Association of University Women supported a plank on equal pay for equal work.

Voters League Not Represented

For the first time in its 28 years of existence the National League of Women Voters does not have a representative at the convention. Its strategy this year is to work with delegates before they leave their home States, in the belief this grass roots approach will be more effective in the long run. Thirty-five State delegations have been briefed on planks which the league would like to have in the platform. One of them calls for abolition of discrimination against women in the administration of Government. Others ask for strong and consistent support of the United Nations, admission of displaced persons, and a scientific reduction in tariff barriers to world trade.

A plank approving Federal aid for education was asked by the National Education Association through Mrs. Ruth Evans of Colorado, a teacher who is also a delegate to the convention.

Mrs. Joseph Willen, speaking for the National Council of Jewish Women in its first appearance at a national political convention, asked among other things that the platform include indorsement of full economic, military and moral support for the United Nations; recognition of the new state of Israel; slum clearance, expansion of social security, civil rights and implementation of the report of the President's Economic Advisory Council in regard to price and rent control.

"The principle of equality of legal status for women and equal pay for equal work should be adopted," Mrs. Willen concluded. "But the protections which Federal and State laws offer women should not be eliminated."

The American Parents' Committee through its president, George J. Hecht, urged a child welfare plank "which cuts across all special interests." Such a plank, he said, would recognize the need for Federal aid to education.

"Knowing that the Republican Party has always had an outstanding record for economy in Government operation, I would like to point out an obvious fact—that true economy cannot be measured by a dollar saved today which may cost 10 tomorrow. The Federal Government appropriates many millions annually to help the State assist farmers. Are cattle and crops more important than children to Uncle Sam?"

Hecht also urged strong support for a full school lunch program—a subject which Mrs. Walter W. Mallory, president of the Women's National Republican Club, covered in her recommendations by declaring that the "States, rather than the Federal Government, should be primarily responsible for school lunches."

80th Congress Falls Short Of Economy Goal by Billion

By the Associated Press

House Appropriations Committee figures showed yesterday that the second session of the Eightieth Congress fell almost a billion dollars short of its economy goal.

The legislative budget adopted early this year called for a reduction totaling $2,800,000,000 in appropriations made during this session of Congress.

With the last of the money bills out of the way, appropriations approved amounted to $34,990,983,929.

These were made on the basis of presidential budget requests for $36,957,718,221 on the bills involved.

Based on tentative House Appropriations Committee's figures, here are the amounts requested by President Truman and the amounts voted by Congress, with both figures including cash and contract authorizations:

Rep. Harvey to Fight Education Bill

By The Associated Press

Representative Harvey (R., Ind.) said yesterday that he will make a fight against Federal aid for education in his reelection campaign.

The Senate passed a bill to provide 300 million dollars annually to supplement the educational funds of the States but the legislation was not brought before the House for a vote.

Harvey said in a statement that "a high-powered lobby organization, the National Education Association, is seeking to saddle the people with a new army of Washington bureaucrats."

In his coming campaign, he said, "I shall neglect no opportunity to put the issue squarely before the public."

Harvey said a poll he has made in his district "indicates a close division of opinion" over Federal aid for education. But he added he is confident his constituents, by and large, "are fed up with Federal encroachment on State and local governments."

"I am certain," he said, "that the latest Federal aid scheme should be fully explained to every person who is finding the cost of Government a serious factor in his cost of living."

Army May Induct 200,000 In First 12 Months of Draft

tive, which is as soon as President Truman signs it.

The Army began making quiet studies of draftee training problems several months ago when the first formal proposals for renewal of selective service began to appear on Capitol Hill. The Army Department directed commanders of the various armies in the United States to make surveys of wartime camps. Subsequently, the Army arrested plans to dispose of almost a score of surplus camps.

This does not mean all those camps will be needed, but the Army now is deciding which ones it wants. The new postwar draftees probably will be taken individually into Regular Army divisions and trained by those divisions. Divisions are located at Camps Ord, Calif.; Campbell, Ky.; Hood, Tex.; Dix, New Jersey, and Jackson, S. C.; special training divisions were reactivated recently for Dix and Ord.

It is not yet decided whether raw draftees will be assigned to so called "striking divisions" such as the Second Infantry and Eighty-second Airborne which comprise the Army's mobile force ready for instant use. (The Second Infantry is based in Washington, the Eighty-second in North Carolina.

Because virtually all veterans will be exempted, the Army must plan on training the new groups of inductees from scratch, starting with basic training, then progressing into work with small units and finally with the big organizations.

President Needs Time to Act Upon Flood of Bills

It probably will be a few days before President Truman gets around to acting upon the flood of important bills which Congress dumped upon him in the closing hours of the session.

The White House said that Mr. Truman last night signed into law all the bills which had reached him, but that such measures as the draft, displaced persons, farm program, and foreign-aid appropriations bills—approved either last night or early this morning—had not yet reached him.

Dewey, Taft Arrive At GOP Convention

cept the nomination if offered to him.

"When and if the convention runs into a deadlock, that is the time MacArthur will most likely step in and get the nomination," he said. "It may be the sixth or the twenty-fifth ballot," Wainwright suggested.

Girls Decorate Lapels

Philadelphia, ordinarily a quiet town on the Sabbath, was in a hurly-burly as the delegates and the candidates and their camp followers poured in today. Flags and banners were out on Broad and Chestnut sts. Pretty girls with baskets descended on every lapel to decorate it with a campaign button.

"Dewey in 1948," said placards; "Win With Taft," "The Man the People Want" (Stassen), and 'Van's the Man."

Missouri Republicans were chanting, "Bring Harry Home."

The best laugh of the day came at Governor Warren's press conference. In response to a question, the candidate from the Golden State said he would "make no deal with anyone in a smoke-filled room."

"Do you mean that no one can smoke in the room where you make a deal?" a loud-voiced man asked.

No Comment on Vandenberg

Dewey and Taft both declined to comment on yesterday's statement by Gov. Kim Sigler of Michigan that U. S. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg was "available" for the presidential nomination.

Vandenberg is regarded as a formidable threat to both of them.

Taft's remark—that the race was between himself and Dewey—was at least an indirect declaration that he didn't think Vandenberg would ever become anything more than a threat.

The Michigan law-maker is expected in Philadelphia tomorrow, when the convention is called to order in the Municipal Auditorium.

Governor and Mrs. Dewey arrived in front of the Bellevue-Stratford a little after noon in a sleek limousine. A chauffeur was at the wheel and a New York State trooper sat beside him.

Police had difficulty in clearing a way for them through the crowd that gathered before the hotel on Broad st.

Senator and Mrs. Taft drove up to the Benjamin Franklin Hotel in a Plymouth sedan. The Ohio lawmaker was at the wheel, with the redoubtable Martha beside him.

He had driven all the way up from Washington, although he got in only 30 minutes sleep after an all-night session of Congress.

The Dewey and Taft news conference also presented a contrast.

The New Yorker held his in his $1000-a-day ballroom of the Bellevue-Stratford. Something like 500 reporters turned out to hear him. It was the biggest news conference that he had ever confronted, possibly the biggest that any candidate ever confronted.

Senator Taft, holding forth in the Crystal Room of the Benjamin Franklin, looked worn after his grueling experience on Capitol Hill.

He and his manager, Representative Clarence Brown of Ohio, sat on a pink sofa while reporters crowded into the room. The turnout was smaller than at Dewey's conference. It was doubtful, however, if many more could have been accommodated.

There was a wierd prologue.

Two enlarged photographs of Taft, which had been hanging above the pink sofa, tumbled down. One landed on the bald head of Taft himself and the other bounced on the well-thatched skull of Brown.

Amidst the laughter that followed a mahout came up with Little Eva, a runt elephant bearing a blanket with the slogan: "Win with Taft."

The Kleig lights were blazing down on the weary Ohioan and newsreel cameramen were yelling at him for some action.

Elephant "His Baby"

"Shake it again," said a cameraman. "It's your baby."

Taft did as told.

There were no incidents at Governor Dewey's session with the press and radio. Everything was serene, in keeping with the New Yorker's own serenity.

"Are you available for the Presidency?" he was asked by Walker Buel of the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"For the benefit of the gentleman from Ohio," said Dewey, "the answer is yes."

Then came questions the answers to which, added up, meant that he expected to be nominated and on an early ballot.

Governor Dewey earlier had attended a luncheon in honor of Senator Edward Martin of Pennsylvania and Gov. James H. Duff of Pennsylvania.

He was asked if he had met Duff, who is known to be vigorously opposed to him and to favor Senator Vandenberg.

"We had a very pleasant luncheon," Dewey said. "Politics were discussed, perhaps, but not in my presence."

What did he think of the record of Congress?

"I think the Congress in the last two years has made a remarkable record," he replied. "I'm very proud of it."

He praised what it had done in enacting legislation to help the free nations of the world, saying it was the most momentous program of its kind in peacetime history.

Moreover, he said, Republicans in and out of Congress had prodded the Truman Administration and had forced it to stop "wobbling" and adopt a realistic policy in foreign affairs.

He also commended Congress for making good in its promise to bring about a better balance between management and labor.

On the question of civil rights, he said the next Republican administration would take care of that.

Was he satisfied with the draft law just enacted by Congress?

"I don't think anybody was," he replied. "But it was an excellent job of compromise. I am delighted that it was passed."

"Do you think it is satisfactory from a defense point of view?"

"We'll have to wait and see."

What did he think of President Truman's so-called "nonpolitical tour?"

Dewey said he thought that some god comment had already been made on that. Then, borrowing from Senator Vandenberg, he said that Mr. Truman's sense of duty should have kept him in Washington, where he was more useful.

The New York Governor was applauded by some at the end, an unusual sound at a news conference.

No Deal With Stassen

Senator Taft, who saw reporters an hour later, said that he expected to have something like 300 votes on the first ballot—248 shy of the majority needed to win.

On what ballot did he expect to win?

He said that was a gambling proposition, and a moment later he made his statement about the race being between himself and Dewey, with victory likely to ride on his own banner.

Had he entered into a "deal" with Harold E. Stassen?

"Mr. Stassen and myself have not been in conference," he said, with some feeling, "and there is no bargain in prospect."

Was it true that Senator Vandenberg had once said he was "for" him?

He said that, no, it was not true. However, Vandenberg had expressed friendliness.

Doesn't Exclude Others

Asked to comment on Governor Sigler's statement about Vandenberg's availability, Taft said he made it a point not to comment on other candidates.

He was asked whether he meant to exclude the chances of all others when he said the race was between himself and Dewey.

"No," he said, "but the probability is that it will be Dewey or myself."

Would he throw his strength to Dewey if he couldn't make it himself?

"I expect to make it," he said, smiling.

"What arguments are you going to use to persuade enough delegates that you ought to be the nominee?" a reporter asked.

At this point, Representative Brown intervened and said it was the job of Taft's managers to make the arguments.

"We've got a million of them," he said.

The opening session of the convention Monday morning will be a routine affair with addresses of welcome by Governor Duff and others.

At Monday night's session, Gov. Dwight Green of Illinois will deliver the keynote address and will be followed on the rostrum by glamorous Clare Booth Luce.

Balloting on the nomination for President is not expected to get under way until Thursday.

Statement of Vandenberg's 'Availability' Surprises Politicos, Stirs Up Speculation

By a Post Reporter

Philadelphia, Pa., June 20.—What was Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg's motive in permitting a spokesman to say he was "available for the Republican Presidential nomination."

There are two schools of thought here on this question, and both were sounding off today in advance of the 1948 GOP convention.

One held that Vandenberg was hot after the great prize, regardless of his coyness in the past.

The other argued that he simply wanted to be able to wield power here in Philadelphia and to have a voice in the selection of the nominee: in short, to be a Warwick.

Whichever school is right, there is no question but the announcement of Governor Kim Sigler about Vandenberg's being "available" caused a surprise among many politicos here.

The first general reaction was that it had hurt the chance of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, front runner in the race for the nomination.

That is still the view of those who believe that Vandenberg has thrown his hat in the ring by proxy and is now really trying to reach the White House.

Those who oppose this view—and they include men who know Vandenberg well—think that his reasoning went something like this:

If he failed to give any encouragement to his supporters there was danger that the boom for him would collapse. That would rob him of much of the influence he might otherwise have here in Philadelphia.

Senator Vandenberg (so this theory goes) has been worried about the outbreak of isolationism or nationalism in the Republican Party, as manifested in the House on the European relief appropriation bill. He also has been worried lest the delegates in Philadelphia get it into their heads that they can "win with anybody" in 1948.

What Vandenberg is really out to do, it is argued, is to exert all of his power and influence to see that the national convention picks a good man and takes a courageous stand on foreign policy in the GOP platform.

Virginia's Delegates Organize, Steer Clear of Ballot Talk

They steered clear of discussing how they will cast their 21 votes when balloting starts for a presidential nominee.

Several told reporters later that the count on the first roll call probably will be about 15 or 16 votes for Dewey and the remainder for Taft.

Business transacted at today's meeting was limited largely to passing out credentials and to the adoption of a resolution recommending reelection of the present national committeeman and committeewoman from Virginia—Curtis M. Dozier, sr., of Richmond, and Mrs. William H. Logan of Woodstock.

Delegate-at-Large Robert H. Woods of Pearisburg was named as chairman of the Virginia group.

Named to the credentials committee was Fred W. McWane of Lynchburg. Miss Phyllis A. Otey of Richmond and E. Hagen Richmond of Gate City were formally chosen to serve on the resolutions committee.

Pa. to Stick With Martin

Philadelphia, June 20 (AP).—The key Pennsylvania delegation decided tonight to stick with its "favorite son," Senator Edward Martin, for an indefinite number of ballots at the Republican National Convention.

The decision was reached in a brief session with only one delegate, Estras Howell of Scranton, Pa., objecting. The delegation, with only a few scattered noes, adopted a resolution directing Gov. James H. Duff, the delegation chairman, to cast 72 votes for Martin.

(The delegation has 73 votes. The other vote will be cast by Howell for Senator Vandenberg.)

Taft-Stassen Deal Denied by McCarthy

Philadelphia, June 20 (AP).—Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) told 19 Stassen-pledged Wisconsin delegates today there "absolutely is no Taft-Stassen deal" on the fire.

The Stassen delegates were instructed at their first organizational meeting to beat the bushes in other delegations for more Stassen votes. They will meet again tomorrow 2:30 (EST).

Eight MacArthur-pledged delegates from Wisconsin's unit of 27 did not meet formally. Both groups of the divided delegation are expected to stick to their respective candidates, delegates said.

Delegation Chairman Walter J. Kohler jr. of Kohler, Wis., made public McCarthy's statement after the closed meeting of the Stassen delegates.

GOP Finishes Platform Draft

completely with Vandenberg's foreign policy views, are legislators like Senators C. Wayland Brooks (Ill.) and E. H. Moore (Okla.), and Representative Forest A. Harness (Ind.) They may have their say tomorrow in the full committee, which Lodge described as a wide-open forum.

Perhaps fraught with more controversy than any other plank is th party's civil rights stand. Faced with a "Dixie rebellion" of its own, a Republican resolutions subcommitee, recommended a milder plank than expected.

The text of the civil rights plank, as it was favorably reported by the Civil Rights Subcommittee, but still subject to drafting committee revisions:

"Lynching—Lynching or any other form of mob violence is a hideous crime and is a disgrace to any community in which it takes place and to any State which does not use its power to the utmost to prevent it and to punish those responsible for it. Mob rule is anarchy. We advocate whatever Federal legislation is necessary to end this infamy.

Equality of Opportunity

"Equality of opportunity—One of the basic principles of this Republic is the equality of all individuals in their right of life. Thomas Jefferson enunciated this principle in the Declaration of Independence. It was vindicated on the field of battle and became the cornerstone of this Republic. This right of equal opportunity to work and to advance in life should never be limited to any individual because of race, religion or sex. We favor the enactment and just enforcement of such Federal legislation as may be necessary to maintain this right at all times in every part of the Republic.

"Poll Tax—We favor the abolition of the poll tax. The right of suffrage is a right whose exercise by all qualified citizens is so vital to the functioning of our Government that it's exercise should not be taxed.

"Segregation—We are opposed posed to the idea of segregation to the idea of segregation in the armed forces of the United States."

The nine subcommittees prepared all told 4000 words in platform recommendations. Lodge, who had hoped for 15000 words of crip phrasing, succeeded yesterday in blue-penciling it down to 2400 words.

The first 400 words, Lodge said, sum up the highlights in a Declaration of Principles that can be speedily digested. The 2000-word body of the document covers in more detaily some 80 separate issues discussed.

Communications Union May Picket Convention

New York, June 20 (U.P.).—The American Communications Association (CIO) tonight threatened to set up picket lines at the Republican National Convention when it opens in Philadelphia tomorrow.

35-Member New Jersey Delegation Backs Driscoll

Blow To D. C. Employes

The failure of the Senate to pass the 2 per cent District sales tax bill has knocked out all legislation to raise the pay of classified District employes, as well as District teachers, policemen and firemen. The cost of living in this city is just as high for men and women on the District Government's payroll as it is for resident Federal employes who are to receive pay increases. Their need for pay relief is just as urgent, and the failure of Congress to recognize that need is utterly indefensible. Such outrageous discrimination cannot be excused on the ground of lack of revenue. For if pay increases are justified—as they are—it is the duty of Congress to find the revenue required for that purpose as well as for all other legitimate and essential District outlays of whatever nature.

The initial mistake of strategy lay in linking District employe pay increases to sales tax legislation. As a result, the successful filibuster of Senator Johnston of South Carolina, arch foe of sales taxation, which prevented Senate action on the sales tax, blocked passage of the District pay increase bills. For, in the absence of the sales tax, unduly heavy increases in taxes on real property would have been necessary to cover budgetary deficits from increases in salaries. Consequently, not only the sales tax but also the salary increases went by the board in the last-minute adjournment rush.

District employes who are the victims of this sort of irresponsible jockeying with the District's finances have the sympathy of their fellow citizens. Unfortunately, that sympathy cannot find political expression in this voteless community. If it could, Congress would hardly dare to deal so unjustly with the employes of its subject District government.

Results At Geneva

It is far too early to forecast with any degree of perspective what will be the practical results of the United Nations Conference of Freedom of Information which met at Geneva from March 23 to April 21. The wonder is not that so little was done, but that there was so much substantial agreement among delegates of disparate backgrounds. Representatives of 54 nations sat down to probe into the basic stuff of a freedom which heretofore has had only the haziest sort of recognition. What emerged was the concept of freedom of information as a fundamental human right over and above individual governmental policies. This is a concept that will take time to jell, but it is an impressive start.

The conference came forward with three draft international conventions, two articles for inclusion in the U. N. Declaration and Covenant on Human Rights and 43 resolutions. It is significant that the United States delegation was able to support all but a handful of the proposals adopted, and on only one point did the conference vote to accept a statement seriously contrary to American views. This was the Indian amendment to the British convention, an amendment which admits the right of a government to impose penalties on the press for systematic distortion of news. None of the conventions can become binding, of course, until ratified by individual governments; and even then the conventions are permissive rather than mandatory.

In no small degree the tack taken by the conference represents a victory for American attitudes on press freedom. The accent was gradually shifted from responsibilities of the press, assiduously promoted by the Soviet bloc, to the rights of peoples to receive unhampered information. While recognizing the dangers in abuses by the press, the American delegation took the stand that the greater danger was in governmental control and that responsibility is itself the outgrowth of an uncontrolled press. The American convention, adopted by a large vote, recognizes as unrestricted the right of correspondents to gather and transmit news, calls for freedom of entry for correspondents and sharply defines and limits the justifications for censorship. Among the other matters which the conference explored was world availability of newsprint. It is a somewhat sobering thought in this connection that the United States alone consumes 61 per cent of the world supply, and that a mere one tenth of the amount used annually by one large American newspaper would relieve the most critical deficiencies in 12 nations. The conference recommended no concrete corrective, but did observe with aptness that a free press cannot thrive without newsprint.

Perhaps the most surprising and meaningful accomplishment was the crystallization of Western ideas of free information against the positive "duties" of the press vociferously espoused by the Soviet bloc. The guaranties formulated at Geneva, to be sure, require more thought and exploration by leaders in media of information in individual countries, and implementation can come about only as a result of such thought. But the very framing of these principles cannot but contribute to a greater union of free world opinion which even iron curtains will flout with increasing difficulty.

NLRB's Jurisdiction

Chairman Herzog and General Counsel Denham of the NLRB disagree about the jurisdictional scope of the board's authority under the Taft-Hartley Act. Mr. Denham thinks the board should extend the protection of the Taft-Hartley Act to cover small businesses if their operations affect interstate commerce even to a limited extent. "A secondary boycott," he says, "hurts a small businessman just as much as a large one. He has just as much right to protection. This is the only tribunal that can do anything for him. I don't know how he can be denied his day in court."

The trouble with this argument is that, carried to its logical conclusion, it breaks down customary distinctions between business engaged in interstate commerce and local businesses subject to State control. Mr. Denham is prepared, for instance, to assume jurisdiction over hotels, restaurants and other local enterprises by so expanding the definition of interstate commerce as to include all sorts of activities hitherto regarded as intrastate in character. It seems highly doubtful that the courts would sustain such a strained interpretation of the law. But if they did, the result would be an extension of NLRB authority into new fields customarily treated as State preserves.

Although Mr. Herzog is not disposed to challenge the legal ground on which Mr. Denham bases his sweeping jurisdictional claims, he does not recognize any legal obligation on the part of the NLRB to exercise jurisdiction over what he calls borderline trades and industries. The board, with Chairman Herzog and one other member dissenting, has, to be sure, voted to exercise jurisdiction over retail automobile dealers. But it unanimously refused to conduct an election among the employes of a small grocery chain selling exclusively to customers in Texas, although some of the products sold originated in other States.

The board intends to proceed on a case-to-case basis, Mr. Herzog says, unless Congress or the courts order it to do otherwise. This appears to be the only feasible method of procedure, first, because assumption of jurisdiction over industries having only the slightest impact on interstate commerce is an invasion of a regulatory field heretofore reserved to the States, and, secondly, because the NLRB will have more than enough work to do if it confines its activities to industries over which its predecessor customarily exercised jurisdiction under the Wagner Act.

Fairlington Probe

Considering the amount of discontent stemming from the transfer of Fairlington from governmental to private ownership, it is not surprising that a congressional inquiry is being sought. Though it attracted the most attention in Congress, the recent flower-garden fiasco in the mammoth Arlington apartment development is only one of the tenant complaints against the Fairmac Corporation, the new owner which took over from the Defense Homes Corporation last fall. One of the first grievances was an attempt by Fairmac to raise rents only a month and a half after it took over—a move resisted by the majority of tenants, who declined to sign new leases.

The most serious charges, however, are not concerned with rents or the apparently wanton destruction of flower beds. They involve, instead, the manner in which Fairlington was acquired. Like Pooh-Bah in The Mikado, the former general manager of the Defense Homes Corporation, who helped negotiate the sale, then showed up as the general manager of the Fairmac Corporation. The 40-million-dollar property was purchased with a down payment of only two million dollars plus another two million in previous rents refunded by the Government, and the mortgage for the balance now held by Defense Homes bears the amazingly low interest rate of 2½ per cent—the same rate that the Government charges its own agencies. This compares with the 3 per cent interest charged the veterans' cooperative which has taken over Naylor Gardens, a similar development. Whether or not there is any impropriety involved in the Fairlington transaction, Senator Robertson and Representative Smith are indubitably right in pressing for an investigation to bring all the facts to light.

Eightieth Congress

The Eightieth Congress wound up its second session in the wildest dash to the finish line that many experienced observers have ever witnessed. The feverish excitement of the Senate's continuous 44-hour session and the extraordinary high-pressure tactics on the House side undoubtedly produced a prodigious volume of legislation in short order. But the paucity of deliberation under these circumstances suggests that some of its acts may have to be worked over when Congress again assembles. Even with this burst of speed, Congress stopped a long way short of finishing its work. Groggy with fatigue, the leaders of both houses recognized this fact and left the door open for a resumption of the session after the political conventions are over.

We strongly suspect that when a Republican presidential candidate has been nominated at Philadelphia, he will urge congressional leaders to return and complete their work. Adjournment came with no action whatever on the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill. Congress adopted only what Representative Monroney called "a teeny weeny housing bill" authorizing the RFC to set up a subsidiary to purchase GI mortgages from lending institutions. Other Federal aid to private housing will be crippled and slum reclamation will again be postponed unless more comprehensive housing legislation is passed. It is difficult to believe that the Republican hierarchy will agree to enter the campaign with this sort of record on housing. If Congress returns for a brief summer session, it will also have another chance to pass the oleomargarine bill, a genuine Federal-aid-to-education bill and possibly other important measures.

The failure of Congress to complete its work should not, however, obscure the favorable aspects of the record it has already made. In the field of foreign policy only the Taber revolt and a few similar instances of backsliding stand in the way of a rating of excellent. When the showdown came, moreover, even Mr. Taber was put into his place. The courage and tenacity of Senator Vandenberg and to a lesser extent of Representative Eaton swung the Congress back onto the beam so far as the European Recovery Program is concerned. The end result is to sustain the economic aspects of the country's bipartisan foreign policy in a thoroughgoing manner.

Two other aspects of the strong peace-with-security policy that the Administration has been following got positive backing from Congress. On the military side Congress temporarily lost its head in plumping for the 70-group air force idea in the hope of avoiding compulsory military training. At the end of the session, however, both houses bowed to the realities of the world situation and passed a draft act. That measure has shortcomings, but it does recognize the basic necessity of buttressing our military strength until greater reliance can be placed on the peace machinery of the United Nations. Complementing this security move, the Senate overwhelmingly urged amendment of the United Nations Charter so as to curb use of the big-power veto and gave its blessing to collective defense agreements under Article 51 of the Charter while the Security Council remains hamstrung by Soviet Russia's intransigeance.

These constructive measures followed approval, in the previous session, of the aid-to-Greece-and-Turkey policy and the bill for interim relief in Europe. Considering the fact that Congress has been under Republican leadership while the Presidency has remained in Democratic hands, this record bears witness of statesmanship of high order. It certainly encourages the belief that American foreign policy has entered a stage in which partisanship is to be progressively subordinated to the national interest. Now the spotlight will be on administration of this policy, both here and abroad. Congress has done its part. It remains for the State Department, ECA and the cooperating foreign governments to translate this unprecedented manifestation of good will into concrete achievements of recovery, economic integration and solidarity in pursuit of peace.

In the domestic sphere, the record is less clear-cut. The Eightieth Congress has taken far-reaching and overdue steps to reorganize the Government. It set in motion an exhaustive study of the makeshift executive branch in which representatives of both the President, Congress and the public are participating. It proposed an amendment to the Constitution limiting every future President to two terms. Unification of the armed services was attempted, but it has proved to be bogus and will have to be done over again. Operation of the much-maligned Taft-Hartley Act appears to have justified little, if any, of the extravagant criticism that was made of it. On the contrary, it has effected numerous salutary reforms, and its defects are under study by a joint committee with the object of reporting to the next Congress.

Congress failed to cope with inflation. Indeed, its enactment of the tax bill and its failure to renew curbs on installment buying stoked the fires of inflation. At the eleventh hour and fifty-ninth minute it passed a farm bill which continues existing price props for another year. It missed an opportunity to carry over its global foreign policy into the field of foreign trade, although it did enact an emergency trade agreements bill. Extension of the social security system, increase of the legal minimum wage, civil rights legislation and statehood for Hawaii and Alaska remain for future consideration.

Divided leadership was undoubtedly a crippling factor. Politics came to play a far more important part in the last session than in the first, and for this Congress and the President must share the blame. Too many irritating political bills were sent to the President's desk. In turn he often wielded his veto in a partisan manner and went off on a barnstorming trip while Congress was still working. On the other hand, partisanship has not descended to intense bitterness nor to a point where the Republican Congress and the Democratic President could not cooperate in the national interest. When due allowance is made for this handicap of divided leadership, the Eightieth Congress seems to be in little danger of falling to the level assigned it by Mr. Truman in the ardor of his pre-convention campaign.

Principles Of Defense

On a sunny Saturday morning last July, I was trolling for striped bass off the rocks in the Sound at Westport, Conn. Just as I got home from fishing, there was a call from the White House telling me that I had been appointed a member of the President's Air Policy Commission.

Even after I had been in Washington some time, I was not too much worried about Russia until the evening we held the first secret hearing with the military intelligence officers. From what we heard that night, I knew that I could never again feel the security of peaceful, sunny New England days as long as the deep shadow of the Russian menace darkened the future of all of our lives.

For months I have tried to become reconciled to the years of uncertainty ahead and to reason away the dread of what might happen—but as I have found nothing reassuring in the Russian situation, I have been concentrating on thinking of what we in America must do to convince Russia of the f olhardiness of starting war with us.

This I do know—we must prevent another war.

And, as we have no alternative until Russia lifts the curtain of secrecy and allows other people reasonable access to her own and her satellite countries, and her own people free communications with the outside world—which is the first step toward any guaranty of her sincerity:

(a) We must build and maintain military forces capable of breaking up any attack against us, and of instantly launching a counter-offensive so devastating and deadly that no enemy will dare to make war on us;

(b) We must keep our economy sound, for as we are not an aggressor Nation, and as any attack upon us may be delayed for years, our will to continue to carry the financial burden of the defense program, which will increase from year to year for several years, may weaken, especially if we should have a period of depression combined with calculated changes for the better in the Russian attitude toward us, and

(c) We must try in every conceivable way to bring about world understanding and permanent peace, which can only be done by convincing Russia of the utter futility of continuing her present course of attempting to dominate the world and subjugate its people.

No picture I have ever seen has conveyed to me the inherent American spirit as "Raising the Stars and Stripes by the United States Marines on the summit of Mount Suribachi on Iwo Jima" does. It breathes determination, strength, courage and loyalty to the flag and all it stands for—it is the pledge of this generation to carry on to the next, that conception of American ideals which this picture so clearly illustrates.

"Schools And Recreation"

You should be commended for your June 15 editorial, "Schools and Recreation."

It is interesting to note how most persons who argue against every move to abolish racial segregation state that they do so in the name of community custom. They speak and write as if the customs and mores of a community are pressures outside our control, like the weight of the atmosphere or the pull of gravity. The fact is that community customs are very definitely under our control. They are our wishes in action, and men change their wishes and sentiments in response to what other men do.

If one man or institution takes a public position against practices growing out of racial prejudice, that act encourages other institutions and persons who were inclined to take a similar stand but were restrained by timidity, uncertainty, or something else. As a result, some of them will begin to act according to their convictions, and by so doing they will influence others to do likewise. Thus the center of gravity, so to speak, of the community's attitude and customs will have moved that far toward racial justice and away from prejudice and injustice.

On the other hand, any administrative decision to exclude or continue to exclude a group of citizens from public facilities on account of race or religion reinforces the attitudes of the unjust, or at least makes them complacent, and results in moving the center of gravity of the community's customs away from just practies and toward prejudice and injustice.

Public Servants

I'm one of the 800,000 Federal employes in the classified service. The men up on the Hill are your servants and my servants. But they aren't acting like servants.

They tell me I can't strike. Okay. I don't want to strike. But I do want an increase in pay which will compensate me for the rise in the cost of living. I want it as a right. I don't want a picayune bribe, offered to me because it's an election year.

I want my servants on the Hill to come back to work after the conventions. They've left lots of unfinished work. I don't begrudge them a vacation, but I didn't approve a six months' leave of absence.

I want public servants who act in the best interests of the country. If they won't do what must be done, let's fire them and hire some others. Let's show by our votes and the votes of our friends back home that we won't be pushed around.

GOVERNMENT EMPLOYE.
Hyattsville, Md.

Compulsory Retirement

A shabby and cruel joke is being played by certain Government agencies on a number of old and faithful employes.

An order has suddenly been issued that all who reach the age of 70 must retire, even if they have not yet completed the minimum of 15 years' service required in order to qualify for a half-pension. It has for years been the general belief that an employe had the right to stay on until he reached that minimum and these older men and women have been counting on that supposed right in making financial plans for their last years.

Now they find themselves thrown out on the street with what is politely called an annuity but which is not even enough to cover their rent. In these times of high prices, this is particularly cruel.

The Civil Service Commission itself—through carelessness or ignorance—has been a party to misleading Government workers on this point. In a handsome "certificate of membership" in its retirement fund which it recently issued, it states: "If you have served less than 15 years when you reach your seventieth birthday, you need not retire until the 15 years are completed." Since this apparently is not true, why advertise it?

Maybe we should rant and rave a bit less about the "ruthlessness" of other peoples' governments and look into some of the unfair practices of our own.

HELPLESS WIFE.

Spiritual Crisis

I believe your readers would be interested, as I was, in the following passage from an address delivered last Wednesday by Mr. James P. Warburg before the World Conference of the Church Union:

"The economic crisis and the spiritual crisis of our time are inseparable. There can be no freedom from want unless there is also freedom from fear. It is fear which turns fraternal cooperation into fratricidal conflict. It is fear which erects barriers, both physical and spiritual, to the free exchange of all the manifold products of human society.

"We, as a Nation, have less cause to fear than any other people on earth. We, more than any other people, have it in our power to break out of the vicious circle of fear-inspired negativism which now drives the world inexorably toward disaster.

"A physically sick world needs the support of our great material resources, but even more a spiritually sick world needs the restoration of its hope, the r affirmation of its faith and the revival of its belief in the brotherhood of mankind.

"Our great strength s a Nation—the strength upon which the world depends for recovery—rests neither in our wealth nor in our stockpile of atomic weapons, but in the great untapped reservoir of native faith and courage and kingliness in the hearts of the American people." F. A. B.
Washington.

Food, Not Force

We could save ourselves a lot of money and American lives and spare ourselves a lot of inconvenience, if we would only realize that a Third World War will not destroy communism.

History is full of examples which prove that force and violence cannot destroy an idea or undermine the faith and convictions of men. Christianity was not destroyed when the Nazarene was nailed to the cross.

The struggle between democracy and communism is actually a conflict of ideas within the minds of men. In order for democracy to triumph in such a struggle it must seek to win a victory within and over the minds of men.

The only way to fight and destroy an idea is with another idea that is better and more appealing to men. Christianity finally emerged from the dungeons and overcame and supplanted paganism because it was inherently better than paganism. Christianity did not gain its victory over paganism through the use of force and violence; Christianity achieved its victory by promising and providing men with a better way of life, and by converting men to that way of life.

In every nook and cranny of the globe, communism is vigorously challenging democracy and capitalism. Democracy should meet this challenge not entirely with guns, but with a universal effort aimed at helping the masses of humanity to reach an economic and social level where they can understand the virtues and appreciate the abundant benefits that are provided by and under the democratic way of life.

The democratic nations have been making a grave mistake by attempting to democratize hungry people before they feed them. A hungry man is the most irrational being alive. We Americans claim to be the most ardent believers in democracy, but we found out during the economic depression of the 1930's that democracy will not rest on an empty American's stomach any more than it will on the empty stomach of a Greek peasant or Chinese coolie. We can convert more men to the cause of democracy by promising and giving them a loaf of bread than we can by giving them the right to vote for their rulers.

Man And Mechanism

MECHANIZATION TAKES COMMAND: A CONTRIBUTION TO ANONYMOUS HISTORY, by Siegfried Giedion. (Oxford University Press, $12.50.)

This, you will note, is a rather expensive book. I suppose the explanation lies in the cost of reproducing the many fascinating illustrations that Dr. Giedion has collected from the files of the Patent Office and other queer places. Even so, if considered in terms of exchange for any half dozen of the current novels or studies of world affairs, I should call it something of a bargain. Dr. Giedion is a Swiss professor of art and design and his purpose here is to show that the most important part of history is to be found in the daily and unconsidered commonplaces of our lives. "In the anonymous life," he tells us, "the particles accumulate into an explosive force. Tools and objects are the outgrowths of fundamental attitudes toward the world. These attitudes set the course followed by thought and action. Every problem, every picture, every invention, is founded upon a specific attitude, without which it would never have come into being. The performer is led by outward impulses—money, fame, power—but behind him, unbeknown, is the orientation of the period, is its bent toward this particular problem, that particular form."

It is from this principle of Weltanschauung, or cosmological fantasy, that Dr. Giedion considers the origins and consequences of the industrial and technological revolutions. Unhappily, his disjointed and somewhat epigrammatical manner of writing does not make the argument always easy to follow; but I gather that our mechanized society is the logical fruit of the mechanistic concept of the universe. From this concept followed the apotheosis of human reason and the doctrine of inevitable and illimitable progress. Science replaced art as the approved vehicle of man's relationship to external nature, and the consequent shift from qualitative to quantative notions of value opened the way for the eighteenth century principle of the division of labor, as expounded by Adam Smith in the famous Wealth of Nations. In the progressive divisions and subdivisions of work into its component operations, Dr. Giedion perceives the causes of that universal schizophrenia, or irrelevant fragmentation, which is said to be the peculiar characteristic of modern life. One result was the workman's loss of intimacy was his materials; another was the sacrifice of relationship between material and design; still another was the loss of spatial harmonies. Articles were no longer created to fill particular needs, but for a general market. Each object, therefore, became self-sufficient in design. This, says Dr. Giedion, accounts for the discordant and cluttered interiors of the Romantic era, and the fantastic draperies and upholsteries reflect the expansion of the textile industries. For a time the manufacturers were content to reproduce designs imitated from an age of handicrafts, but with little relation to the materials involved or the use for which the article was destined. Gradually, however, design became dominated by the utilitarian ideal, which in turn was dominated, especially in the United States, by a preoccupation with problems of motion. In other words, as Professor Giedion shows in his history of chairs and beds and railway furnishings, the engineer and designer became one.

About the middle of the nineteenth century, it seems, faith in the cosmic vision of progress began to wane. The result was that production, which until then had been conceived as a means to an end, now became an end in itself. The division of labor had already made possible the introduction of machinery and a uniformity of motion of which the hand is incapable. Dr. Giedion traces the process of standardization through the device of interchangeable parts, the method of continuous production, the invention of movable cranes, the first assembly lines in the meatpacking industry of the Midwest and the psychomotor disciplines introduced by Frederick Taylor and Henry Ford. But the spiritual consequences of mechanization, and the price paid for an economy of standardization and abundance, become more evident where the process has been applied to organic substances, such as soil and food. The mechanization of agriculture has resulted in the destruction of the stablest and most conservative element of human society, the class which in the past has provided the means of a continuum between one form of civilization and another. The transformation of farming into a mass production industry, like automobiles, has rendered small holdings unprofitable and obsolete, and the result in the United States and Russia at least has been to repeat on a vastly larger scale in an infinitely shorter compass of time the uprooting of peoples which followed the European enclosures of the common lands. Meanwhile, the farmer, through specialization, has lost spiritual intimacy with his land and his herds in the same sense that the workman has lost it with his materials. Another loss, it appears, has been the sense of tragedy. Emotion has been divorced from the concept of death; and Dr. Giedion believes that there may be some mystical or subconscious association between the assembly-line methods of killing animals in modern slaughter houses and those employed on human beings in Nazi extermination camps. Similiarly, he thinks that the methods of artificial insemination may reflect a radically and dangerously altered attitude toward life.

Today And Tomorrow

The Stakes At Philadelphia

LIPPMANN

MR. TRUMAN has been trying to make it appear that the country must choose between what this Congress has actually done and what he has asked it to do. But that is not in fact the issue. For while Mr. Truman can denounce the record of Congress, he could not, even if he were elected, hope to do anything about it. In the three years he has been President he has been unable to lead his own party in Congress, much less to influence the Republican Party.

Only the Philadelphia convention can deal with the issue created by the bold and ruthless actions of Messrs. Martin, Taber, Allen, and Halleck. For their actions are deliberately designed as a prelude to the Philadelphia convention: to seize control of the party and of the next administration. Their chief aim is not economy. It is not to protect young men against the draft. It is not isolationism or nationalism. It is political power, it is office, it is patronage, it is the service of lobbyists and special interests. They are out to defeat Vandenberg, Stassen, Warren, and as regards Dewey to defeat him if possible, to envelop and get a grip on him if they cannot nominate their own man.

THE CALCULATIONS of Speaker Martin and his organization are plain enough. They feel certain that the weakness of Truman, the candidacy of Henry Wallace, the demoralization and poverty of the Democratic organization, mean that the nominees at Philadelphia will be elected. There is no need in their view to have a party record, or to have candidates who appeal either to the independent and progressive voters, or to those who are concerned with the foreign policy of the United States. They believe that any Republican can be elected in November, that they do not, therefore, have to think about defeating the Democrats, and can concentrate on a fight to control the Republican Party.

The plan of their campaign has been to make a Republican record in Congress that no one but a Martin or a Bricker could defend, that Vandenberg, Stassen and Warren would be bound to repudiate, that Dewey, and even Taft, would have to stultify themselves to accept. The worse the record, the better for them. They have struck paralyzing blows at the two main measures of the bipartisan foreign policy: the ECA and military rearmament. But they had not stopped there: they have dealt no less destructively with housing and education, that is to say with the measures that distinguish Taft from the absolutely unreconstructed reactionaries.

THE PARAMOUNT issue at Philadelphia is, therefore, this bid for power which has been organized by Speaker Martin. If his faction wins at Philadelphia, it is certain that the campaign will be as bitter, as confusing, and as demoralizing as any in American history. For then both parties will be a collection of angry and hopeless factions, and there will be no national leadership around which the people can rally and unite. The Martin-Taber-Allen-Halleck junta might be elected. But the new administration could never unite the country, could never unite the Republican Party.

The people who have looked to Vandenberg, to Stassen, to Eisenhower, to Roosevelt, the great mass of the people who hope for a better world and wish to do their duty in a difficult and dangerous world, could not be represented in such an administration. They would be on the outside, frustrated and helpless, condemned to watch with ever deepening anxiety the descent of their country into danger.

BUT THOUGH this reactionary bid for power is formidable, it can be repulsed and defeated. It can be repulsed in the resolutions committee by the adoption of a platform that fits men like Vandenberg, Stassen, Dewey, and Warren; it can be defeated by the nomination of a ticket which, though a compromise among these men, is uncompromising in respect to the Martin-Taber-Allen-Halleck faction. A Vandenberg-Dewey or a Vandenberg-Stassen ticket would do that clearly and unmistakably. A Dewey ticket with a Vice President chosen to buy off the opposition of the Martin faction would leave the future in grave doubt. For it would mean that Mr. Dewey had given hostages, and that he could not free himself without a bitter intraparty struggle.

IT IS, however, as certain as things can be in politics that with a good platform and with a ticket which marks a clear decision by the convention, the power of the Martin faction to obstruct and destroy would swiftly be brought under control.

That faction would be no match, at least in the next two critical years, for the new Republican President. He would have the enormous prestige of being the first Republican President in 16 years and of an election by impressive, and indeed overwhelming, majorities. He would have at his disposal the enormous patronage and the enormous spending power which are now in the Federal Government. He would certainly command a bipartisan majority in the Senate.

For these reasons this country and the world can be confident that, if things come out right in Philadelphia, Speaker Martin's faction in the House, which has become so formidable amidst the breakdown of the Truman Administration, could not stand up against the power, the patronage, the prestige of a newly elected President.

'Halo of Self-Anointed Angel' Nips Truman, Wallace Says

Cleveland, Ohio, June 20 (U.P.).—Henry A. Wallace tonight called President Truman a "self-anointed angel" whose head is "too big for his halo."

In the bitterest denunciation of Mr. Truman yet made by a presidential aspirant, Wallace charged that the President always blames "the other guy for everything that goes wrong."

Wallace's speech was delivered before a rally in Cleveland's Public Auditorium, called to protest the refusal of Ohio Secretary of State Edward J. Hummel to put the third party on the Ohio ballot in November.

"Blames Other Guy"

"It is interesting that Mr. Truman in his Western travels put all the blame for the reactionary course of domestic policies on the Congress," Wallace said. "That's one kind of speech Mr. Truman has learned how to deliver—speeches blaming the other guy for everything that goes wrong.

"And he wasn't very far from Washington before his head got too big for his halo. The self-anointed angel blames all domestic ills on the Republicans in Congress; and all the ills beyond our borders from Bogota to Athens are Joe Stalin's fault."

No "Fighting Liberal"

Wallace charged that Truman is not the "fighting liberal" he pretended to be, but a "partner in the move to curtail civil rights."

Wallace lashed out bitterly at Hummell for denying the third party a place on Ohio's ballot and warned that "a united protest will stop the philosophy of Hitler, Himmel and Hummell from conquering freedom in the sovereign State of Ohio."

Europe Sees Convention Impact

London, June 20 (AP).—Western Europe's newspapers expressed belief today that the Republican National Convention will have a great impact on world affairs.

Some headlines were saying in effect that the Republican nominee, if elected, will formulate policies of far-reaching influence in every European nation. Sunday's newspapers indicated that much of the continent regards the convention as a showdown between isolationism and internationalism in the United States.

The independent comment in Paris reflected an apparently widespread western European hope that a positive internationalist will win.

Two of London's 10 Sunday newspapers put the convention on page one. In eastern Europe, the Soviet-dominated press paid scant attention to the Philadelphia proceedings.

Scandinavian countries were deeply interested. Most Copenhagen editorial writers felt the convention pretty definitely will name the next President.

Ten Postmasters Confirmed by Senate

By The Associated Press

The Senate confirmed by unanimous voice vote early yesterday these postmaster nominations:

Maryland—Charles L. Brockmeyer, Glenarm; Cora L. Sappington, Keymar; Edward C. Seipp, Pasadena; Edward V. Dorsey, Upper Marlboro.

Alcohol and Tobacco Called Cancer Factors

Chicago, June 20 (AP).—A Swedish radiologist said today that abuse of tobacco and alcohol have been recognized by Scandinavian doctors as factors leading to cancer of the mouth.

Addressing a meeting of the American Radium Society, Professor Elis Berven of Stockholm said, however, that first among conditions tending to produce oral cancer were bad mouth hygiene, jagged teeth, and badly fitting dentures.

Pope Pius to Confirm Nominations at Rites

Vatican City, June 20 (AP).—Pope Pius XII will preside Monday at a consistory to approve episcopal nominations made since the last consistory.

There will be no nominations to the Sacred College of Cardinals, which has 10 vacancies.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

The Figure In The Wings

NEW YORK.—The stage is set at Philadelphia for the final struggle between the isolationists and men of the Vandenberg school, between the backward-looking and modern-minded Republicans. The issues have been made brutally plain by the recent behavior of the leaders of the House of Representatives. The situation is too uncertain, moreover, to rule out altogether an isolationist victory, in the form of the nomination of Senator Robert A. Taft, or Speaker Joseph W. Martin, or even Senator John Bricker.

The curious thing is the gigantic risk these Republicans are willing to take in order to insure domination of their party by men and ideas of the vintage of 1920. For the isolationists may hope for victory. Yet offstage, in the wings, there lurks a figure whose emergence could turn victory into dust and ashes in the isolationists' mouths. That figure, of course, is Dwight D. Eisenhower.

There is a lot of raher futile gossip at Philadelphia about Republicans who still desire to draft General Eisenhower as a Republican candidate. Such talk is foolish, because General Eisenhower will not conceivably accept a presidential nomination while any alternative exists. If a movement to draft Eisenhower got anywhere at the Republican convention, which it almost certainly will not, General Eisenhower could be expected to tell the Republicans to name instead Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, for whom he entertains a deep admiration.

A VERY DIFFERENT situation will arise, however, if the present convention chooses Taft or Martin or Bricker as its standard bearer. If the ensuing Democratic convention did not set aside Harry S. Truman, the country would then have to choose between Truman and an isolationist. The election of an isolationist to lead the United States would become a clear possibility—in the case of Senator Taft, perhaps even a probability. As any one can discover from his statements for the record, General Eisenhower passionately believes that reversion to isolationism will imperil the survival, not of the United States alone but of the whole free world.

It is true that General Eisenhower has formally removed himself from consideration. It is even an open secret that some time ago he told certain close friends he would never accept the Democratic nomination, no matter how repugnant the Republican nominee. But this was when it seemed reasonably likely that President Truman could defeat an isolationist. Now the picture has changed. It is difficult to believe that a man of Eisenhower's character would stand idly by while the country he has served so superbly took a road he regards as certain to lead to total disaster.

There is also a good deal of more factual evidence which should be considered. When Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., came out for Eisenhower, for example, the White House sent a message to the general asking him to remove himself from the Democratic race as he had from the Republican. The argument pressed upon him was strongly appealing—that at that time, when the Italian election impended, it was vital in Europe to give an impression of American unity behind Truman. Yet Eisenhower kept silent.

THERE ARE EXCELLENT REASONS for suspecting that he kept silent because he thought that his granting the President's request would embolden the Republicans to name an isolationist. The danger of an isolationist Republican being chosen is also the main motive of a number of Democrats who are now working night and day to prevent their own party's convention from being sewed up in advance for Truman.

Among these men, Senator Lister Hill, former Representative Joseph Casey of Massachusetts and the younger Roosevelt have all been distinctly effective. Truman now has less than 250 Democratic votes decisively committed to him. Several delegations, such as Minnesota's, have already refused any commitment, with the situation envisioned here specifically in mind. Even positively committed delegates, like a large group in California, are known to be ready to abstain from voting if Eisenhower's name is placed in nomination with any assurance of his acceptance.

Would he ever grant such assurance? Clearly, nothing on earth will induce him to become the Democratic nominee if Vandenberg or Dewey or Stassen or Earl Warren is chosen by the Republicans. Perhaps today he thinks that nothing on earth will make him accept the Democratic nomination, even if Taft or Martin or Bricker is successful at Philadelphia.

But Eisenhower cannot today imagine the pressure that would then be placed on him. The pressure would come, not from the interested politicians for whom he has little respect but from the American people whom he has served all his life. He would be asked to stand, not as a party man, which he would hate, but as a leader of the people above party, which he properly is. It is still likely that the forward-looking Republican majority will defeat the backward-lookers. But if the backward-lookers win, these correspondents would like to venture the prediction that the drafting of Eisenhower by the Democrats would become a good fifty-fifty bet. And this is very definitely not irrelevant to the contest in Philadelphia now in progress.

Maine Political Newcomer Fights For Senate Seat

Albion P. Beverage of Dresden never sought public office before. Against him are United States Representative Margaret C. Smith of Skowhegan, Gov. Horace Hildreth of Cumberland and former Gov. Sumner Sewall of Bath.

All four, and five candidates for the GOP gubernatorial nomination, campaigned intensively.

The Senate seat involved is that of retiring majority floor leader White. Dr. Adrian H. Scolten of Portland is unopposed for the Democratic nomination.

The gubernatorial field has the only major Democratic contest—between Biddeford's Mayor Louis D. Lausier, and former state Senator Leland B. Currier of Lewiston.

But 25-year-old Chris Van Hollen isn't mapping an underground campaign in behalf of his party. He's a political science student at Johns Hopkins University. At the convention he'll be working on his Ph.D. thesis. His subject: "The preconvention campaigns and conventions of 1948."

One on the Aisle—

By Richard L. Coe

THE CROWDED CRYSTAL BALL: With the one on the Hill deserted to tourist footfalls, the town's Other Capitol already is turning to its annual "Going Native." . . . This year the all-Washington talent show will take over the F street stage the week beginning August 26 . . . Blanks are now in the lobbies of all three F street Loew houses for those who think they have the ability to get where, say, Art Godfrey is now—the top of the entertainment heap . . . You can be an amateur or a professional; so long as you're from the Washington metropolitan area the chance is yours to apply for an audition . . . And those auditions are quite a show in themselves . . . This year the first will be on Monday night July 19 and will go on and on from one night to the next until Director Gene Ford has seen, heard and been conquered . . . Among those who got their stage starts in these summertime revues are the fabulous Godfrey, Songbird Helen Forrest, Pianist Evalyn Tyner, Dancer Johnny Barnes and Comedienne Bibi Osterwald . . . This one will be the ninth in the series; it would have been a higher number but for the war, during which "Going Native" was in abeyance . . . If you can sing, dance, play something or pull off any kind of speciality, says Gene Ford, he'll be interested in hearing from you via those blanks in the lobbies.

TONIGHT, down in Abingdon, the Barter Theater will be presenting a promising world premier . . . This is Sherman Ewing's "Voltaire," with skilled Frederic Warringer as the brilliant Frenchman . . . It's a huge cast, 63 parts, under the direction of Peter Frye, director and instructor at the New School and the American Theater Wing . . . Ewing, with his wife Marjorie, co-produced the Hartman's "Angel in the Wings" this season and he's been down watching rehearsals of Bob Porterfield's celebrated company . . . The rehearsals haven't had that lovely little theater sewed up these past few weeks, either; Barter's home season, after a Nation-wide tour, opened June 10 on its usual repertory basis . . . But "Voltaire" will run through this week and if you get down that way you'll find representatives of the French Embassy and the Gotham press on hand to see if this one has Broadway potentials.

ALSO TONIGHT Baltimore's Hilltop Summer Theater opens its season in new quarters in the Green Spring Valley . . . The play is "Accent on Youth," with David Lewis and Edith Skinner (a relative of Cornelia's) in the leads . . . This virtually gives Baltimore two summer theaters, for the Olney, being halfway between hither and yon, has been drawing several hundred each week from the Monument City, where it has a downtown ticket office.

TUESDAY "Harvey," Frank Fay and his company, will be giving a grand play to a great audience . . . They're taking the play out to the Red Cross Auditorium of Walter Reed Hospital for a 1:30 matinee for patients and personnel of the hospital . . . Unlike the usual custom of visiting players, the "Harvey" company will give an uncut performance . . . This isn't the only service the Red Cross and the American Theater Wing have tried to provide, but a full-length "Harvey" is a triumph for all concerned in this cooperative venture . . . Cheers for all.

WEDNESDAY "The Search" finally leaves the Playhouse, where it has lingered a full eight weeks since opening that new, lush establishment . . . Taking its place will be Alexander Korda's British production of "Anna Karenina," with Vivien Leigh in the role Miss Garbo played in both silent and spoken Hollywood versions.

WEDNESDAY night brings the opening of the Cross Roads Theater for the season . . . The play is William McCleery's comedy, "Parlor Story," directed by M. Forney Reese, with Karl Schuon, Ann Cloward, Jane Drew, Bernice Blease, Byron Rash, Joseph Gross, Richard Vosburgh, Jim O'Neill, Frank Moss and Margaret Morrison in the cast . . . This is the twelfth season for the local acting group; further information from Woodley 5303.

THURSDAY the new, active Southeast Dramatics Association will be moving over to the Northwest section of town when they give "The Kite" at the Arts Club in Eye street . . . Director Vera Mowry says that this is the one-act play tournament winner's seventh and last performance . . . The group now is working on a full-length Elizabethan farce, "The Merry Devil of Edmonton" for production in July.

FRIDAY is the date set for national release of the Motion Picture Association of America's second officially sponsored short subject . . . This is "Letter to a Rebel," part of the "This Is America" series . . . Its theme is a letter from a small town newspaper editor to his son in school, a lad who'd been attacking the capitalistic system in his college paper.

SATURDAY brings Gene Krupa and his band to Chesapeake Beach Park . . . Sponsored by Name Bands, Inc., Gene will bring along his radio and disc associates, among them Buddy Hughes and Dolores Hawkins . . . In Gene's honor there's an amateur drummer contest over WOL starting today from 6 to 9 a.m.

THE LOVELY LILLIAN: Although her fresh beauty belies the fact, Lillian Gish has been a distinguished star of stage and screen for over 30 years; as a girl with her sister, Dorothy, Miss Gish appeared in D. W. Griffith's epochal films. Tuesday night Miss Gish, but without her Scottie Malcolm, with whom she's pictured, begins a week's run at the Olney in Noel Coward's comedy, "The Marquise"

Can a Bee Sting and Live? Apiarists Settle Dispute—No

Pearl River, N. Y., June 20 (NYHT).—A lively dispute among beekeepers was settled here this afternoon at a cost of 15 lumps and 15 lives. The lumps were left on the forearms of three volunteer apiarists and the lives lost were those of the honeybees used in the experiment.

The stinging question was this: Can a female bee (they are the workers and stingers in every colony) sting a human being, withdraw the stinger, and live to strike again?

The answer: She can't.

The experiment was conducted at the tenth anniversary meeting of the Rockland County Beekeepers Association, held at the apiary of Hans Hansen.

When a bee sits down hard upon a human being, the usual and instant reaction of the victim is to jump, yelp, and swat. It had been the contention of Hansen and O. L. Davis of Letchworth Village, that is was the counter-offensive that caused apis mellifera to lose her stinger and, soon thereafter, her life.

Give an attacking bee a little time, they argued, and she would buzz around and around in a corkscrew maneuver, unscrew her stinger, and fly away unharmed. They were agreed on point of dispute was over the direction she would unwind. Hansen thought it would be clockwise; Davis was a counter-clockwise man. Davis maintained further that bees stinging him would require more time to free themselves, since his hide was tougher. Hansen retorted that most bees would blunt their barbs on his skin and never penetrate it at all.

One other apiarist, William Schmid, of Stony Point, got into the argument and the experiment. Each of the three collected five active and indignant female bees from one of Hansen's hives, placed them on his forearm, and invited them to do their wickedest. The bees accepted the challenge with alacrity and venom.

Each bee squatted and drove her stinger into epidermis. Each time, the victim winced and bit his lip, but made no counterattack. And each time, the bee went into a whirling dervish act, now clockwise and again counterclockwise. But the barbed stinger held in each case, and every time the bee left it behind when she finally broke free and flew away to die.

Incidentally, none of the 15 had any difficulty in penetrating their targets, despite the boasts of toughness. The experimenters concluded that bees either do not know that to sting is to commit suicide, or they don't give a buzz about what happens to them. None hesitated an instant before firing the one and only charge that was to backfire and cause her death.

The bee-picking contest later was won by Paul Zens of New York City who in 4 minutes picked up 40 bees and placed them in a bottle, getting stung only twice for a net score of 38. Henry Krecja of Paramus, N. J., got no stings, but he harvested only 18 bees.

Postlude

'Carmen' Wins Favor Despite Flaws

By Paul Hume

Bizet's "Carmen" is indestructible, and it's a good thing.

The performance last night at the Watergate took a terrific beating in ways, and still came out a popular winner. Much of its success was due to the superb vocalism of Martha Lipton in the title role. The part lies magnificently for her voluptuous mezzo, and she has the music completely in place.

Lipton knows that tremendous dramatic effect can be achieved with soft singing and she made much of the last phrase in act one, as well as at other opportune moments of the score. Her voice is evenly produced throughout. She will become a great Carmen when she brings the action of her conception up to the vocal level.

She needs coaching from an authority in Spanish dancing, and to delete the fussiness, particularly in the first act. She is more effective in the later acts of the score.

Vasso Argyris ably seconded Lipton's Carmen with a resounding Jose. His stage business in the first two acts was some of the finest we have seen. This was illustrated in the way he untied Carmen's hands, and his attention to her dance in the inn of Lillas Pastia. His voice has a rigidity in certain passages, but he was at all times sensitive to the nuances of the beautiful part Bizet gave the tenor.

Constance Melodie made a more than acceptable debut as Micaela, displaying good control of an attractive lyric soprano. If she permits her tone to ride easily over the orchestra at all times, she will be a consistently fine singer. Escamillo was well enough sung by Alphone Pichette, but he must learn to maintain some semblance of correct rhythm.

Frasquita, Mercedes, Zuniga and Morales were completely handled. We understand that two Washington singers were in minor roles but the handbill did not give a clue as to their identity.

Carlo Moresco is a young conductor of whom we may expect great things. He is well routined in conducting opera, and commands good results from players and singers alike. But as long as operas are produced without rehearsal no one can expect finished results. The chorus and the scenery remain less than acceptable. Acceptable! The scenery is the funniest thing in decades. Rousseau never imagined such a jungle as that surrounding last night's third act supposed mountain pass.

Tonight: Butterfly! Tickets will be exchanged.

Taft's Brother Urges Course In Humanity

Hartford, Conn., June 20 (U.P.).—Charles P. Taft, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America and brother of Ohio's Senator Robert Taft, said today that college should teach students more about human relations.

Taft said college graduates have to begin tackling world problems with "too little a sound background" in how to deal with people.

Stressing to his audience at Trinity College's 125th commencement exercises that education begins with graduation from school, Taft said "working with groups—usually small ones of 10 or 15—is the heart of our adult educational job."

The Cincinnati lawyer said "talk about the masses and about a rabble" such as the writings of Karl Marx, is "pure poppycock, invented by the dictator for his own purposes."

Record Plays For 45 Minutes

Ever hear of a 12-inch phonograph record that has a playing time of 45 minutes. The ordinary record plays for eight minutes.

The new record was put on the market yesterday by Columbia Records, Inc. Known as the Columbia LP (for "long playing") microgroove, its sponsors told a press conference it is:

"A revolutionary nonbreakable microgroove phonograph record which plays 45 minutes on one 12-inch double-faced record with full fidelity and absence of distortion . . ."

The record, also available in 10-inch size with 27-minute playing time, can produce entire symphonies and concertos, or the complete score of a Broadway musical, its sponsors aver. It spins at 33 1-3 revolutions per minute instead of the customary 78 rpm.

Route Retraced In Probe of Plane Crash

Mt. Carmel, Pa., June 20 (AP).—Another airliner retraced today the last few miles over which a United Airlines plane Thursday carried 43 persons to death on a rock-strewn hillside.

The test flight was ordered by officials of the airline, Federal and State isvestigating agencies and the Douglas Aircraft Corp., all seeking to learn the cause of the fatal crash. Among the dead were Earl Carroll, Hollywood theatrical producer and Mrs. Jack Oakie, divorced wife of the screen star.

A spokesman for the airline said the cause of the crash has not been determined.

All but four of the shattered bodies had been identified. Mrs. Oakie's body was identified last night. Carroll's body was identified by the FBI through finger prints.

Children's Hospital Doctors Study Effects of Meningitis

Not so many years ago, 80 to 90 per cent of children stricken with dread spinal meningitis died.

By now, the use of various drugs has reduced mortality so that Children's Hospital can report one fatal case out of 20 treated there since January.

Despite this progress in reducing mortality from meningitis, the crippling effects of the disease on those whose lives are saved—mental retardation, blindness, deafness and paralyses—remained in many cases.

For this reason, a team of six doctors at Children's Hospital is studying 316 cases treated there over the past six years in an attempt to find a way to reduce the dren.

The group consists of Dr. Vasilios S. Lambros of the neurological department; Dr. Allan Walker, ear, nose and throat specialist; Drs. Frank J. Murphy and Francis L. Zinzi, resident physicians, and Dr. Hannah Colm, psychologist.

They have established a meningitis clinic, meeting once a month, to study cases previously treated at the hospital.

Thus far, they have found penicillin, streptomycin and the sulfanamide drugs have helped some against residual damages as well as in cutting the mortality rate. results of the meningitis in children But even more important in reducing the after effects is early diagnosis, Dr. Murphy reported yesterday.

Eisenhower Honored At Williams College

Williamstown, Mass., June 20 (U.P.).—Dwight D. Eisenhower, president of Columbia University, and Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey were among six persons who received honorary degrees at William College's 159th commencement exercises today.

College President James P. Baxter presented doctor of laws degrees to Eisenhower and Driscoll and conferred bachelor of arts degrees on 203 members of the graduating class.

Flood of Anti-British Hate Deluges London

London, June 20 (U.P.).—The Sunday Pictorial said today that a "flood of anti-British hate" was being received by editors and prominent Britons from anonymous sources in the United States.

The newspaper printed one of six anti-British cartoons which it said had been received anonymously from the United States. The cartoon depicted Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin handing out arms and ammunition to two grinning Arabs who wore swastikas around their necks. The caption said, "I give you tools to finish the job."

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

NEW YORK, JUNE 20.—Fresh from the publishers has come to hand a new book "How to Box," by Joe Louis, and it prods the thought that Joe may be picking a bad week to peddle his byline. The text could become thoroughly dated and the author somewhat discredited three nights hence if an unimpressed Jersey Joe Walcott whacks Louis on the whiskers with only a little bit more authority than he did last time.

POVICH

As an author, Louis might better have scripted a book labeled "How to Punch." Punching has been his forte. He will hardly go down in ring annals as a great boxer. But there is no disputing his tremendous ability to hit hard. On that score he ranks with Dempsey, and probably ahead of the old Mauler who was just that and lacked Louis' high ability to chill a man with a single punch. If Louis has learned how to box, it's a comparatively late knowledge of the art.

At that, he may be a better boxer than he was a year ago. Last December he had the benefit of a complete boxing lesson from Joe Walcott who, the referee said, won Louis' title, but the two judges nixed that verdict. The last seen of Louis in a prize ring, he was a slow, bumbling, befuddled champion who could paw only feebly at the flitting figure of Good Boxer Walcott and trying to retain his title on two left feet.

WALCOTT WASN'T the first man to succeed in staying away from Louis. Bob Pastor, Tommy Farr, Arturo Godoy also went the limit with him, and Billy Conn lasted 13 rounds in their first bout, eight in the second. Conn outboxed him easily until he made so bold as to trade punches with the champ in the thirteenth, and even in their second fight it took Louis nearly eight rounds to catch up with a thoroughly frightened Conn.

The attempts by the Louis camp to paint Walcott as another runaway guy like Pastor or hit-and-clinch guy like Farr, or crab-style fellow like the reluctant Godoy aren't quite fair. Sure, Walcott did hit and run, and he swayed and turned on his heel and walked away from the hot spots, but Jersey Joe is hardly to be classed with the Pastors and Conns. He did smack Louis down twice for counts.

Walcott, in fact, was a tremendous fellow that night. He took a clean shot from Louis on the chin in the opening round when the champ was fresh and he not only stood up, but he had Louis on the floor before the round was over. And when the big test came in the ninth and they were swinging to each other's head in the kind of exchange in which Louis had always reveled, it was not Walcott but the champ who finally broke ground.

THERE'S EVIDENCE THAT LOUIS is actually mad at Walcott. He has said he was angry with only one fighter he ever met. That was Schmeling, the man who had knocked him out, and in their return fight the most violent Louis that ever exhibited himself quickly destroyed Schmeling in one round. He didn't like Schmeling's naughty conduct after the German's first winning fight. Schmeling had been repeating that "Dot Louis is a sucker for a right hand punch. He should learn how to box."

Well, it hasn't set well with Louis that Jersey Joe has had a favorite theme for this upcoming fight. Walcott has been saying in his training camp and over the air that "Louis is a slow thinker," and that he knows only one way to fight. Louis dislikes the label "slow thinker," he's proud of his ability to say and do the right thing and he makes no secret of his aim to beat Walcott quickly.

In contrast, Louis was never mad at Tony Galento despite Galento's prefight diatribes. When Tony would reiterate "I'll moider de bum," Louis was never sensitive at such name-calling. It used to amuse him, in fact. He merely wrote Galento off as a "dese and dose" character who tossed off insults in the misguided understanding that it was the thing to do.

FOR A COUPLE OF YEARS NOW, it has been a new Joe Louis who has been defending his title. He no longer has the counsel and advice of the two managers who brought him out of obscurity, Julian Black and John Roxborough, nor the coaching of his good friend the late Jack Blackburne. Joe is bossing his own show now, giving orders around the camp, making his own schedules and running the works.

For 10 years, Louis was merely a fighting machine, a wonderful one. He did what he was told with no responsibilities other than taking a sharp physical edge into the ring and probing with his left until some unfortunate guy presented him with the opening he wanted. He knocked many a man out with one punch and then was led out by his handlers who told him what was next. That was all.

But unless it was Schmeling, he hasn't fought a man who could box as well or sneak a punch home as well as Walcott. Jersey Joe won't even agree that Louis hit him as hard as Leo Q. Murray or Curtis Sheppard. At 34, Walcott is a very old heavyweight but the startling fact is that Louis is 34, too.

Tribe Swats A's Twice; 82,841 Fans Set Record

Cleveland, June 20 (AP).—Cleveland's league-leading Indians swept a double-headed from the Philadelphia Athletics today before an all-time major league record crowd of 82,781.

Bob Lemon turned in a brilliant four-hit shutout as the Indians won the nightcap, 10 to 0. Bob Feller notched his first triumph since May 19 in the opener by a 4-to-3 count.

The previous record crowd was 81,841, set May 30, 1938, for a double-header between Boston and the New York Yankees.

Feller allowed seven hits, including homers by Eddie Joost and Sam Chapman, in taking his sixth win against seven losses.

The double defeat dropped the Athletics into third place and moved the New York Yankees, who won a doubleheader from the St. Louis Browns, into the runner-up spot. The Indians now lead the Yankees by three and one half games.

The shutout was Lemon's fourth of the season and his tenth victory against five defeates.

Bosox Snap Newhouser's String, 8-3

Detroit, June 20 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox peeled off 12 hits to crack Hal Newhouser's seven-game winning streak and run their own string to five straight wins today by whipping the Detroit Tigers, 8 to 3. Dominic DiMaggio and Vern Stephens homered for the Sox as Mel Parnell hurled a four-hitter to take the victory.

The Red Sox handed Newhouser his first setback since May 9 to step ahead of the Tigers into the first division, taking fourth place by a half game.

Rapping Hal hard and often, Boston bunched four hits, including Bobby Doerr's 400-foot triple, for four runs in the fourth, picked up another on DiMaggio's third homer of the season in the seventh and knocked Newhouser out of the box in the ninth with three runs when Stephens belted his eleventh four-bagger after Johnny Pesky had doubled and Ted Williams was purposely passed.

Williams, with two singles in four official times up, lifted his league-leading batting average another two points to .411.

The victory was Boston's thirteenth in a red-hot 16-game stretch since first of the month.

Chisox Take Opener, 8-5; Coan Sparks Griffs' Win

By Morris Siegel,
Post Reporter

Chicago, June 20.—Spring and the Nat losing streak ended today. After being slapped down for the eighth straight time, in the opener, 8-5, the Nats rallied behind the stout pitching of Sid Hudson to capture the nightcap, 4-1, and salvage the finale of the four-game series from the White Sox.

It was a triumphant return to form for Hudson, who had been belted out of the box nine times in a row. He set down the cellar-dwellers with nine well-spaced hits and was in mild trouble only once.

In the opener Luke Appling set a new American League record with 10 assists at third base. The old record of nine was set by Fred Hartman of Chicago in 1901, and has since been equaled many times.

Gil Coan, benched when the Nats presented a right-handed offense against Left-Hander Bill Wight in the opener, resumed his place in the line-up in the afterpiece with gusto.

The fleet-footed outfielder drove in two runs, scored one himself and also paddled out two of Washington's eight hits off Al Gettel.

With Coan staking him to an early lead, Hudson kept the Sockers throttled until the eighth when they bundled up two hits and an outfield fly to promote their only run.

Sid was the Hudson of old today. He pitched 50 per cent side-armed, 50 per cent overhanded, and it added up to a 100 per cent performance for him and the Nats.

Coan Drives in Run

It was the first complete game he had pitched since April 20 when he checked the Yanks on five hits.

He also became the first Nat pitcher to complete what he started in eight days.

Coan and Eddie Yost whacked out a couple of hits in the third inning to present Hudson with a 1-0 lead. With two away, Yost tripled, one of three the Nats got off Gettel, and Coan followed with a single.

Coan was the man of the inning again in the fifth, driving in Jake Early with a long fly to right for Nat run No. 2. And Gil made his final contribution of the day in the eighth when the Nats salted away the verdict with a two-run spree.

He doubled to open the frame and tallied on Stewart's sharp single to right. A walk and Johnny Sullivan's double drove in Mickey Vernon with the fourth and final Washington run.

Presented with a lead twice in the opener, Ray Scarborough couldn't hold it, finally being driven out with his second loss in five days and his fourth of the year. The Sox reached him and his successor, Early Wynn, for 11 blows, while the Nats got 10 off Wight.

The Nats entered the seventh inning leading, 4-3, but came out of it licked. Ten Chisox came to bat in the 5-run inning. Catcher Aaron Robinson's single with the bases loaded accounted for two runs and Scarborough's departure. Taft Wright saluted Wyn nwith a two-run triple and scored the fifth run himself on Luke Appling's single.

After losing their 2-0 lead in the fourth the Nats bounced back into command in the sixth on a couple of hits, one a triple by Sullivan, and a walk, but Scarborough couldn't stand prosperity.

Browns Lose, 4-2, 6-2

DiMaggio Slams 3 Homers, Yanks Win Two, Take Second

St. Louis, June 20 (AP).—Three mighty home runs by Joe DiMaggio, including one with two men on base, gave the New York Yankees a double victory over the St. Louis Browns today—4 to 2 and 6 to 2.

The twin-killing put the Yanks into second place in the American League race as the Philadelphia Athletics were dropping two contests to the top-running Cleveland Indians.

DiMaggio's thirteenth blow of the season came in the eighth inning of the nightcap and broke up a 2-2 tie. Then he came up in the ninth frame with Johnny Lindell and Phil Rizzuto on base to cinch the triumph with No. 14. Red Embree allowed the Brownies six scattered hits.

Braves Beat Reds, 5-4, 4-1; Bolster Lead

Boston, June 20 (AP).—The Boston Braves strengthened their slim grip on the National League's first place today by twice defeating the Cincinnati Reds, 5-4, and 4-1, their fifth and sixth victories in succession, before a paid audience of 32,812.

The Tribesmen assured their first game triumph by throttling a Red rally in the ninth after two runs had been scored. Vern Bickford had a shutout in the nightcap uptil the Reds pushed across one in the eighth.

Kramer Beats Riggs for Title

Forest Hills, N. Y., June 20 (U.P.)—Jack Kramer battered Bobby Riggs down to size in an hour-long first set and then kept the pressure going full blast the rest of the way to win the National Professional Tennis Championship today, 14—12, 6—2, 3—6, 6—3.

Riggs blew a 5—3 lead in that all-telling opening set, and after that he was licked, showing obvious fatigue even though he did manage to rally to win the third set.

The victory for Kramer, dethroning Riggs from the title won by downing Don Budge last year, came as no great surprise, for the big, booming belter from Montebelle, Calif., had taught Bobby many a tennis lession on their Nation-wide tour.

Brown Wins 100-Mile National Auto Race

Langhorne, Pa., June 20 (AP).—Walt Brown, Massapequa, Long Island, won the 100-mile AAA-sanctioned National Championship auto race today at the Langhorne Speedway in 1 hour, 6 minutes and 55.66 seconds. He finished seven laps ahead of Mack Hellings, Burbank, Calif.

Emil Andres of Chicago was third and Dane Carter, fourth.

This May Sound Corn-y Because It Is, But It Might Help

Emmett L. Sacre, long-time Washington Nats fan, doesn't know what to do about Joe Kuhel's headaches, but he does claim to have a remedy for Carden Gillenwater's corns.

Mr. Sacre, a 54-year-old truck driver-mechanic, who lives at 1400 Hamlin st. ne., says he thought of his favorite corn remedy yesterday while listening to Radio Sportscaster Arch McDonald refer to Gillenwater's "foot trouble."

The sure-cure corn-chaser, says Mr. Sacre, is a preparation "made from the oil of sheep wool." He has offered to furnish the Nat outfielder with a sample along with his wholehearted endorsement, without charge.

$1000 Inaugural for Pacers Opens Laurel Raceway Tonight

Cards Take 1st, 7-2

Giants Win Second on 3 Homers in 8th

New York, June 20 (AP).—Successive eighth-inning homers by Johnny Mize, Willard Marshall and Sid Gordon enabled the New York Giants to come from behind and beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 6-4, today in the second game of a double-header.

The Cards won the opener, 7-2, mainly on four-baggers by Terry Moore, Stan Musial and Senos Slaughter.

Cubs Beat Bums, 6-3, Sweep 3-Game Series

Brooklyn, June 20 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs dumped Brooklyn, 6-3, today to sweep their three-game series from the Dodgers. Andy Pafko and Bob Scheffing, with three hits each, led the Cubs' 13-hit attack against three Dodger pitchers. Four Dodger errors aided the Cubs in scoring four of their runs.

Peewee Reese had a four-for-four day.

Eight Events Listed; 8:15 Post Time

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Tonight Laurel Raceway opens its gates—and mutuel windows—for business.

Last-minute rush work on the $600,000 harness racing plant was hampered by heavy rains and it may be a bit rough around the edges. But then that's an old race track custom, having a photo-finish in the construction end.

Trouble for Laurel was that it didn't get permission to build until April and most of the more elaborate plans had to be shelved for next season.

Nonetheless, the half-mile track expects to have a colorful opening. It's replete with the latest equipment instrumental in helping along the comeback of the harness sport. The tote board's in the infield; an excellent lighting system has been installed and the track sports a $15,000 mobile starting gate mounted on a sleek Cadillac.

8:15 Post Time

First post is scheduled for 8:15 and the last race should be over by 11:15. The meeting will run 20 nights and five extra nights are provided for rain postponements. When the going is too gooey, the sulkies can't navigate.

Tonight's first racing card is divided equally between the trotters and pacers with four events for each. Feature race, the seventh, is being turned over to the pacers, though.

Five of them will go postward in the $1000 Inaugural, a one-mile event. All have spun miles in 2:06 to 2:07 on half-mile tracks—respectable efforts when you take into consideration the fact that they'd go four seconds faster on a mile oval.

Heavy favorite, at 7 to 5, is Prince James, winner of six races this year. The 6-year-old is owned by Phillip Brittingham, of Laurel, Del., and will be driven by Alan Myer, 22-year-old member of the harness-famed Myer clan.

Fifth Race Top Trot Event

Second choice is 11-year-old Watson E. Direct, 7 to 2, who will be driven by Tom Wingate, top sulky pilot at the Harrington, Del., meet.

William E. Miller, local furniture dealer, will drive his Mr. Morris Scott in its first start this year and the 8-year-old has a chance to take it all. Another veteran pacer, Edgar Hanover II, will be driven by canny Harry Stout.

Rounding out the field is La-Tosca, only mare in the race. At 6 to 1, she's considered an in-and-outer but boasts a recent victory at Roosevelt Raceway. Ed Kelly will handle her.

How to Go

The new Laurel Raceway is located right on the Washington-Baltimore Boulevard, U. S. Route 1, 1½ miles past Laurel. Special bus service direct to the track is being provided. Capital Transit buses leave 1416 F st. nw., from 6 until 7:30 p. m. Buses from the Grey Line terminal, 1315 New York ave., leave from 5:15 to 7:30 p. m. Buses will remain at the track and return after the seventh and eighth races.

AFTER JUMPING THE GUN—On its second start, after hitting the starting line too soon on the first, the field gets away closely bunched in the first heat of the 225-cubic-inch hydroplane class during yesterday's National Capital Powerboat Regatta on the Potomac. Aljo, the favorite driven by Joe Van Blerck, is in third position behind Smarty Pants and Breezy II. Next is Pearl V a few inches ahead of Tommy Boy, with Whirlaway in the background. The winner: Tommy Boy, piloted by Arlington's Joe Palmer, when the leading Aljo developed engine trouble

Kiner Hits 2 Homers as Pirates Split

Philadelphia, June 20 (AP).—Ralph Kiner hit his eighteenth and nineteenth home runs of the season today as the Pittsburgh Pirates won the nightcap, 7-5, after the Philadelphia Phillies had taken the opener, 9-0.

The four-hit pitching of Dutch Leonard and the hitting of Eddie Miller, who drove in five runs, featured the first game.

Palmer's Luck Changes

Long Island Skipper Wins Regatta; Arlington Pilot 2d

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

"A hard luck guy" was the way Joe Palmer was described until yesterday, when everything broke perfectly for the fish market manager from Arlington and he did everything but win the point trophy in the first National Capital Powerboat Regatta between Highway and Memorial bridges.

Palmer, in his flashing Tommy Boy, was charmed yesterday. Starting in his own class, the 135-cubic-inch hydroplanes, he romped to victories in both heats.

Then he moved Tommy Boy up a notch to the 225-cubic-inch hydroplane class and repeated the feat. That gave him a total of 1600 points for the day, second only to Vic Scott, the Forest Hills, Long Island, ace, who had plenty of engine trouble with his Flying Scott V, but still amassed 1696 points.

Smooth Racing Surface

A cloudy day but fairly smooth racing surface turned up for the 6½-hour program, sponsored by the Junior Board of Commerce and sanctioned by the American Powerboat Association. Thousands lined the Potomac on both sides to see one of the most unusual windups in regatta history.

There was little doubt that Palmer owned the fastest craft in its own class. In both heats of the 135's he hit the starting line expertly, went out in front and stayed there throughout, each time beating out Shirl II, piloted by Clarence Collins of Norfolk.

In the 225's Palmer was racing against the boat and driver—Aljo driven by Joe Van Blerck of Freeport, N. Y.—which won the John Charles Thomas Trophy emblematic of the 1947 national championship.

The only false start of the day marked the 225 first heat, but when the boats were finally away Van Blerck took Aljo into a quick lead and looked like a certain winner. A cracked piston, however, after four of the five laps ended Van Blerck's activities for the day and left the victory to Palmer and his Tommy Boy.

Two Captize, None Hurt

The victor who had swept the 135's with speeds under 49 m.p.h. put on the steam in the larger class and won his first heat at 51.635 m.p.h., trailed by Whirlaway under the guidance of John Francis of Hickory, N. C.

In the next heat Palmer needed slightly more speed, 51.754 m.p.h., to turn back the threat of Pearl IV, driven by Henry Sieck, Hempstead, Long Island.

A pair of boats which capsized in the Class A tydroplanes featured the start of proceedings, although nobody was hurt.

It wasn't until the seventh race that Scott, winner of last year's Albany-to-New York marathon, hung up his first victory in Flying Scot V. He had taken a second and third before the Class F hydroplane first heat, but then he won two events in a row and added another second.

Quantico Wins In 11th on Homer

Quantico, Va., June 20.—Adam Gurca smashed a home run 350 feet over the left-field fence in the eleventh inning to give the Quantico Marines a 5-4 victory over the Camp Lejeune Marines here today.

The losers had tied it in the ninth on Jack Messenagimer's three-run homer. Fred Volk struck out 15 for Quantico and Bill Burns fanned 13 for Lejeune. It was Quantico's seventh straight victory and second straight over Lejeune.

Lorton Wins 7th in Row

Lorton won its seventh straight game yesterday, 6-2, from Lincolnia to maintain its leadership in the West Fairfax Senior League.

Bud Murphy led the winners with a double and a single which drove in three runs.

Chantilly erupted in both games to take a twin bill from Burke, 16-2 and 9-2. Bud Poland, who hit four singles and drove in five runs, sparked the seven-run eighth inning in the first game and Dale Lowe, whose double and two singles batted in two runs, led the six-run fifth in the nightcap.

Forestville took a 9-3 decision from Jermantown in the only other league game. The Centerville-Vienna doubleheader was canceled by wet grounds.

Bogart Takes Maryland Golf Title With 1-Up Victory Over Gardner

Chevy Chase Star Shoots 73 and 70

Baltimore, June 20 (AP).—Ralph Bogart of Chevy Chase won the Maryland State Amateur golf championship here today by defeating Jim Gardner, Washington Golf and Country Club star, 1-up in 36 holes.

Shooting a three under par 70 on the second 18 holes of the match after matching par with a 73 on the morning 18 holes, Bogart nevertheless had to fight off Gardner's challenge down to the final hole.

Gardner moved into a three-up lead on the morning round only to see his margin disappear under Bogart's withering barrage of five straight birdies.

This surge enabled Bogart to hold a 1-up lead as the afternoon round began. Ralph increased his edge to three holes at the 30-hole mark but on the next five holes Gardner played brilliant golf as he came through with several amazing approach shots.

But Bogart, intent on winning his first State championship, staged a great putting exhibition to beat down the husky Gardner's threat.

Ralph dropped a 4-footer on the fourteenth; an 18-foot effort on the fifteenth and a 5-foot putt on the seevnteenth to maintain his margin.

At Chillum

Refrain Top Hunter in Horse Show

By Harry De Mawby, Jr.

Charles Carrico's well-mannered Refrain added another worthwhile tricolor to her credit by taking the hunter championship at the Hyattsville Lions Club horse show yesterday at Lewisdale in Chillum, Md.

Refrain, ridden by her well-known owner in all except the ladies' hunter class, made three of the five classes entered winning ones for 15 points.

Topping one of the largest fields at a one-day show this season, Refrain finished well out in front of Blanche Johnson's good all-round performer Valbo who had six points to earn the reserve award. Dick Sweeney was aboard Valbo.

The jumper championship went to Helen Eichelberger's sensational Baltimore entry, Sedgefire, piloted by the former top pony rider Jimmy Wilson, from the Linky Smith Stables.

The win in the hotly contested knockdown and out, and second in the warm-up and touch and out events, gave Sedgefire the tricolor over W. H. O'Dell's Roxy, well-ridden by Jean Hoeltzel of Randlestown, Md.

Locke's 266 Wins Victory Open Golf

Chicago, June 20 (AP).—In one of golf's greatest one-man shows, methodical Bobby Locke hammered a final round 66 today for a 72-hole total of 266—18 under Midlothian's par and a winning margin of 16 strokes over Ellsworth Vines in the $15,000 Chicago Victory Open Golf tournament.

The victory margin which brought the putting master a $2000 first prize was the greatest in three years of P. G. A. sponsored major tournaments. Ben Hogan shot a 261 to win the Portland, Oreg., Open in 1945 with a 17-stroke margin over second place Byron Nelson.

Hogan's 23-under-par tally in the Portland tourney stands as one of the greatest windups in golf, although Nelson in the same year won the Seattle Open with 259.

Both courses, however, are not regarded by veteran tournament campaigners anywhere near the test of Midlothian's 6587-yard par 35, 36—71 landscape.

Although this yardage is comparatively small, the exceptionally tricky greens, narrow and liberally trapped fairways make up the difference.

Dutch Harrison, who finished down the list with 295, voiced the opinion of most of the pros that Locke's 266 total on a course as tough as Midlothian ranks with the greatest tournament scores ever turned in.

Vines, who registers out of Chicago, fashioned a 66 today to vault into second place with 282—beating par by only two strokes. He collected $1400 second prize.

Skip Alexander of Lexington, N. C., finished with a 70 for 283 and third place, worth $1000. Johnny Bulla of Phoenix was fourth with a 71 for 284. George Fazio of Conshocken, Pa., Jimmy Walkup of Chicago, Dick Metz of Arkansas City, Kans., and Jim Ferrier of San Francisco were grouped at 285.

OPEN JUMPERS—Won by W. H. Odell's Roxy; second, W. C. Viar's Altitude; third, W. C. Viar's Temptation; fourth, F. R. Diehlman, Jr.'s Steel Rock.

OPEN HUNTER—Won by Refrain; second, Brandon King; third, Be Fit; fourth, Jolly Scot.

WESTERN CLASS—Won by Herbert Decater's Black Zephyr; second, Thorpland Farms' Golden Raider; third, Myrna Hightman's Linda; fourth, Alex Michlan's Flash.

KNOCK-DOWN-AND-OUT—Won by Sedgefire; second, Helen Eichelberger's My First Night; third, Roxy; fourth, Temptation.

FIVE-GAITED CHAMPION—Mercer's Copper King, 10 points. Reserve, Noble Gala, 9 points.

Rippy Tops With 71

Washington Golf Team Wins Virginia Round-Robin Match

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

Paced by Claude Rippy's 71, the Washington Golf and Country Club scored 61 points to win the second Virginia four-team round robin golf match yesterday at Washington.

Rippy, although closely pressed for individual honors by Belle Haven's Col. Ben Schriever, who scored a 73, played brilliant golf over the rain-drenched course.

He received plenty of help from his teammates, however. Chick Featherstone, Eddie Steptoe, Don Lee, B. McCabe and George Thomas paced their foursomes, while Harold Hare finished in a tie with Quantico's Bob Conrad in his bracket.

The Quantico team finished second with 38½ points, followed by Belle Haven with 24½ and Fredericksburg with 21.

Next match of the series is slated to be played on the Fredericksburg course in mid-July.

Claude Rippy (Washington), 8; Col. Ben Schriever (Belle Haven), 6; Sergt. Al Broaddus (Quantico), 1½; Alec Campbell, Fredericksburg, 2½.

Harold Hare (W), 7; Mike Duffy (BH), 2½; Maj. R. Conrad (Q), 7; B. Frackleton (F), 1½; B. McCabe (W), 8½; D. Hallberg (F), 5½; Capt. John Lea (Q), 0; Ashby Briggs (BH), 4.

E. Steptoe (W), 8½; Sergt. S. K. Davison (Q), 6½; Bill Wright (F), 2; Wally Sensa (BH), 1.

George Thomas (W), 8½; Col. M. Rydalth (Q), 4; B. Washington (F), 3½; Paul Lipps (BH), 2.

C. Featherstone (W), 8½; Maj. J. L. Rhoades (Q), 6½; Eddie Edwards (BH), 2; Dr. H. Ware (F), 1.

Lieut. H. L. Jordan (Q), 8; Bill Elmer (F), 4; Sid Carroll (W), 3½; Jack Kurtz (BH), 2½.

Don Lee (W), 8½; Capt. H. L. Selbough (Q), 5; Gen. G. H. Craigie (BH), 3½; Jud Dillard (F), 1.

MANOR—Charles W. Cullen teamed with Mrs. Joseph Himmelheber to win yesterday's mixed Scotch foursome low net prize with a 90—21—69. Low gross honors went to Harry Pitt and Mrs. G. E. Pugh, whose 37—40—77 edged George E. Martin and Mrs. Walter Stokes' 40—43—83. Second low net went to G. E. Getty and Miss Grace Long with 90—20—70 and W. A. Cobert and Mrs. A. F. Schmidt placed third with 93—23—70.

BETHESDA—Four teams advanced to the semifinal round of the Bethesda Country Club two-man team championship. Serge Folk and Hank Harmon defeated Francis Donaldson-Les Doidge, 1 up in 19 holes; Willis Nolan and J. Ballentine defeated Horace Lurton and R. Goodridge, 4 and 3; J. E. Williams and E. Welsh defeated Col. R. Oxreider and R. Baker, 2 and 1, and Tom Manning and R. Patterson defeated Gene Arnold and Al Feibler, 4 and 2.

KENWOOD—Three teams tied for first place in yesterday's mixed Scotch foursome tournament at Kenwood. Mrs. R. K. Benner-W. R. McCoach, 87—16—71; Mr. and Mrs. David Griffin, 91—20—71, and Mrs. J. H. Somes and M. M. Wire, 86—15—71, were deadlocked for the low net prize. Low gross competition also ended in a tie, with Mrs. Richard Kreuzberg and R. C. Hereford and Mr. and Mrs. Nick Hollander scoring 82s.

WOODMONT—Howard Nordlinger and Bud Brylawski finished Woodmont's Class A sweepstakes yesterday with identical 78—3—75 totals. In Class B, A. J. Feigen, 89—19—70, was first and Al Goldstein, 86—13—73, took runner-up honors. Dr. Irving Lichtman, 100—26—74, and Dr. M. B. Miller, 98—24—74, tied for the Class C prize. Three men gained the quarter-final round of the club championship tournament. Howard Nordlinger downed Cabot Feldman, 4 and 3; Dave Wortman ousted Mel Kraft, 7 and 5, and Jerry Goodman defeated Alvin Dulcan, 4 and 3.

ARMY-NAVY—F. L. Elder captured the 18-hole medal play tournament with three-quarter handicap for the Gibbons Trophy yesterday at Army-Navy. Elder shot a 74—5—69 to edge D. N. Cairns, who carded an 81—11—70.

COLUMBIA—Tommy Webb paced the second day of qualifying play for the club championship at Columbia as he scored a snappy 35,36—71. With one day of qualifying play remaining, other low scores reported were Buddy Bowie's 72; Billy Shea's 75; Maury Nee's 76, another 76 by Earl Skinker and a 78 by Johnny Holzberg.

PRINCE GEORGES—Marie Walper took the low gross prize in yesterday's Mechaw Cup Tournament at Prince Georges, but three women finished in a deadlock for low net honors in the 18-hole medal play handicap affair. Mrs. Charles Woster, 99—26—73; Mrs. Charles Frownfelter, 90—17—73 and Mrs. Ralph Byers, 109—36—73 will meet in a playoff for the trophy.

Congressional—J. M. Diffee and his son Bill Diffee paired to win the Congressional Country Club's annual Family Golf tournament yesterday. The father-son team shot a 183—29—154.

BELLE HAVEN—Lieut. Howard Sias, Wally Sezna, Paul Lipps and Charles Holden advanced to the semifinal round of the Belle Haven Bowl competition in yesterday's quarter final matches. Sias downed H. Phillips, 1 up in 19 holes; Lipps defeated Eddie Edwards, 4 and 3; Holden bested W. J. Sanders, 1 up, and Sezna defeated Mike Duffy, 1 up, in 19 holes. In next week's matches Sezna faces Sias and Lipps meets Holden.

ARGYLE — Eighteen teams started play in Argyle Country Club's two-man team championship yesterday with Bob Solomon and Len Burrage defeating Ray Lawrenson and S. T. Chamblin, 1 up, on the twenty-first hole in the day's closest match.

Frank Emmet, junior golf tournament director, announced yesterday that there is still time to enter the District Junior Tournament Tuesday at Congressional. Only 21 boys have entered thus far and Emmet expects a field of at least 35 entries. Phone your entries in to Frank at WI. 3847 if you want to get in under the wire.

Falls Church Wins Twice

Wimpy Williams scored from third on a single by John O'Connor in the eighth inning to give Falls Church a 2-1 victory over the White Sox in an East Fairfax League game yesterday.

Williams earlier had doubled home Dale Clark for the winners' first run.

Bill Lusey cracked a home run with two on base in the second inning to lead Falls Church to a 7-5 victory over Annandale in the first game of a twin bill. George Churchill drove in two runs with a pair of singles to help Annandale to a 6-3 win in the second game.

2000 Attend Hymn-Sing At Sylvan

Nearly 2000 persons attended an open air hymn-sing at the Sylvan Theater on the Washington Monument grounds last night.

In couples and groups they came, many with their children, to hear the old familiar hymns sung by Washington church choirs on the program under the general chairmanship of Justin Lawrie, choirmaster at Foundry Methodist Church.

It was still daylight when the program opened with a concert by a Salvation Army band. It was twilight when they joined in singing "Faith of Our Fathers" and "The Old Rugged Cross," led by Dr. Robert Howe Harmon, director of George Washington University Glee Clubs.

It was night, with a full moon rising from behind the tree-banked platform, when they heard the Las-Octetsie of Salvation Army singers, Columbia Elks Club Chanters, the Junior Choir of Mount Carmel Baptist Church, Galbraith A.M.E. Zion Church Choir, the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church Choir, and a special all-solist group of 16.

Featured soloists were Contralto Hazel Arth and Fague Springman, baritone. Lawrie, by special request, sang the old gospel song, "The Ninety and Nine."

Dr. Charles Dana Beaschler, minister of music at the New York Avenue Church, was general musical director, and the Rev. G. E. Lenski, pastor of Grace Lutheran Church, gave the invocation.

In the grand finale all the choirs joined in singing O'Hara's "One World" and the "Hallelujah" from Handel's "Messiah."

Real Father's Day

THIS TRIO was among the nearly 2000 persons who attended and participated in the second annual open air hymn-sing at the Sylvan Theater last night. From left, Mrs. June Whiteman, 1211 S. Thomas st., Arlington, Va.; Pfc. Walter J. Cornett, Arlington Hall Station, and Miss Vanette Retherford, 1420 R st. nw.

Coroner Withholds Ruling in Md. Death

Dr. John T. Maloney, Prince Georges County medical examiner, said yesterday he would withhold certification in the death of Miss Ruth Elizabeth Maske, 35, of 1213 52d ave., Hillside, Md., pending a chemical analysis of her stomach.

The woman, a charwoman in a Hillside tavern, complained of stomach pains Thursday night. She was examined Friday by a doctor, who gave a prescription which was not filled until Saturday. The mother found her daughter dead when she reached home with the medicine.

Citizen Groups To Hold Meetings

Only two citizen groups will meet this week, both in final sessions until next fall.

The Interfederation Council of the Federation of Citizens' Associations will meet today at 8 p. m. in the Board of Trade room, Star building.

On Wednesday the Citizens' Forum of Columbia Heights will meet at 8 p. m. in the Powell Junior High School, Hiatt pl. and Lamont st. nw. The group will discuss restrictive covenants and proposed unsegregated playgrounds.

Madison, N. C., Fire Does Heavy Damage

Madison, N. C., June 20 (AP).—Fire swept through half a block of the business district here today. Firemen from half-a-dozen cities and towns nearby helped bring it under control after a two-and-a-half hour fight.

There was no immediate estimate of the damage. A garage, two grocery stores and a billiard parlor were destroyed. Madison is a town of about 2000, 30 miles north of Winston-Salem.

Area Institutions Granted $63,683 for Cancer Research

Three District institutions and the University of Maryland will receive $63,683 for cancer research. The money is part of nearly a million dollars distributed to 86 non-Federal agencies.

The funds, allocated under recommendations of the National Advisory Cancer Council, will go to the following District and area institutions:

National Research Council, $27,000, for correlation of studies of chemical compounds effective against tumors; Warwick Memorial Clinic (Garfield Hospital), $24,188, for specific studies on diagnosis and therapy of clinical cancer; Georgetown University Medical School, $5000, for inventory of tissue regeneration in tumors, and University of Maryland, $7495, for study of compounds as chemotherapeutic agents against cancer.

The $919,310 in Federal grants, announced by Federal Security Administrator Oscar R. Ewing, will enable several institutions to conduct studies in chemotherapy, or treatment with chemical agents. The largest of the grants, $85,064 to the University of California, will be partly for that purpose.

Both new and continued research projects will benefit, with the Western States receiving a much larger share of the total than under previous cancer research allocations, according to Dr. J. R. Heller, National Cancer Institute director.

U. S. Pianist a Success

Milan, Italy, June 20 (AP).—A young American pianist, Vera Franceschi, 22, scored an outstanding success at La Scala Theater last night, playing the second concerto in D minor for piano and orchestra by the United States composer Edward MacDowell.

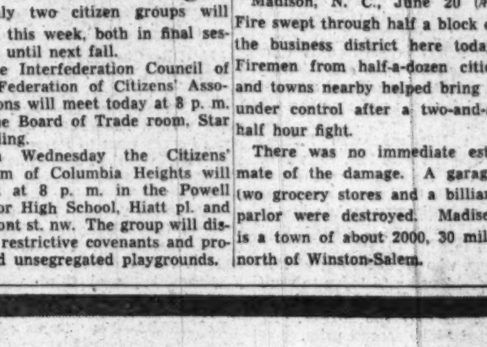
What's the Hottest News in Cars since the Self-Starter?



FOR the answer to that, just ask any man who drives a Dynaflow Buick.

He'll tell you, you haven't seen anything yet—until you slip behind a Dynaflow wheel and see for yourself what this new drive does.

It isn't merely that it's easy—though all you do in normal driving is set a lever, press the gas treadle, and steer.

It isn't merely the "stunts" you can pull, such as coming to a dead stop on a steep hill, then moving smoothly away, just by the way you manage the gas treadle.

The important thing is that Dynaflow Drive* marks a basic change in the way power is delivered from the engine to the rear wheels.

The idea of passing through a series of gears in fixed stages, either manually or by mechanical means, is gone entirely.

Instead, spinning oil is so cunningly directed and controlled in the Dynaflow unit that it instantly shapes engine power to fit any normal driving need.

When you start, it steps up engine "torque" like a low gear to give you swift, surging getaway.

When you cruise on the level open road, it delivers power with a flowing smoothness that is far silkier than the normal high.

You have manual control of direction simply by moving a lever. You have reserve braking power instantly at your command—and extra power for emergency pulls.

But there is never any clutch-work—there is no clutch-pedal. And never any gear-shifting in the old sense—your power plant does what the forward gears used to do.

Right now, of course, Dynaflow Drive is available only on Buick ROADMASTER models.

Go find out about it, at the nearest Buick dealer—and be ready to put your order in, whether or not you have a car to trade.

*Optional at extra cost on Roadmaster models only.

New Buildings For Courts, GAO Start in Spring

Veterans Hospital, Heart Institute, 2 Senate Projects Also Ready to Go

Construction of a new Federal Courts Building and a new General Accounting Office Building is expected to get started here early next year, now that Congress has cleared the necessary legislation.

These and four other large projects, given a go-ahead signal by Congress early yesterday, are awaiting President Truman's signature.

The other projects whose construction is now all but assured are a Veterans' Administration hospital on the 25-acre Nevius tract in Arlington; a new Senate Office Building, at 1st st. between B and C sts. ne.; the National Heart Institute, at the Public Health Service's 40-million-dollar research center and hospital in Bethesda, Md., and renovation of the Senate chamber.

For the new courthouse on Constitution ave. between 3d st. and John Marshall pl. nw., Congress appropriated an initial one million dollars, setting a limit of $14,875,000 on its cost.

Public Buildings Commissioner W. E. Reynolds said last night the job would take about 2½ years. Working plans are being drawn, and bids should be advertised by the end of the year, he said.

Congress made no new appropriation for the General Accounting General Office Building, already begun at 5th and G sts. nw., but it gave final sanction to the project in the second deficiency appropriation bill by authorizing the Public Buildings Administration to let contracts up to $22,850,000. In 1941, when the site was first approved, five million dollars was appropriated. What is left of this and a two-million-dollar grant in 1935 will launch the construction.

Reynolds, who foresees the beginning of construction early next year for both the courthouse and GAO buildings, said specifications for the GAO structure should be ready by late fall and contracts let around the end of the year.

The way was cleared for the 750-bed veterans hospital in a supplemental appropriation bill lifting last year's congressional ban against using the controversial Nevius tract, at Lee blvd. and Arlington Ridge rd. Funds for the 25-million-dollar hospital are already available. The Veterans Administration has spent about $100,000 for plans and surveying.

The new Senate Office Building, just east of the present one, was limited in cost to not more than $20,600,000. The bill appropriated $1,950,000 for the site and plans.

Congress approved one million dollars for the National Heart Institute.

Renovation of the Senate chamber, on which no cost limit was set, will be done in the next three years between sessions. The work will include a new roof and interior reconstruction. To start the project, $600,000 was appropriated, to be added to $200,000 already available.

Other District legislation awaiting the President's signature yesterday would:

1. Permit chronic mental patients to bypass Gallinger Hospital and be admitted directly to St. Elizabeths Hospital.

2. Authorize Defense Homes Corporation to transfer to Howard University two residence halls originally built for warworkers.

3. Direct the District Commissioners to investigate reports of high parking fees.

4. Increase license fees for barbers.

Taught English

D. C. Girl Returning From Poland

A Washington girl who has been teaching English to Poles in Warsaw is coming home, satisfied she has done a good job during the past two years.

She is pretty, blonde Miss Anne Waterman, 22, daughter of Dr. Alan T. Waterman, a Navy Department scientist, and Mrs. Waterman, 4711 Rodman st. nw.

According to the Associated Press, Miss Waterman left her textbooks at the war-battered University of Warsaw yesterday and took a train for Paris, her first stop homeward.

She plans to visit in England and arrive in Washington late in July, her father said last night.

MISS ANNE WATERMAN
Returning From Warsaw

She went to Warsaw in 1946, fresh out of Vassar, announcing she "wanted to spread Americanism in Poland by teaching the English language." She herself learned Polish after she went abroad and, in Warsaw, incurred criticism from Polish Communists for her talks about American freedom.

"Often things were difficult," the Associated Press quoted her as saying yesterday. "But I'm glad I came. I've done something wonderful. I've met Poles. They've met me. I know that regardless of the political situation, Poles like America and our freedom."

She estimated at least 60 of her 120 students had learned English. They ranged in age from 16 to 70.

Rally to Boost U. S. Bond Sales Scheduled Today

A rally to boost sales of U. S. savings bonds will be held at 10:30 a. m. today in Post Square, 14th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw.

A trailer "bondmobile," part of America's Security Loan campaign to sell $22,500,000 bonds of the E, F and G series to District residents, will be on hand to sell the bonds.

Songstress Lynn Allison and Pat Rooney, sr., veteran hoofer now appearing in the stage show at Loew's Capitol Theater, will entertain. The Metropolitan Police band will give a concert and members of the Women's Bond-a-Month League will appear in colonial costumes.

The bondmobile will be at Pentagon Building for another show at 12:30 p. m.

Postal Clerks to Meet

Ways of bettering the postal service and the economic position of postal clerks will be discussed at the annual convention of post-office clerks of Maryland, Delaware and the District, which opens here Thursday. Headquarters for the three-day meeting will be at the Washington Hotel.

Alexandria 'Unsanitary', Study Reveals

Post Check Confirms Attacks Launched by Women Voters League

By Richard Lyons
Post Reporter

Alexandria's public health program—or the lack of one—has long served as a favorite sniper's target for the political "outs" in the city.

Two weeks ago, however, it came under attack again when the Alexandria League of Women Voters published the findings of a year-long study. The nonpartisan league told of unsanitary conditions existing throughout the city, little use of costly Health Department equipment, low pay for department employes.

It concluded the fault is shared jointly by the Health Officer for lack of interest, by the City Council for not putting out enough money and with the public for not caring enough to do anything about it.

Investigation Requested

The City Council responded by asking the State Board of Health to investigate the Health Department.

Last week, a reporter and photographer of The Washington Post checked into one phase of the report—unsanitary conditions in the city.

They found: 1. Trash cans piled in an alley in the rear of the 300 block of King st. under a sign reading "Warning—It is unlawful to deposit . . . trash . . . in the alley. Violators will be prosecuted. By order of the Alexandria Health Department."

2. The city dog pound looking like a decrepit and long abandoned chicken coop on the edge of the municipal ball field.

3. Dirty trash cans without lids (illegal) in many places, and specifically behind the 400 block of King st. Trash littered the ground, chickens scratched in the filth and rats waddled around in daylight.

4. A maze of board fence sheds, piled lumber and rubble in the rear of many houses which put up a presentable front to the street.

5. Weeds growing chest high in violation of city law within sight of the Health Department offices.

6. Through it all flows Hoff's Run, a storm ditch, which neighbors say carries more sewage than the closed sewer adjacent to it.

These were not the worst conditions to be found. Rather, they are typical of the state of run-down health standards in much of the old section of the city.

What does the city and the Health Department think of it?

Plan to Cover Run

The City Council has earmarked money in a forthcoming bond issue for the covering of Hoff's Run for one-quarter of the mile stretch that it runs beside the sewer. It has considered for a month, without acting, a proposal made by a private citizen to clean up backyards for playground space.

Last winter, the council refused the health's officer's request for salary increases, although the highest paid public nurse there earns less than the lowest paid public nurse in Washington, and the health officer's $6000 a year pay contrasts with the $10,000 paid for the same job in Montgomery County.

Health Officer Dr. W. Lewis Schafer, jr., puts the blame on lack of funds, which in turn means lack of sufficient and properly trained personnel.

Alexandria was the only city in the Greater Washington area not to have the mass X-Ray check for tuberculosis. The city council, still conscience stricken from the spending rampage it went on last year, would not appropriate the money.

The Health Department, which is housed in the newest and biggest municipal building in the city, had $7500 worth of X-ray equipment. Why couldn't they put on their own campaign? Because, said Schafer, the city Board of Health had restricted its use to school teachers and indigent tubercular cases—though city law requires all food-handlers to have X-rays made regularly.

RAT BAIT—A drunk sleeps it off in a trash-filled yard in the rear of a S. Pitt st. address. Such sheds and property—dividing board fences are backyard fixtures in many congested areas

POLLUTION—Hooff's Run, a storm drain that flows uncovered more than a mile through Alexandria, is pictured looking north toward Linden st. Note sewer pipe on opposite side of stream which parallels the run the entire distance. Residents claim, and health department officials admit, that a hard rain floods the sewer and brings sewage into the stream

Ross Faces Trial For Life in Rape

Joseph (Dupe) Ross, 54-year-old Takoma Park, Md., garbage collector, will go on trial for his life today in Montgomery County circuit court, charged with raping a 72-year-old widow last May.

Police said Ross was arrested as a result of an accurate description given them by the nearly blind woman who used her sense of touch. A Montgomery County jury, called into special session last month, indicted Ross after deliberating only a few minutes.

WGAY to Broadcast Both Conventions

Radio station WGAY, Silver Spring, Md., will broadcast both national conventions from the Maryland angle direct from Convention Hall in Philadelphia.

Highlights of the Republican convention will be handled by J. Glenn Beall, jr., son of Representative J. Glenn Beall, (R., Md.). Broadcasts will run today through Friday from 5:15 to 5:30 with rebroadcasts at 7:30.

Blair Lee, III, delegate from Maryland to the Democratic convention, will cover that convention for WGAY, beginning July 12.

Legion Post to Cruise

Colmar Manor Post No. 131, American Legion, will sponsor a moonlight cruise on the SS Potomac Wedneseday night. Television of the Louis-Walcott fight will be shown aboard the boat.

5-Day Week For Firemen Held Not Due Until 1950

Congress Miracle Seen Necessary to Get Funds Needed For Added Costs

Without a congressional miracle, the newly won 5-day week for Washington firemen won't go into effect until the beginning of 1950, if not later.

The bill cutting one day from the firefighters' work week, signed Saturday by President Truman, says the new hours begin six months after the required funds are available.

An estimated $623,000 is needed to pay new salaries in the first year of operation. If this money is included in the next District appropriation bill, it would be available for use July 1, 1949, and actual operation of the shortened week would have to wait another six months while approximately 200 new firemen are trained.

Congressional appropriations experts raised one other possibility, but held it unlikely—that special legislation setting aside the money be passed if Congress is called back between now and its convening date, December 31, or by the new Congress before adoption of the District budget for fiscal 1950.

At present, District firemen are on a six-day week, averaging 72 hours—84 hours on the night shift and 60 on the day shift.

Under the new law, they would simply get one more day off, with no change in daily hours. In alternating between nights and days, they would work an average of 60 hours.

W. H. Ronan, the Fire Department's executive officer, said all details of putting the "short" week into effect have been worked out. He said he understood the Civil Service Commission would advertise for the jobs over a wide area to insure getting enough qualified men.

Burglars Burn Open Safe, Steal $2180

Undetermined Amount Of Narcotics Taken At Suitland Pharmacy

Burglars yesterday burned open a safe at the Suitland Pharmacy, 4692 Suitland rd., Suitland, Md., and fled with $2180 in cash and an undetermined amount of narcotics.

The robbery was discovered by John S. Austerlitz, proprietor, when he opened the drug store yesterday morning. Police said the thieves had entered through a rear window after prying off iron bars. An acetylene torch was used to burn open the heavy safe door, they said.

Corpl. Raymond Blandford and Pvts. J. P. Kearns and J. W. Vincent of the Prince Georges County police said the theft appeared to be the work of professional yeggmen.

Theaters Add To Fund for Slain Officer

Sidney Lust theaters in Prince Georges County, in collections Saturday and Sunday, added $2000 to the fund to aid the family of slain Prince Georges Policeman Charles Caldwell.

Speakers who urged aid for the policeman's family included Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer, (D. Md.) State Senator L. Harold Sothoron, State Delegate Perry O. Wilkinson, Mayor Caesar L. Aiello of Hyattsville, Mayor Floyd B. Mathias of Mount Rainier, former State's Attorney H. Winship Wheatley, retired District Police Inspector Richard Mansfield, and Attorneys Joseph Marshall Mathias, Louis Lebowitz, Robert Mathias and Dan Burke.

The Lust theaters will stage a benefit performance next week at Cheverly Theater for the fund. All expenses will be borne by Sidney Lust and all proceeds given to the Caldwell family.

Management of the Tick-Tock Tavern, University lane and Riggs rd, near Hyattsville, meanwhile, has announced that all proceeds other than State tax money collected Tuesday at the restaurant will be donated to the fund, a portion of which will be allocated to Policeman Wallace L. Baker, who was shot and seriously wounded.

Contributions have reached more than $4500 and $1500 has been turned in for tickets to the benefit dance to be held Wednesday at Prince Georges Golf and Country Club.

Lafayette Park Draws Sightseers

"Lafayette Square, or Park, was once a part of the President's Park, which extended south to the Potomac.

"Originally the site was owned by the Pierce family, whose graveyard was located between the present Jackson monument and the White House, and at one time in the 1790's there was a racetrack on the north side."

Stanley W. McClure, a uniformed National Park Service historian, was leading a Sunday afternoon tour of the Square.

His audience listened intently, while his voice competed with Pennsylvania ave. traffic. There were more than 60 of them, mostly middle-aged, undeterred by yesterday's threatening weather, indifferent to the looks of people on the benches and of cockney-tough pigeons fluttering about.

"The statue of Andrew Jackson was the first equestrian statue in Washington and the second in the Western Hemisphere," McClure continued. "It cost $42,500, of which $12,000 was contributed by Jacksonian Democrats and the balance by Congress."

In front of what is now the Brookings Institution, history took a wpefully human form as McClure recalled the triangular story of Gen. Dan Sickles, his beautiful Italian wife, and Phili Barton Key.

From the Washington Club on Madison pl. Key would look across the square to Sickle's house for Mrs. Sickle's signals. Her outraged husband shot and killed Key.

By this time the recently married couple in the party were holding hands.

At H and 16th sts. it was noted that the Hay-Adams House occupied the site of two homes, that of John Hay and that of Henry Adams. Two famous books were written there, "The Education of Henry Adams," and Nicolay and Hay's biography of Abraham Lincoln.

At St. John's Episcopal Church, across the street, a professional sightseeing guide remarked aside to McClure that the statue of Kosciusko on the corner at Vermont ave. showed a wounded soldier pointing at the Veterans Administration building.

Night of Thrills Set for Tuesday With New Circus

"The storm-tossed Masonic Night of Thrills, twice postponed because of bad weather, will be resumed at Griffith Stadium Tuesday at 7 p. m., it was announced yesterday.

The extravaganza which was washed out Friday night after the crowning of a rain-drenched "Queen," suffered a second reversal Saturday because of bad weather.

The show will open at 7:15 p. m., with the crowning of the Thrills Queen. A new four-ring 14-act circus will move in. The parade, model plane contest and fireworks will round out the program. Rain checks are good and 4000 general admission tickets will be on sale at the stadium at $1.

Area News in Brief

Perjury Charged In Enlistment

Charges of perjury against Mrs. Catherine D. Nuanes, 43, of 805 New York ave., Silver Spring, Md., are scheduled to be heard Tuesday in Silver Spring Police Court.

Mrs. Nuanes, at liberty under $500 bond, posed as the mother of 14-year-old William Loewy to aid his enlistment in the United States Army, according to a warrant sworn out by the boy's father, Jacob Loewy, 421 Ethan Allen ave., Takoma Park.

The Loewys were in Fort Defiance, Va., attending graduating exercises from Augusta Military Academy of their other son, Jack, 18, when the alleged offense occurred, police said yesterday.

The parents, police said, also found he had assigned a $50 a month dependency allotment to Mrs. Nuanes.

The boy now is in San Antonio, Tex., and the parents hope to obtain his release soon, they said.

Stadium Honors Kelly

A sports stadium in St. Cloud, a suburb of Paris, was dedicated yesterday in the memory of Staff Sergt. Lawrence R. Kelly of 635 A st. se., believed to have been the first American wounded in the liberation of the French capital.

The sergeant, who was an airborne engineer, was wounded 35 times before he fell at the St. Cloud bridge, the Associated Press reported. He died in 1946 after being returned to the United States.

Firemen Rescue Swallow

A swallow, trapped in an unused kitchen vent in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Leopold, of 3731 Jenifer st. nw., was rescued yesterday by firemen.

Mrs. Leopold called the Fire Department after hearing strange noises in her kitchen wall. Firemen traced the sounds to a closed-off galvanized metal vent, leading from the kitchen to the roof.

Firemen had to chisel out plaster closing off the kitchen end of the vent to reach the bird. Several dead birds also were found in the vent.

New Red Cross Unit

Registration is now being held for a new unit of arts and skills volunteers to serve in the U. S. Soldiers Home Hospital, according to Mrs. Bruce Roberts, chairman of the District Red Cross arts and skills service.

The Soldiers Home Hospital is the most recent Federal institution to be added to the hospitals where Red Cross arts and skills workers are assigned. The others are Walter Reed, Forest Glen and Bolling Field Hospitals.

The new arts and skills class will get under way as soon as ten or more have registered. The trainees will be instructed by a highly-skilled worker. Women over 21 years of age are eligible. Mrs. Roberts asked women who have daytime hours to phone REpublic 8300, Extension 136, for further information.

Patients Cruise Tonight

Patients of veterans hospitals and nearby military installations will be guests of Department of Justice American Legion Post No. 41 tonight on a cruise aboard the S. S. Potomac. The boat will leave the 7th st. wharves at 8:30 p. m.

At the same time Tuesday, other veteran patients and servicemen of nearby stations will cruise aboard the S. S. Potomac as guests of the Times-Herald recreation association.

Fight Tickets Stolen

Two tickets to the Louis-Walcott fight have left John W. Cave, 35, of 1019 New Jersey ave. nw., afoul Washington police.

Cave ran into Thirteenth Precinct station house in the 700 block of U st. nw. Saturday night, pursued by four men who claimed Cave had taken two fight tickets from Claude H. Mial, 1915 14th st. nw.

Cave, police said, finally admitted the theft and took police to a restaurant in the 1300 block of U st. nw., where, according to police, the tickets were found. Charged with petty larceny, he was released under $50 collateral for appearance today in Municipal Court.

USO Veterans to Meet

A meeting of former USO professional workers in Greater Washington will be held Friday at 8 p. m. in the Community Building, 1101 M st. nw. Warren D. Hanscom, national director of the newly formed USOVETS, will discuss the purposes of the organization.

Jack Houlihan, recreation secretary for the Council of Social Agencies and a former USO regional supervisor in the United States and Bermuda, is acting regional USOVETS director.

Capper 'Just Tired'

Senator Arthur Capper (R., Kans.) who entered the Bethesda Naval Hospital Wednesday for a "checkup," was reported doing "very nicely" yesterday.

Attaches said he was "more in need of a rest than anything else." He is "just tired," they explained.

The elderly legislator, at 82, the oldest man in the Senate, was working late hours in the session-end rush when secretaries noticed he apparently felt ill. He was ordered to the hospital by a physician.

An aid expressed doubt he would attend the National Republican Convention in Philadelphia this week.

Tydings Praises GOP For O'Conor Inquiry

Republican Congressmen, says Senator Tydings (D., Md.), acted fairly and impartially in deciding an election contest in favor of Democratic Senator O'Conor of Maryland.

He congratulated his GOP colleagues, and singled out Senator Jenner (R., Ind.) for special commendation. Jenner was chairman of a subcommittee which investigated the contest, filed by the Republican senatorial candidate, D. John Markey.

Civitans to Hear Mrs. Lee

Mrs. Reynolds Lee, president of the Potomac area of Camp Fire Girls, and Miss Marine Barry, the area's executive director, will speak at 12:30 p. m. Tuesday before Washington Civitan Club, meeting at the Mayflower Hotel.

Ideal Father of Year Feted at Luncheon

The Washington Post

PROUD DAUGHTER—Samuel R. Davenport, 407 South Cherry st., Falls Church, The Washington Post's Ideal Father of the Year; Mrs. Davenport and their two daughters, Jeffra, 6, and Rosslyn, 11, were entertained at a luncheon yesterday at the Statler. It was Rosslyn's letter that brought the honor to her father

World 4-H Sermon Theme At Annapolis

America's top 4-H Club boys and girls, here to learn first-hand how their Government works, yesterday took time out to journey to Annapolis for services in the U. S. Naval Academy chapel.

Principal speaker at the services was Dr. C. B. Smith of No. 1 Montgomery ave., Takoma Park, former chief of the Agriculture Department's extension service. After reminding them of the necessity for "study of the art, science and strategy of war," Dr. Smith asked:

"Shall America not also have institutions that will help train us so that we may learn to maintain the ways of honor, justice, and righteousness in the world and prevent wars through peaceful means?"

Such an institution, suggested Dr. Smith, could be the 4-H Clubs of this and other countries.

Participating in the services were Robert Larson, of Portland, Conn., who read the scripture, and the Misses Jo Ann Neville, Pine City, Minn., and Evelyn McKay, Clayton, N. Mex., who led the group in prayer.

On their return to Washington, the 4-H Clubbers stopped off at Planter's Warehouse, Upper Marlboro, for a demonstration of tobacco grading and a simulated tobacco auction, complete with the chant of the auctioneer.

In the afternoon they visited the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington National Cemetery where a wreath was placed by Miss Marietta Trowbridge of Saratoga, Wyo., and John Earl Collins of Laurel, Miss. They also visited Lee Mansion. A tour of the National Gallery of Art last night wound up yesterday's activities.

Today, following up on a summary of group discussions made Saturday by Miss Lyn MacDonald of La Verne, Calif., the young 4-H'ers will hear a synthesis of their talks on "Better Homes the World Over."

Donald F. Sullivan, Georgetown University student, will address the group on "Citizenship in a Democracy." The encampment runs through June 23.

Samuel R. Davenport had just about the nicest Father's Day any Dad could ask for yesterday.

First and most important, Davenport received the original copy of the letter his 11-year-old daughter Rosalyn wrote The Washington Post explaining why she thought her Dad was the Ideal Father.

In addition, Davenport was a guest, with his family, at a Father's Day celebration sponsored by The Washington Post which included an all-you-can-eat dinner at the Statler Hotel, a joint family interview on station WINX, and a final stop at Loew's Capitol Theater to see "Summer Holiday."

Letter Judged Best

All this was because Rosalyn's letter was judged best in the Washington Post's Ideal-Father contest.

Davenport's wife, Blanche, and another daughter Jeffra, 6, were as pleased as Rosalyn herself about their Dad's triumph. Davenport felt pretty good about it, too.

The Davenports live at 407 S. Cherry st., Falls Church. Davenport, 41, is an editor in the office of the Coordinator of Information for the House of Representatives.

"I'm very, very proud of this family of mine," was Mrs. Davenport's comment on the day.

Daughter Is Grade Student

Rosalyn, a seventh grade student at Madison School, read her letter over the air. She and her dad also read two of the "Rhymes for Rosalyn" which Davenport wrote to amuse his daughter.

The letter, incidentally, began:

She finished up by writing:

"I think my father is the ideal father because I wouldn't be happy with any other father and I don't know any child who wouldn't be happy with mine."

Rosalyn, a poised young lady in a flowered print dress and Panama hat, was sporting her first corsage, a gardenia, yesterday.

Gets Outdoor Grill

As Fathers' Day gift to their ideal dad, the girls gave an outdoor grill which got a brief tryout Saturday night before heavy storms canceled the family's plans for a hamburg roast in the backyard.

They also gave him a pair of finger nail clippers. "To replace the one the girls lost for him," Mrs. Davenport pointed out gently.

Father's Day began about 6 a. m. for the Davenports when both children got up to greet The Washington Post paper boy at the door, and read the official announcement of their dad's victory.

VFW Dead Honored at Encampment

About 500 persons attended special memorial services in Alexandria last night at the twenty-sixth annual encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Department of Virginia.

Representatives of chapters throughout the State read names of members who had died during the past year at the services held in Cameron Street Recreation Center near Harvard st. The Rev. Joseph Bell, Virginia department chaplain, gave the invocation and the Rev. Norman Roberts, pastor of the Washington Street Methodist Church, Alexandria, the benediction.

According to Joseph B. Martin, chairman of the department's parade committee, the delegates will hold a parade today from 2:30 to 3:30 p. m., down Washington st., from Jefferson st. to Pendleton st.

Election of Virginia Department officers will be held Tuesday at 10:30 a. m. An encampment banquet and ball will be held Tuesday night at the George Mason Hotel, Alexandria. The four-day meeting will close Wednesday following installation of officers at the Cameron Recreation Center.

William E. Foltz

Hagerstown, Md., June 20 (AP).—William E. Foltz, for 56 years in the insurance business here, died today, aged 86. Foltz, active in Masonic circles, is survived by two children and two brothers.

Religion Held Making Men Face Reality

Speaking to his congregation, which meets at the Pershing Drive Christian Church, the Rev. Gilbert A. Phillips suggested that our most pressing problems are "nonverbal."

He explained that people who feel that a solution lies in talk and discussion are not facing things realistically. Urging action rather than purely intellectual endeavors, Mr. Phillips stated "religion makes men face reality to get to the solutions of problems."

Dr. Edward B. Willingham, pastor of National Baptist Memorial Church, 16th st. and Columbia rd. nw., pointed out in his sermon that the value of the individual is an essential part of the Christian message.

Importance of Individual

The individual, he said, is important to himself, to society, and to his God. Dr. Willingham said that every individual can do something about the attitudes of society.

"Materialism is an insidious spiritual disease which will be fatal unless checked," the Rev. John Bailey Kelly warned at Georgetown Presbyterian Church, 3115 P st. nw.

He told of great civilizations of the past which have fallen because of a loss of spiritual wisdom. "The time has come for America to be on her guard against the dangers of a materialistic civilization," he concluded.

The Rev. James G. Horn, assistant pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Reformation, 212 East Capitol st., urged a Christian perspective. Christians, he said, should be able to see both the present and the future.

Through Christianity we are in a position to see the future, Mr. Horn said. He urged that we become the "reproductions" of Christ so that people of the future will look back upon us as the "things of value of the past."

Men Suffer Alone

In a Father's Day sermon, Dr. J. Warren Hastings of National City Christian Church, Thomas Circle, said men are prone to suffer alone. They are forever studying the faces of people looking for "truthfulness, sincerity, righteousness and courage."

"Man in his tower of observation is the most watchful being in the universe. At his best he reflects the power and glory of God," Dr. Hastings said.

Though everyone today is looking for security, what is really needed is an inner security, Dr. Clifford Homer Richmond said at Chevy Chase Methodist Church. We must have safety in danger, not safety from danger, he asserted.

The secret of inner security, he concluded, is the desire to be helpful rather than the desire to escape danger.

Laurel, Md., Girl Killed in Crash Of Motorcycle

Miss Dorothy Fisher, 19, of Laurel, Md., was killed last night when a motorcycle on which she was a passenger apparently went out of control, throwing her to the pavement.

The accident occurred a mile south of Laurel on U. S. Highway No. 1 about 9:30.

Her companion and driver of the motorcycle, Charles Golliday, 17, of Jessups, Md., was seriously injured. He was taken to St. Agnes Hospital in Baltimore.

The girl, believed by police to have been riding on the back of the motorcycle, also was taken to St. Agnes Hospital but was pronounced dead upon arrival there. Police said she was thrown about 20 feet along the pavement.

Marine Concert Wednesday

The United States Marine Band will give a concert at the east front of the Capitol at 8 p. m. Wednesday.

Edmund Burke-Roche

Victoria, British Columbia, June 20 (AP).—The Hon. Edmund Burke-Roche, 89, member of a noble Irish family, died Saturday.

He was the youngest son of the third Earl of Fermoy and was born in County Cork. He went to the United States in his youth and engaged in ranching in Wyoming before coming to Canada about 50 years ago. He was a prospector.

Former Mayor Of Rockville Dies at 97

Joseph Reading, 97, former mayor and postmaster of Rockville, Md., and a Washingtonian since 1924, died at 11 p. m. yesterday in Baltimore.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. Tuesday from Rockville Presbyterian Church, Rockville. Burial will be in Union Cemetery there.

Mr. Reading was mayor and postmaster of Rockville in the late 1890's. During that time he was also in the real estate business there. Since 1924, he had lived with a son, William M. Reading of 4713 De Russey pkwy., Chevy Chase.

Born in Flemington, N. J., he was educated at St. Timothy's Military School in Baltimore. Later he moved to a large farm owned by his father where Glen Echo now is and helped him operate it. He moved to Rockville in 1890.

Mr. Reading married Elizabeth Marshall of Fauquier County, Va., in 1878. She was the great-granddaughter of Chief Justice John Marshall. Seven years after her death in 1890, Mr. Reading married Mary M. Gassaway of Poolesville, Md. She died in 1923.

Active in Masonic circles until some 10 years ago, he was a thirty-second degree Mason and a past grand master of Rockville Lodge. He had been a Mason more than 50 years.

Mr. Reading was a member of Rockville Presbyterian Church and had served it as an elder.

Besides his son, William Reading, with whom he lived in Chevy Chase, he leaves two other sons, Joseph G., of Gastonia, N. C., and Hugh Reading of Columbus, Ohio, and two daughters, Mrs. Theodore Mason of Rockville, and Mrs. Mary Martin of Washington.

Hawaiian Ladies Bring Islands' Atmosphere to Pre-Convention Fetes

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—Peregrinating through Philadelphia's jampacked hotel lobbies we bumped into National Committeewomen galore, found them intelligent, sensible, but decidedly unpicaresque. Determined to scare up color we've been hot on the trail of committeewomen from our far-flung territories—Alaska, Puerto Rico, Hawaii. Just before dinner hour we knocked on Mrs. Diana Mossman's door, stepped inside, surprisingly found not one, but a bevy of six Hawaiian ladies all enchantingly dressed in identically-cut evening gowns each with yard-long pointed beruffled train. All but one had sprays of tiny mauve orchids in their hair, leis of the same fragile blooms. The flowerless lady whose vividly printed gown was keynoted in shocking pink was perched on a bed concocting a lei of tiny red roses, clumps of baby's-breath, weaving them together swiftly with unfamiliar narrow pale green leaves. "They're ti leaves," she explained, "We make our hula skirts from them. The leaves and the leis were flown here from Hawaii. They're Joaquin orchids, not really native to Hawaii, but were probably brought to the islands from South America years ago."

As the ladies continued to prink I began to sort them out. National Committeewoman Mossman's gown was all white brocaded satin, her short black hair modishly coiffed. She wore pince nez spectacles, pearl button earrings and of course, orchids. "Our dresses are traditional Hawaiian Holokus, we always wear them to parties." She waved a hand at the lady putting the finishing touches to her lei. "This is Mrs. Flora Hayes. She's an alternate. Back home she's been commissioner of education for eight years and has served four terms in our House of Representatives. She's also vice president of the Federation of Women's Republican Clubs. The others are my guests.

She Teaches Republicanism

"WHAT ABOUT yourself?" I asked, "How and when did you get into politics and have you a husband and family?" "Heavens, no," she replied gaily, "I'm free as air." "But she has four children," Mrs. Hayes cut in. "And five grandchildren," Mrs. Mossman added, "I started in politics back in 1922 when women were first given the right to vote in the islands. I've been a member of the Republican Central Committee for over 20 years and a representative in our territorial Congress for three terms. My first job was chairman of County Municipal Affairs, then I was a member of the Education Commission. What's my specialty? Well, it's teaching Republicanism and, like all of us, fighting for Hawaiian statehood. We hope to get it during Congress next session. In Hawaii, you know, women are very politically-minded. We have almost as many women as men in our Senate."

"She forgets things about herself," Mrs. Hayes interrupted, "tell her about your music." "Years ago I organized the first All-Hawaiian Girls' Glee Club. Now they're famous and sing on the radio and all over."

"She's a composer, too," volunteered Mrs. Treadway. "One of her best songs is called 'Kipikoa,' which means the stevedores' hula." "The what?" I asked. "Oh, I work for a stevedoring firm," Mrs. Mossman giggled, "I'm secretary to the manager of McCabe Hamilton and Renny Co., Ltd. Don't get mixed up and say I'm secretary of the company because I'm only secretary to the manager." "What do you do for instance," I inquired. "Stenography and things like that," Hawaii's national committeewoman retorted airily.

Just then I spotted a ukulele and a Hawaiian guitar. "Sure, we're going to entertain at Carroll Reece's dinner tonight." With a sudden movement Mrs. Mossman, Mrs. Hays, two of the school teachers, clasped arms, put their flower garlanded heads together, burst into a beautifully plaintive Hawaiian song. Mrs. Treadway busy swishing her long gray hair into a chignon, grinned at me in the mirror. "They're going to dance, too."

With a final adjusting of leis, wriggling into short bright jackets, my Hawaiian pals picked up their trains, their guitar and ukuleles. Laughing we went down the hall into the elevator. They piled into a single taxi. "Merion Cricket Club, please," Mrs. Mossman instructed the astonished driver. "Aloha," they called to me. Plump, smiling, utterly beguiling, they drove off.

White Elephants on Hat

CONVENTION TRIVIA: Mrs. Bertha Bauer, Illinois perpetual Republican national committeewoman, has cracked out her regular convention chapeau. It's a broad brimmed white felt fedora ornamented with three enormous white kid elephants. Mrs. B., who in private life collects butterflies, runs to elephants convention time and has worn this hat for the past three or four conventions.

The Stassen staff has something new in neckties—baby blue, carnation pink affairs with an all white photographic likeness of Stassen printed in the middle. Among Stassen's hardest workers is Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt, wife of Rhode Island's former Governor . . . Terrific crisis over in Dewey's headquarters occurred when a giant blownup photograph of the Governor was setup. Handsomely colored, at first glance it looked O.K. Then one realized something was wrong with the nose. The photographer had blown it up out of proportion until the Dewey proboscis covered most of one cheek. Hastily removed, the nose was bobbed to correct length then returned.

The most attractive lapel emblems around town were made by members of Illinois Women's Republican clubs and sold for club benefit. The small elephants are all differently decorated with sequin collars, earrings, sometimes trunk ornaments. They are all about 2 inches high and made of gray crepe de chine.

The press, radio and television army had their special inning Saturday. Lead off was a buffet luncheon for gal scribes only given by Mrs. Worthington Scranton, Pennsylvania national committeewoman, and Philadelphia's official hostess. Several of the more dazzling female journalists made brief speeches. Among them was former Congresswoman Clare Boothe Luce who was seated beside the hostess. Clare said a few graceful things about Mrs. Scranton, ended with the remark that she was a great expert on international politics and in fact was even better informed than Time, a Luce publication. Mrs. Scranton, hand to mouth, sotto voced to her next door neighbor, "I should hope so."

The Mayor Is Host

IN THE AFTERNOON Mayor Bernard Samuel was host to all correspondents at the Pen and Pencil Club, the oldest newspaper club in the USA. Despite its antiquity the P. and P. Club is more like a night club than refuge for hard-working journalists. The bar, called the Leopard Room, is upholstered in fake leopard skin, has a beige tentlike canopy. Opposite is the Casablanca Room, done up in suitably Moorish style. Since drinks, ham, buns and potato salad were on the Mayor, the fourth estate was more than usually uninhibited and a good time was had by all.

Venezulan Chief of State To Visit Here

President and Mrs. Truman will be hosts at dinner Thursday evening, July 1, in honor of the President of Venezuela and Senora de Gallego, who will arrive that day to be overnight guests at the White House. The following day the visiting Chief Executive and his wife will move to Blair House to spend three days.

The Ambassador of Venezuela and Senora de Carnevali have issued invitations to a reception on Saturday, July 3, in honor of the distinguished visitors at the embassy from 6 to 8. The occasion will also mark Venezuela's Independence Day on July 5.

President Gallegos will be host at dinner at Blair House on July 2. With Senora de Gallegos he will accompany President and Mrs. Truman to Bolivar, Mo., for the unveiling on July 5 of the statue of Bolivar, the great liberator of South America, which is to be a celebration of the United States Independence Day.

On the Washington Club Front . . .

By Genevieve Reynolds

Each summer thousands of career women, who are active in organizational work, take their vacations and head for out of town conventions. Washington's ardent clubbers are no exception. Conversely, hundreds will be pouring into the Nation's Capital on the same mission.

Out in Pasadena, Calif., for the International Zonta Club's annual pow-wow are local delegates Mrs. Alice Sheldon, Miss Mabel Strider and Miss Edyte Barker.

The Washington Pilot Club, meantime, has sent several representatives to the Pilot convention in Daytona Beach, Fla. Official delegates attending are Mrs. May Thompson, Mrs. Mary Malone Moore and Mrs. Charles Havlena. Alternate delegates in the group are Miss Helen M. Hoffman, Miss Emma Biebl and Miss Effie Mae Hammer, Mr. Havelena is accompanying his wife. Also, in the Washington party will be Col. and Mrs. Jean Stacy.

When the Mu Phi Epsilon national gathering swings into action, today in Cleveland, the Washington Alumnae chapter will be represented by its president, Gertrude Dyre Parsons, business delegate and Mrs. Susannah Coleman, pianist and composer, music delegate. Two of Mrs. Coleman's piano pieces will be played on the Original Compositon Program, and present a short radio program over station WJW, June 26.

Resort Meeting

Nine members of Alpha Delta Pi Sorority in the Washington area expect to be on hand when the organization stages its annual conclave, June 22-28, at the Essex Hotel, Spring Lake Beach, N. J. Representing George Washington University Chapter will be Miss Gloria Rue. Miss Frances Pollard will be Maryland University's delegate. Each is president of her own chapter.

The Washington Alumnae Association will be represented by Miss Emily Bennett, a member of the Junior Alumnae group. Mrs. Perrin H. Lowery 3d will be the delegate from the Alexandria-South Arlington Alumnae Association and Mrs. Claude Millikin will represent the North Arlington-Falls Church Alumnae Association. Mrs. Ormand E. Demorest, who is chairman of the convention resolutions committee and a member of the sorority's committee on international fellowships, will also represent the College Park Alumnae Association.

Others who will attend the convention, marking the sorority's ninety-seventh year, will be: Mrs. Jack E. Finks, Mrs. Oren R. Lewis and Miss Barbara Galatian.

Miss Bess Glenn, Washington's Quota Club president, will head a sizable delegation to Quota's annual international conclave slated for June 27-30 in Atlantic City, N. J.

In the local delegation, in addition to Miss Glenn, will be Mrs. Josephine Noyes, Miss Margaret Ellis, Miss Minnie Byers, Miss Agnes Gautreaux, Miss Irma Schoeneman, Miss Lilliam Keathley, Mrs. Blanche DeWitt, Mrs. Bernice Jay and Lieut. Chula Johnson.

Of special interest will be reports of work accomplished through the international project —Aid to the Hard of Hearing. One of the convention speakers will be Miss Betty Wright of this city, an official of the Hard of Hearing Society here.

Other convention speakers will include Mrs. Willie Snow Ethridge, author and wife of the publisher of the Louisville Courier-Journal, of Prospect, Ky.; Miss Lisa Sergio of New York, journalist and radio commenator, and Miss Hilda Yatsing Yen, liaison officer in the United Nations' Department of Information.

Thomas Marshall Chapter Elects Mrs. Leech

Mrs. J. Dewitt Leech was elected president of Thomas Marshall Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, at a recent meeting.

Others elected include: Vice regent, Mrs. S. C. Tupman; chaplain, Mrs. R. K. Bailey; recording secretary, Mrs. Ethel Duke Barrows; corresponding secretary, Miss Chloe E. Traylor; treasurer, Mrs. John T. Heffernan; registrar, Miss Agnes M. F. Randolph; historian, Miss Mary Norris McCabe; librarian, Mrs. Edward J. Garber; delegate, Miss Linda V. Nance.

Hollins Students Honored at Dance

Man Who Went Through Hell in the Pacific During War Says He's Suffered Worse Agony In Past Month, Since His Fiancee Jilted Him

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Kathie and I were to be married this June, but a month ago she calmly broke our engagement, telling me she had met someone else for whom she cared more.

I am 24 and she is 20 and we had kept steady company for two years. Being neighbors, we saw each other nearly every day. I looked on her as part of my life, had full trust and confidence in her, and had built all my future plans around her. We never once quarreled.

My affection for her is entirely too deep to turn off like a water faucet; and the sight of her going out with someone else is almost maddening to me. I have a very responsible job and this worry is telling badly in my work. I find myself depressed and irritable.

This is getting worse, so how can I break it up? Is it advisable to resign my job and leave this part of the country? Or should I go out with someone else, in whom I'd have no interest? In my present state of mind I would be a poor companion.

Thwarting Galled Him in Childhood

FOR BACKGROUND, I am the only son of rather wealthy parents. As a child if I wanted anything, I wanted it very much. If I didn't get it, I actually suffered. But I was willing to put up an effort to get what I wanted.

I remember as a boy of 10 I wanted to make a boys' baseball team and I had one of our servants bat me flyballs for hours under a hot July sun. Poor fellow, I can see him sweating yet. I made the team.

In high school I went out for the varsity basketball and football teams. I thought for a while I'd flop and the thought nearly drove me nuts. I made both teams. I decided we should win every game. We didn't, and I'd bawl like a baby when we lost. I was a senior and somewhat of a football hero when Kathie was a frosh. She wasn't my girl then.

I spent three years in the Marines. There you learn to control your emotions. I took plenty of hell in the Pacific but I've suffered more this past month than all my war experiences put together. I am no neurotic sissy and I am disgusted that a girl could do this to me. I've got to snap out of this, and it's the toughest job I ever faced. Please help if you can, and thanks a million for wading through this. G. C.

Feels He Can't Afford to Fail

DEAR G. C.: It seems to me you take everything too hard and always have; not getting much, if any, fun out of life even when things are going your way; and that your most keenly-felt emotions are on the negative side.

Your bulldozer approach to life is that of a person who seems to feel he can't afford to fail at anything; as if total loss of self-confidence were at stake, in the event he misses out in any competitive situation.

Why is this? Did your affluent parents tacitly burden their only son from babyhood with the understanding that because he lived in clover, as compared to ordinary folk (or the general run), a world-beater performance on every score was duly expected from him in return? And did the little fellow feel in his bones that this was asking much too much of him,—even while inwardly flogging himself to measure up to their vainglorious demands?

Your personality is pretty rigid, I gather, due to serious contradiction between the inner self and the outward seeming. On the surface you strive to register courage, composure and competence, while underneath volcanic tremors of neurotic anxiety about prospective "loss of face" are always rumbling.

Girl's Decision Blessing to Man

WHEN Kathie "calmly" broke the engagement, I bet you professed to accept the blow as nothing calamitous, by way of maintaining a customary pose of imperturbable superiority. And I daresay the relationship while it lasted was simply a case of your thawing slightly to her expression of hero-worship, without your feeling much (if any) sensitive devotional interest in her real potentials as an individual—which would leave her vulnerable to Cupid's darts from another quarter.

Her change of heart leaves you unstrung with humiliation and shock, hence discouraged, demoralized and wrothful; but all things considered, it is a blessing in disguise, I think.

For one thing, you need to work out good emotional integration, via short-term intensive psychiatric therapy, before marrying anyone. And for another, among men who come from homes above-average in income and education, the very happiest marriages are reported by those who marry at 30 or after, according to Dr. Judson I. Landis, sociology professor at Michigan State College, whose finding derives from a study of 409 marriages in that social group. M. H.

Household Chatter

Try cleaning white shades with equal parts of flour and borax. Lay the shade out flat and rub the dry mixture on with a cloth.

When marking linens of any sort draw the letters with a lead pencil and then trace exactly on this line with the marking ink. Then the ink will not spread.

When you put down your crocheting or knitting slip a large safety pin through the last loop made. Then if it is picked up hastily the work cannot pull out.

Fresh Meat

Place the fresh meat on a flat platter, cover with a piece of waxed paper and put on the shelf in the refrigerator nearest the ice unit. Never put directly on the ice as it will draw the flavor from the meat.

Telephone Service, too

WE WANT to give some service to the people who are still waiting for telephones. That's why we're having to limit most new installations to party lines.

Party lines mean more service for more people sooner.

If you're on a party line, you can help yourself to better telephone service by observing these few simple suggestions:

1. Try to make your calls reasonably brief.
2. Whenever possible, allow an interval between calls so that others can use the line.
3. Try to answer the telephone as promptly as you can.
4. Please don't interrupt when the line is in use, except in case of emergency.
5. Ask the children to follow these good-neighbor suggestions, too.

Use Mild Soap for Shades

Shishkabobs—lamb broiled on a skewer—is a favorite Near East dish that is gaining favor with American cooks. To make it, cut 1 pound of boned lamb shoulder into 1-inch cubes and marinate overnight in a sauce made by mixing ½ cup salad oil, ½ cup malt vinegar, ½ cup finely chopped onion, 1 clove crushed garlic, ½ teaspoon paprika, 2 bay leaves, salt and pepper. Drain meat on absorbent paper and place on skewers, alternating with tomato slices, onions, or mushrooms. Broil under hot flame 20 minutes, turning to brown all sides. Serve lemon wedges and slices of dill pickle

How can I clean parchment lamp shades. L. A. R.

Parchment shades can be cleaned with a soft cloth which has been dampened with soapy water. Use a mild soap. When clean, immediately go over the shade with another cloth wrung out of clear water to remove all the soap and any remaining soil.

I washed a crochet purse made of ribbonette (rayon or silk). The results were good but it is so "limp." What can I use to starch it? I'm sure putting in a stiff lining will not be sufficient. L. A. R.

Perhaps you can give this purse body by dipping it in a solution of gum arabic. Add 1 pint boiling water to 1 ounce powdered gum arabic and stir over a low heat until the gum arabic is completely dissolved. Dilute with a pint of cool water. Use as you would starch. Gum arabic can be purchased at a drug store.

I want to decorate a child's white bedroom set. The set is already painted white. I can draw and paint a little and I wish to add a decoration of blue butterflies and pink roses, but don't know what kind of paint to use, and how to apply it. C. M.

For designs of this sort, you can get a better variation of colors by using artists' oil paint which comes in small tubes. Since these paints dry slowly and are softer than furniture enamels, combine a little turpentine and clear varnish with the paints as you work. To do this, squirt a little of the paint onto a sheet of glass and with an artists' brush, work a drop or two of both turpentine and clear varnish into the paste until it is a workable consistency.

I am expecting to move into a house that has unfinished wooden drainboards at the kitchen sink. They are grooved to permit the drainage of water. The boards themselves appear to be rough and water soaked, absorbing a great amount of water and creating an undesirable dampness in this area. What would be the best way to clean these boards thoroughly and then treat them so they would repel the water instead of absorbing it? R. E. A.

First, bleach and clean the board with a saturated solution of oxalic acid. Apply the acid solution to the board liberally and allow it to stand all night. In the morning wash and rinse the board very thoroughly several times. Allow the board to completely dry and sand any rough spots. Now, give it a soaking coat of raw linseed oil. Wipe excess oil off after it has stood an hour.

Allowing a day or so elapse between each application, give it two more applications of linseed oil. Give time for the oil to soak in after each application. This treatment will make the board resistant to water and stains.

What is the best way to care for gold kid shoes and bags to prevent them from tarnishing? H. W.

Wrapping the slippers in black tissue paper when not in use helps to retard tarnish. Shoe stores also sell a polish now which not only cleans the shoes but renews the gold finish on them.

PETUNIA!

Of bitter despair now

This is what used to be Deviled eggs!

But they wouldn't be mashed, Petunia, if you'd pack 'em like this: Press stuffed halves together, wrap in waxed paper, and put back in the carton your eggs came in. Much safer!

Don't Resort to Movie Tricks; Exercise Your Way to Curves

By Ida Jean Kain

In the movies an ultra-streamlined star weighing on the skinny side of 110 pounds for 5 feet 5, often appears to have feminine curves on the classical order of Venus de Milo. But it ain't necessarily so. I know for a fact that many an actress' "natural curves" are built into the gown. That's Hollywood's idea of box office, and it can certainly be carried to extremes.

My only reason for exposing this build-up is to show the envious thin girls that those movie-queen curves may be no more natural than the false eyelashes.

The slim girl with the small bust should recognize that she is simply not built like Venus. And the too-thin girl should realize that she cannot have normal curves with subnormal weight. Putting on weight is as important to the development of this measurement as taking off weight is to reducing it.

In normalizing the bust, weight is the starting point. The thin girl often thinks she has a bust problem, when actually she has a health or weight problem. Often it's the low vitality back of underweight that's to blame. A normal amount of fatty tissue, however, can make a very definite contribution to the contour of the bust. Not only more calories are needed, but better nutrition.

Now what role does exercise play in this measurement? Since the breasts are glands, obviously exercise cannot develop a naturally small contour into fuller curves. But exercise will help to develop the chest and banish that one-cylinder look so characteristic of the girl with the flat chest. Exercise develops the pectoral muscles which spread fanwise across the chest and give the figure a much fuller appearance.

Since these muscles insert into a groove in the upper arm, arm exercises are particularly helpful. Pushing against muscular resistance is a favorite—fist clasped in one hand, elbows bent, arms at chest level. Resist with the left arm and push with the right fist. Reverse the motion. Any activity that uses the arms vigorously at chest level is an excellent normalizer — rowing, pillow-punching, swimming, archery, fencing.

If you thin girls will boost your weight, develop your chests, put a little meat on your collar bones, and correct rounded shoulders, you will not feel apologetic about your figures.

These health measures will make a marked improvement, but if they do not give quite the fashionable figure, a properly-fitted uplift bra, with perhaps a bit of added padding, will produce the desired effect. But cotton padding, girls, not the spongy, over-emphasizing type of filler. Movie-star fashions to the contrary, it's ludicrous to have this part of the figure appear out of proportion to a girl's general build.

Work Wonders With Wallpaper

What you can do with wallpaper is described in an article in the July Good Housekeeping magazine which states in part:

"Two tall geranium columns are cut from a single strip of washable Varlar wall covering and set closely together over green tubs painted on the wall to panel a doorway.

"Even a small room will take on importance with grille-designed dado in green and white. Paint wall in matching or contrasting color. Molding may be applied at the top.

Wallpaper may also be used to simulate a bed headboard. It can be applied with a square of molding, nailed to the wall.

Hidden Cancers Now Being Found By Sound Waves

The new cancer attack was shown by Drs. J. F. Herrick and E. J. Baldes of the Mayo Foundation Institute.

The supersounds are made by crystals transmitted to the body by water or oil between the vibrator and the skin. To shake a cancer to piecs, the sound beam is held on the malignant growth. These fast sound waves destroy tissues cell by cell. All the Mayo experiments to date have been made only on animals.

Malayan Police Stage Dawn Raids To Halt Violence

Singapore (Monday), June 21 (AP). — Heavily armed Malayan police struck before dawn today in raids designed to capture those responsible for the nation's wave of violence.

Several hundred policemen began searching homes, estates and tin mines in Johore, Perak, Kedah and Selangor, centers of recent shootings of European planters and prominent Kuomintang Chinese.

Police officials said they expected to take several hundred suspects into custody. The first arrests were reported from Kuala Lumpur where four Chinese were seized.

Human Rights Declaration Seen 'A Moral Force'

Lake Success, N. Y., June 20 (U.P.). Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today praised the newly drafted United Nations declaration of human rights as a document which will become "a moral force in the world."

Mrs. Roosevelt, president of the U. N. Human Rights Commission, said completion of the so-called bill of rights afforded "a stepping stone to a higher level of achievement in the peaceful relations of man with his fellow man."

The declaration, to be followed later by a formal human rights treaty which will become binding on all governments which sign it, was characterized by the former First Lady as an unprecedented indication of the minimum rights that should be granted to every man, woman and child in the world.

New Courses Held Necessary for Dental Colleges

Rochester, N. Y., June 20 (AP).—Curriculums more suited to the needs of dentistry than those patterned after medical schools were urged today by the new president of the International Association for Dental Research.

"It is time that dentistry learned that it cannot be dependent on medicine indefinitely," said Dr. Allan G. Brodie, dean of the College of Dentistry at the University of Illinois. He spoke at the concluding luncheon of the association's twenty-sixth general meeting.

Dr. Basil G. Bibby, director of this Eastman dental dispensary here, was elected vice president. Dr. J. Roy Blayney of the University of Chicago, who had been vice president, moved up to president-elect. Other officers are permanent.

Group to Hear Talks On Zoning Ordinance

The Home Protective Association of Arlington will meet today at 8:30 p. m. at the home of Robert H. Burrage, 6 North Irving st., Arlington. The group will hear candidates for the Arlington County board discuss the proposed zoning ordinance, text of which will be discussed at a hearing before the county board June 23.

Ginny Simms, Husband Will Try Reconciliation

Los Angeles, June 20 (U.P.).—Singer Ginny Simms and her estranged husband, Hyatt Denn, will meet Monday to attempt a reconciliation, according to Denn.

The singer filed a divorce suit June 7, charging Denn wanted her to give up her career.

Peter Visits Bishop

Libertyville, Ill., June 20 (AP).—Former King Peter of Yugoslavia visited with Bishop Dionisije and other officials of the Serbian Orthodox Church today. With him was Constantine Foitich, former Yugoslav Ambassador to the United States. Peter said he planned to return to New York immediately.

Tony Martin London Hit

London, June 20 (AP).—Hoarse and fagged out by nearly two solid hours of singing, Crooner Tony Martin bade farewell to British fans at the Palladium Theater last night.

12,000 Doctors Convene

Police Pistol Match

Baltimore, June 20 (AP).—The Maryland Police Association's second annual pistol match will be held July 21, Marcus H. Miles, committee chairman, has announced. It is open to full-time law enforcement officers of the State.

Business Booming, Prices on Upgrade, Commerce Says

By the United Press

Business is booming again and prices are on the upgrade, the Department of Commerce reported yesterday.

The Department's monthly publication, Survey of Current Business, said the "general strength of demand" in May and early June ended the "temporary hesitation" in business that occurred earlier in the year.

1. The lower withholding taxes that went into effect May 1.

2. The extension of wage increases to major labor groups.

3. Increased purchasing under the European Recovery Program.

"These and other developments," it said, "have been reflected in a renewal of the price advance and in a firming of production schedules for the period ahead."

Woman Fearing Skin Malady Attempts Death

The woman, Ann Rihanic, 34, of 76 Credo st., Pittsburgh, was taken to the County Psychopathic Hospital. Detective Charles Theobold said she was found lying on a bed in her rented room with a pillow over her head.

Theobold said he found a note in her room referring to her face as "like something I've read in a horror book."

She had come to Chicago a week ago for treatment of her skin condition at Illinois Masonic Hospital. Physicians there said there was no serious imperfection in her face. Her condition is not serious.

Adm. Conolly at Lisbon

Lisbon, Portugal, June 20 (U.P.). Rear Admiral Richard Conolly, commander of United States naval forces in European waters, flew here today from London to attend official Portuguese ceremonies welcoming units of the United States Fleet Monday.

Our Dramatic Critic Missed One

June Lucas of 640 Massachusetts ave. ne., is president of the Playmate Club, one of Washington's more dynamic civic organizations.

Aided and abetted by such Playmate Clubbers as Carol Stanley, Betty Rawcliff and Mary Ellen Beard, June staged a Kiddie Carnival a few days ago.

Tickets were priced at 3 cents each, and the show was a tremendous boxoffice hit. The neighbors bought $8.11 worth of ducats the moment they went on sale.

And as soon as the show was over and the Playmates counted up their profits, they set off for Children's Hospital to turn the money over to that institution's building fund.

Aren't girls wonderful? (Or, to avoid starting a controversy, maybe I ought to say: Aren't little girls wonderful?)

CORRECTION

Frederick Terman of 418 Emerson st. nw says I must have misunderstood his recent remarks about merchant seamen in the AVC.

He says that the American Veterans Committee has already accepted former members of the Merchant Marine into its ranks.

The trouble is that California has passed a law which denies certain benefits to any veterans' organization which accepts the seamen—meaning the AVC, because it's the only one that does.

So the local Evans F. Carlson Chapter faced the issue of expelling the seamen to avoid discrimination against the California brethren, or keeping the Merchant Marines and letting the California group suffer the consequences.

The local chapter notified its national officers that it favored keeping the seamen and challenging the legality of the California law.

And if I don't have the story straight this time, they'll probably vote to run me out of town when they hold their next meeting (June 22, 8:15 p. m., 1751 New Hampshire ave. nw).

By the way: On the following day (June 23) Colmar Manor Post No. 131 of the American Legion is arranging a moonlight cruise on the S.S. Potomac. A television set will bring the crowd a blow-by-blow account of Jersey Joe Walcott's triumph over Joe Louis.

(I'm counting on Louis to duplicate my mistake—and lead with his chin.)

CANNY KENNY

Married folks will be interested in Ken's financial problems, and his method of solving them.

For a long time, he listened to his wife's complaint that they weren't saving anything. Each week they found themselves living from hand to mouth.

When I ran into Ken the other day, he seemed unusually happy. "Has your wife succeeded in saving some money?" I asked.

"No," he replied cheerfully, "but I'm enthusiastic about our new arrangement. Now she's the one who has to worry about paying all the bills."

PERSONAL NOTES

Bill Conners, 2516 13th st. nw.: Wish I could help you restore the lost license plate to its owner, but it's been necessary to adopt a firm policy against using lost-and-found items here. There isn't enough space available to handle all of them or even a fraction of them, and it's not fair to use some and ignore others. Okay?

John P. Simpson, sr., 3229 McKinley st. nw.: The declaration of estimated income must be filed on or before March 15, true enough, but then the instructions add: ". . . or on such later dates as specified in instruction 6." By the time you finish with instruction 6 you wish you'd hired a lawyer at the outset.

"Black, male kitten." (VIctor 7899 after 6 p. m.)

"Four female puppies, about 2 months old." (Write to: Elizabeth Tangen, P. O. Box 32-A, Fairfax, Va.)

HOORAY FOR PEGGY!

Peggy Feyling of 812 K st. se. writes, "To keep you from getting into a rut, I have two 2-week-old kittens and do NOT want to give them away."

TWIN BILL

R. G. Benton of 349 Westside ave., Hagerstown, Md., reports that a local moving picture house recently displayed the sign:

"Now Showing. 'Adele Mara,' 'Exposed'."

THEN YOU HIRE A MAN WHO'S BEEN ADMITTED TO

David B. Harrison of 900 19th st. nw., sagely reminds us that:

"Bars are something which if you go into, you are apt to come out singing a few, and maybe get tossed behind."

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—Oscar Lange, the former Polish Ambassador to Washington, who gave up his American citizenship to serve the new Poland, is now in Poland—out of a job . . . Senator McGrath, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, told Georgian politicians that the threats, by three Southern States, to have rump delegations to the convention—all pledged against Truman—is academic now. McGrath insists that the nomination of Truman is assured without them, that he already has the votes needed.

Joel Sayre's new book, for Farrar, Strauss, will have the longest title of the year: "Enjoy the War, Children: The Peace Is Sure To Be Nasty" . . . Leaders of the motion picture industry are meeting this week to devise means of combatting Britain's surprise switch in the quotas on American films.

This Week magazine will publish Franklin D. Roosevelt's list of 23 leading Americans, made eight years ago. He wrote it for Rene Chambrun, who came to Washington to have munitions diverted from France to England. "These are the people you've got to see," said Roosevelt, "if you want it to be done." Only one woman's name is included—Eleanor Roosevelt. Truman's name isn't on the list. But when Chambrun had the list framed, he found the label "Truman Frame Co."

Charlie Foy, the Hollywood night club owner, tells this story of how the youngest of the Foys—Eddie Foy, jr.—got his name. Eddie Foy had seven sons, and the first six were named after his close friends. When the youngest was born, Foy learned that Lee Shubert, the theatrical producer, would be made happy if the star would name a son after him. Foy was delighted to do so, and agreed to name the youngest after Lee Shubert . . . At the christening, however, Foy—who looked upon all names only from the viewpoint of a theater marquee—suddenly was reminded that if theater-goers saw the name "Lee Foy" on a marquee they might think it's a Chinese acrobat. And so the child was named Eddie Foy, jr.

The American newspapermen who participated in last year's junket to Bogota—where a revolution broke out during their visit—have formed a club, called "Survivors of Bogota." . . . Rebecca West, whose last newspaper assignments were at the treason trials in London and the lynching trials in the South, will report the political conventions. Her stories will appear in the Herald Tribune . . . General Eisenhower's book probably will be the Book-of-the-Month Club's December choice.

Garrett Park, Md.

. . . Northwestern suburb of Washington, about 5 miles from the District line, near Wisconsin-Rockville Pike.

The same magnificent shade trees that made Garrett Park a favorite spot for Washington picnickers in the past, now add beauty and comfort to this peaceful suburb. The winding streets were laid out by a group of artists and writers who contemplated making their home here. It was named in honor of John W. Garrett, one-time president of the B. & O. Railroad.

Throughout many years, it has been the privilege of Washington Permanent to offer practical, easy-to-meet loans to homemakers—in Washington, nearby Maryland and Virginia. If you'd like to buy or build or modernize or refinance YOUR home, let us help you arrange a plan suited to your income and expenses.

Warren Called Certain Winner

Editor's Note—As the Republican convention opens in Philadelphia, Drew Pearson concludes his series on GOP Republican candidates by focusing the spotlight today on dark-horse Gov. Earl Warren of California.

By Drew Pearson

Philadelphia.—If Republican leaders want to be sure of winning next November; if they want to carry a sizable portion of the Democratic pro-labor vote, the man this convention will finally pick will be Gov. Earl Warren of California.

Of course, when GOP leaders sit down in the smoke-filled rooms, they are notorious for picking the man they want rather than the man the people want. So the modest Mr. Warren, who has done nothing about corralling delegates, may not win their favor.

But history has proved that there is a large bloc of independent voters in this country which switches from one party to the other, according to the candidate. Roosevelt was always able to swing this bloc to the Democrats. Warren, on the other hand, is the one Republican who can be sure of swinging them back to the GOP.

He has proved this in California. Asked how he was able to carry every one of California's 58 counties for Governor in 1942, Warren replied: "I did it with Democrats." In 1946 he was so popular with both parties that the Democrats as well as the Republicans renominated him. And in the recent California primary Warren got about the same number of votes as Truman, despite the fact that there are one million more registered Democrats than Republicans.

Unquestionably, Warren is the one 100 per cent sure-fire GOP candidate guaranteed to beat any Democrat, probably including Eisenhower.

Warren vs. Dewey

There is one great difference between Warren and Dewey. Both have given their States extremely efficient administrations. Both are highly competent executives. Both have spent almost all their lives in the complicated science of government.

But Warren has deep-rooted sympathy for human beings. Dewey has stood up for minorities, but his position seems to come from a sense of fairness and political expedience, not from sympathy.

An off-the-record conversation occurring at the Governors' Conference in Portsmouth, N. H., last week, illustrates the difference between the two men.

At a Governors' breakfast, Dewey started lambasting the teachers' lobby, said it had flooded the country with falsehoods, urged that the Governors start a counteroffensive.

"Oh, no," replied the New York Governor, "not with the press present. That would ruin everything."

When other Governors asked Dewey what he proposed, he suggested: "We'll call an executive session and exclude the press." "Teachers' propaganda," he added, "is the biggest lie since Adolf Hitler."

So an executive session was called at which the press was barred, and at which Dewey proposed that Frank Bane, secretary of the Governors' conference, hire a couple of publicity experts at $50,000 a year and start a campaign with full-page advertisements combating the teachers' propaganda.

Teachers' Friends

Governor Warren and Gov. Tom Mabry of New Mexico, a Democrat, didn't think much of this.

"In New Mexico," Mabry remarked, "we are short 600 teachers. We think teachers should be paid more than domestic servants, who get $50 a week—if you can find them. Common labor gets a dollar an hour. I don't see why you should single out the teachers' lobby. What about the utilities lobby, the oil lobby, the potash lobby, the liquor lobby and a lot of others? I can't see any reason why the teachers, who have always been underpaid, should be singled out."

Dewey maintained, however, that he had had no trouble with other lobbies.

"I don't know how it is in your State, Tom," argued Governor Warren, "and maybe as you say there is no teacher shortage in New York. But there certainly is in California, and many of the teachers are being paid less than the janitors. I certainly see no reason why the Governors should take any action against the teachers such as you propose."

Dewey, however, still wanted the Governors' Conference to undertake a publicity campaign against the teachers. "I'm going to fight that lobby with everything I've got," he said. "If the Governors' Conference will stage a counter-campaign, I'll double my State's contribution to the conference."

The other Governors, however, would not go along on the anti-teacher publicity campaign, decided only to study the question of teachers' pay scales.

However, Dewey persisted. And another closed meeting was called at night, the press excluded, which lasted two hours. In the end the other Governors still refused to go along with Dewey.

Warren understands and likes human beings. And they like him. He has been a great cleaner-up of California, has purged racketeers, the Ku Klux Klan, the big gamblers. He has served in State and county jobs for 30 years, knows the intricate job of running a government. He is an excellent speaker, but shuns the delicate job of trading delegates, pulling backstage wires so necessary to get a Presidential nomination.

The Government Printing Office . . . is the world's largest combined print-shop and bookbinding establishment. Since 1861 its busy presses have turned out the publications of our great democracy . . . reporting the activities of our lawmakers . . . recording the scientific discoveries of Government researchers in many fields . . . publishing the decisions of the Supreme Court . . . providing the millions of briefs, forms, reports, bills, manuals and other publications so essential to a modern, efficient government.

The Government Printing Office . . . is housed in a plant containing over thirty-two acres of floor space. Hundreds of the finest printing presses consume half a million pounds of paper daily . . . compositors set enough type every day to print a dozen metropolitan newspapers . . . and seven thousand skilled workers on three shifts labor to meet the tremendous demand for printing of all sorts from the government.

The Government Printing Office . . . handles eighty-five thousand jobs a year . . . one of the most important of which is the publication of the Congressional Record. Every morning at eight o'clock the Record is delivered to the doorsteps of Members of Congress . . . no matter how late the debate on the previous day.

The Government Printing Office . . . maintains the world's largest bookselling institution. One hundred fifty million publications are distributed annually . . . seventy thousand titles are stocked . . . and an attractive, modern bookstore displays more than two thousand low-cost publications covering almost every conceivable subject.

The Government Printing Office's seven thousand people provide a major line of communication for our highly complex civilization . . . supplying the millions of copies of publications so essential in the day-to-day transactions of a modern government . . . as well as furnishing hundreds of books and pamphlets of great practical value to all of our citizens. Its hundreds of printing presses . . . capable of reproducing everything from a simple form to a multi-volume set of books . . . consume tremendous quantities of paper every day . . . sending forth the thousands of different printed products required by hundreds of government offices. Its workers are highly skilled and especially trained for their jobs . . . many coming from G.P.O.'s Apprentice School, where young men . . . carefully selected . . . work under and beside experienced craftsmen. Theirs is an age-old craft . . . long dedicated to the preservation and dissemination of ideas and ideals . . . without which our civilization could not advance. The Hecht Company is proud to render this salute to its thousands of friends in the Government Printing Office . . . whose life-work is devoted to performing this vital function to our great nation.
